

WEAK, PRICE OF EGGS UNCHANGED

Portland, April 27.—The butter market is weak with offerings more liberal. Cube trading is a shade lower. Warm spring weather is expected to bring a big increase in production.

Eggs are steady and unchanged. Receipts are good but well taken. No country dressed meats arrived on the street today to speak of and prices were nominal at 14.5 cents on veal and 17 1/2 on hogs. A decline at the yards today on live hogs is expected to have a weakening effect on country dressed pork.

Live poultry receipts were light today and not enough trading along the street to establish a definite price level. Hens generally quoted at 22 1/2 on light and 24 on heavies with broilers at 24 cents.

FALLS CITY CANNERY PREPARES FOR SEASON

Falls City, Or., April 27.—The Falls City cannery is now installing new machinery and completely overhauling its equipment in anticipation of the largest season's run in its history. This year, for the first time, vegetables will be taken care of in addition to fruits, pending plans calling for the canning of beans and peas.

FEW PRUNES IN LOWLANDS HERE REPORT STATES

According to reports coming into the Draper Fruit company there are few if any prunes left in the lowlands about Salem, but in the upland section the prune set has been better. In the upland section, it is stated, the bloom was later, but no one can tell, states the fruit company men what the extent of the shedding will be until later.

"The cold weather checked the flow of sap in the trees and started off the little prunes," states W. F. Draper. "We also have received reports of damage to Royal Anne, but nothing authentic. All pear growing sections are looking good and prospects for a crop."

BASEBALL FANS RIOT; CHICAGO FORFEITS GAME

New York, April 27.—An echo from turbulent baseball days of the past reverberated in the Chicago American league baseball park yesterday when 41,000 fans swarmed on the field in the ninth inning of a game between the White Sox and Indians.

HOPE GARLAND, HEIRESS, WEDS

New York, April 27.—Hope Garland, 19 years old, heiress of approximately $1,600,000 of the estate of her father, the late James A. Garland, was secretly married here on Friday to Winthrop Fitch Ingersoll, son of Howard L. Ingersoll, vice-president of the New York Central railroad, it was learned late yesterday.

HOPE GARLAND, HEIRESS, WEDS

The couple were married in Grace church by the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie. After the wedding, the couple went to Washington and from there notified the bridegroom's parents of the marriage.

Miss Garland's brother, Charles, turned $500,000 of his share of his father's fortune over to the civil liberties union as an endowment "for unfavorable causes." Garland explained he did not want it because he disapproved of the manner in which his father, who was a Wall street financier, acquired it.

CONTINUATION OF CANNED FOOD WEEK UNLIKELY

The future of Canned Foods Week as a national trade-developing propaganda for this commodity, as well as providing a period for enlarged forecasts, depends now entirely on the canners of the country, says the California Fruit News in its current issue.

This might sound like a peculiar statement, if one did not know that in the past the canners themselves have been the smallest contributors towards its success, so far as actual Association organizations are concerned. The National Canners Association took the lead in developing this matter and its officers and the officers of state and other local canning groups have contributed much effort. But proper development of a Canned Foods Week, nationally, means money, of course, and in this the canners themselves, taken as a whole, have not been sufficiently concerned.

It is now announced that the jobbers of the country have issued an ultimatum, that unless the canners raise $60,000 to help finance the next Canned Foods Week, the jobbers will not support any further effort toward Canned Foods Week next fall. In other words, the jobbers want the canners to match the jobbers in this matter financially. And this would seem little enough to ask. President Trepp of the National Canners Association has put this situation out in talks before several passes it—very properly—right up to the canners as to whether they want to go forward with the Canned Foods Week or not. Most of them do, if it doesn't take any time or money. That, however, isn't the answer and is not meeting the issue. In this case, we are not going to have any Canned Foods Week.

