PROSECUTION OF VICE RING CASES PENDING

But the chief didn't seem quite so optimistic about the handling of the youthful offenders as did the police matron.

At any rate it has been the talk of the O'Brien girl could be brought back that there would be interesting testimony to be given to the premises.

But from all the information which can be gathered—which isn't a great deal as the officers are very, very touchy on the subject, it is not the safest bet in the world that there is going to be very much in the line of information wringed from the young lady when she shows up. The horse may be led to water, but as the plotters used to say, that doesn't make him drink.

The officers connected with the case generally have thrown a deep, dark very opaque shroud of mystery over the O'Brien girl and everything about her. Just why, has not been explained. However, to question one of them in regard to her seems to be somewhat in the nature of lese majeste, and a finger goes to the lips with a sort of a "Sh-h-h-h" gesture about it, as much as to intimate that the heavens might fall and the earth open up and swallow one if the mystic name were so much as to be mentioned in the official presence. And that is that again.

Only one or two tiny hints have been torn in the opaque shroud which veils the mystery of this exceedingly mysterious young lady. But as all the world loves fat people, so all officers love mystery, and this very mysterious mystery seems to be a regular joy giver.

Dallas, Or., May 26.—J. W. Powell was released this morning after his arrest on a charge of driving while drunk after a preliminary hearing had failed to reveal enough evidence to prosecute the case.

The three men were only slightly injured. Deputy Sheriff Senter and State Officer McDonald investigated.
