SALEM POLICE WIN PRAISE FOR CAR RECOVERIES

The efficiency of the Salem police department in apprehending automobile thieves is attracting the commendation of police officers in Portland and elsewhere. Clever work this week resulted in the capture of two more of this class of offenders.

The service station attendant, however, became suspicious when neither of the men knew where the gasoline tank was located and he took their license number. One of the lads gave his name as Brown and said the car belonged to his father. The service station gave the license number to officer Warren Edwards, night traffic officer, and the records at the police station showed that the car belonged to Sergeant George Edwards communicated with the police department of several valley cities and about midnight the two men were arrested at Eugene on the license information and confessed to the theft.

Last night Officer Edwards was suspicious of the mysterious movements of a strange car on the streets and arrested the driver on a hunch. He proved to be C. G. Lyman of North Bend and it was found that he had stolen the car from Walter Agnes at Boring, Clackamas county.

DENTAL ESSAY PRIZE WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Dorothy Stead, a sixth grade pupil of Medford, and Clyde Flak, an eighth grade pupil of Medford, were state winners for first class districts in the fourth annual state wide dental essay contest. J. A. Churchill, state school superintendent announced today. Mary Hall, sixth grade pupil in district No. 5, Columbia county, and Clara Seidmore, an eighth grade pupil in district No. 48, Washington county, were the state winners for districts outside the first class. Each of these four won prizes of $25 each.

The contest was financed by the state board of dental examiners and directed by the state department of education. Thirty-one counties participated. A prize of $10 was offered in each county for the best essay from the fifth and sixth grades and the same amount for the best essay from the seventh and eighth grades. Each first class district of the state constituted a separate contest unit. Multnomah county was divided into four groups.

The subject for the fifth and sixth grades was "Our Guardian Angels, Good Teeth and Good Health," and seventh and eighth grade pupils wrote on "Good Teeth and Good Health, Now and Forever, One and Inseparable." The winners from each county and each first class district were entered in the state wide contest.

Among the first class district winners to $10 prizes were Mae Coffey, fifth grade, Silverton; Deb by Coffey, seventh grade, Silverton; Virginia Ahalt, eighth grade, Salem; Philip Hayter, sixth grade, Dallas, and Betty Harcombe, eighth grade, Dallas.

UNIVERSITY FACULTY IS SHAKEN UP

of C. C. Colt and Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, both of Portland; Sam Kozer, secretary of state and ex-officio member of the board; Fred Fisk of Eugene; and Judge J. W. Hamilton of Roseburg, appointed at the January session to investigate the situation at the university with the aim of consolidation of some departments and the abolition of some work in order that a deficit of $60,000 annually might be saved.

A new head of the department of English literature, which will now take in the department of drama and speech arts, was authorized and as a result, Herbert Crombie Howe, for many years its head and also the representative of the university in the Pacific coast and northwest conference governing bodies, was reduced to a position as professor. His salary, under the action, would be cut $500 a year.

CONFERENCE ON COURT REFORMS GETS NOWHERE

Portland, Or., May 9.—The judicial council on revision of court procedure closed its session with the Oregon and Multnomah Bar associations yesterday without doing anything definite about the chief proposal—to adopt for state courts the federal court system of having the judge examine prospective jurors.

The matter is expected to come up again when the council meets in August.

The council, on recommendation of the Oregon association, adopted three proposals: First—That the power to establish rules for the courts be taken away from the legislature and given to the supreme court.

Second—That until this is done, discussion be limited to means of putting through reforms under the existing rules.

Third—That all practicing attorneys be required to be members of the Oregon Bar association.

The meeting favored putting a constitutional amendment on the ballot in November, 1926, to effect the first proposal.

In the department of romance languages, similar action was taken. Timothy Cloran, for many years the department head, will remain as an instructor in the department, probably devoting his time to the instruction in French. New department heads to succeed these two will be appointed in the near future, it is said.

Kirby Miller, graduate of the university and a post-graduate student at Oxford, having won the Rhodes scholarship a few years ago, was not re-elected as an instructor in the department of philosophy. He was serving under a one-year tenure of office.

Dr. Harry B. Torrey, chairman of the department of medicine and professor of zoology, who received a year's leave of absence, will not return at the end of the year, because of other plans held by Dr. Torrey, it was said.

The office of lecturer in the extension department, which was held by E. F. Carleton, was abolished.

Colin V. Dymont, dean of the college of literature, science and arts, received a year's leave of absence. He and Mrs. Dymont, who has been connected with the university in the department of physical education for women, will tour Europe. Dean Dymont has been in poor health for the past few years.

It was stated in the report that E. S. Bates, member of the philosophy staff, now on leave in Europe, had submitted his resignation and that his resignation had been accepted. Friends of Mr. Bates today questioned the submission of a resignation.

Members of the board of regents who could be reached said that the moves were made entirely in the interests of economy, to avoid the deficit of $60,000 annually, faced by the university.