The can companies, and the canneries, and the jobbers, and such allied groups have contributed largely in money and time, but it is stated in the authority of those close to this situation that the canners themselves (speaking of course of the whole group) did not last year and have previously not done sufficient to be noted as "meeting those needs." The suggested this year that canners contribute $1 a thousand cases to the National Canners Association headquarters at Washington, which will distribute the money to the various markets in proportion as designated by the canners in their advertising and going through Canned Foods Week. In this case, the will be abandoned, we understand.

COOL WEATHER SLOWS UP CREWS

Syracuse, N. Y., April 27.—Cool weather early this month retarded rowing at Syracuse university and although five crews have been practicing daily on the Seneca river for several weeks, Coach James T. Ten Eyck has not yet found a varsity, junior varsity or freshman combination that meets his approval.

DRIED FRUIT IN LITTLE DEMAND

Speaking specifically of the dried fruit market in California, this week as of its spot quotation interests, there is no change, says the California Fruit News. The general feeling in the prune market is for rather prompt movement in demand at least and probably in price. There is just at the moment a small surplus factor in that situation through the clearing of carry-over previous to inventory on the part of some. There would seem to be no question of the fact, however, that the prune market has gotten to the bottom and that improvement is almost, if not quite, upon us.

HINDENBURG ELECTED BY HEAVY VOTE

campaign. His important speech was delivered before a great gathering of nationalists at Hanover, when he denied that he represented reaction or that his candidacy was inimical to the republic.

His only other public utterance of significance was a final appeal broadcast by radio last Friday night, in which he said: "I affirm before the world that it has always been made my holiest endeavor to prevent new horrors of war and to help to the utmost the victims of past wars. To serve our people as leader will be my holiest task."

Women's Vote Heavy The women's vote and the heavy turnout of former stay at home, are believed to have been responsible for his victory over such a seasoned political campaigner as Dr. Marx. The latter, however, failed to arouse much enthusiasm in the ranks of the so-called Wiemar coalition. Dr. Marx supporters also freely admitted that anti-Catholic feeling militated strongly against their candidate's prospects.

The Reichstag will reconvene next Tuesday and Von Hindenburg, if he follows established custom, will have the republican oath administered to him sometime during the week by the socialist reichstag president, Paul Loeb, in the presence of a parliament in which he probably has more opponents than supporters, as the centrists, democrats, socialists and communists command 277 seats against only 216 for the rightists.

SENATORS TAKE SECOND GAME IN LEAGUE SERIES

The Salem Senators won their second straight game in the Interstate league yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Vancouver nine on the Oxford park diamond by a score of 11 to 3.

The Vancouver team went out in the first inning, as did Salem when Baegmark struck out Proctor and Coleman, after Bouton went out to left field. In the second inning Oshura, first man up, got a hit but never reached second. Barhiza struck out the next three men. In their half of the second the Senators got three men on base. Steers popped out to third base. Keene got a single over second. Maples and Miller walked but the Vancouver nine pulled a double play and the Senators were unable to score.

Score in Fourth The Senators got their first runs in the fourth when Keene got on base when Oshura muffed the ball. Maples doubled, Miller crossed the platter. Frisoe went out at first. Farham got a fielder's choice and Miller went out at the plate. Ashby, running for Barham, went out at second.

The Vancouver nine went out in order in the fifth while the locals scored three more runs. Proctor went out to McCurdy, unassisted. Coleman walked. Steers was hit and advanced Coleman to second. Keene got a home run over the right field fence, scoring Coleman and Steers ahead of him. In the sixth the locals scored six runs when Bouton got a hit and Proctor walked advancing him to second. Coleman walked, filling the bases. Steers got a first hit and Bouton scored. It looked as though Proctor scored but Houser called him out at the plate. Maples got a home run over the right field fence after Steers had scored on Keene's hit. Miller got a hit and Edwards sacrificed him to second. Barham went out to Mann to McCurdy.

Much of the damage was very local in its effects, sometimes even within a single orchard itself, adjoining orchards being unaffected. Slight frosts we have had recently are not reported as having done any particular damage.
