INDIANS SUE FOR RETURN OF LAND OR BIG DAMAGES

Washington, May 28.—Two suits for nearly $14,000,000 involving more than a million and a half acres of land alleged to have been erroneously taken over by the government were filed in the court of claims yesterday by the Klamath and Modoc Tribes and Yakosonk bands of Snake Indians in Oregon and California.

In one suit the Indians ask $8,947,629, alleged to be due them for 1,500,000 acres which they claim were erroneously ceded from their possession through errors and inaccuracies in the treaty of 1864 under which they ceded to the government certain lands in the two states and reserved a specified tract for a reservation.

The second suit grew out of the granting by Oregon by the government of certain alternate sections of public lands for the construction of a military wagon road which, when built, passed through the Indians' reservation for a distance for approximately 100 miles. It is charged in the suit that 112,000 acres of their land was erroneously patented to the Oregon Central Wagon Road company which built the road, and that the secretary of interior later exchanged this tract for $7,000 acres of unallotted lands within the reservation.

The petition alleges that the $7,000 acres were covered with timber and were worth $6,000,000. Although Congress appropriated $108,750 to pay the Indians for the land, the Indians accepted that sum under protest and the suit asks $5,891,250, which, with the $108,750 already received they allege to be the reasonable value of the property.

Donald Deekbach was elected editor of the Clarion. Fay Volk was elected night song leader at a special election held at Salem high school Tuesday. The election was caused by a failure to elect at the regular student body election held some time ago. At that election the required majority was not secured. Yesterday's election, held between the two candidates drawing the largest number of votes for each office, had the following results: for Clarion editor, Donald Deekbach 141, Leroy Grots 124; for girls' song leader, Fay Volk, 154, Maxine Glover 112.

A competitive drill for boys and physical education exercises for girls will be features of the graduation exercises to be held at Chemawa Indian school the last of this week. A dress parade by the entire student body will also be held. Next Monday and Tuesday an operetta entitled "Paul Revere" by Dodge will be presented in the school auditorium. On Thursday, June 4, an industrial exhibit for visitors will be held.

HUSBAND KNEW MARRIAGE NOT LEGAL IS CLAIM

Eva G. Schlect, in replying to the answer of her husband, Arthur H. Schlect, in circuit court in which Schlect alleges that their marriage was illegal because it was contracted before the proper time had elapsed following Mrs. Schlect's divorce from her first husband, admits the charges made but declares that the fault lies entirely with her husband.

She asserts that prior to May 3, 1920, she was legally married to Wade Palmer in Lincoln county, but she became acquainted with her present husband for her and strongly urged that she get a divorce so she could marry him.

In fact, she declares, that Schlect conveyed her to the court house when she got her divorce, that he conveyed her home after the divorce was granted, and that he provided the money to pay the lawyers for getting the divorce.

The alleges that following her getting the divorce her present husband importuned her to marry him at once, but she refused, until they were given an opinion by a lawyer that if they were married outside of the state they could be legally married no matter how short a time elapsed after the divorce was granted. Relying on this opinion, she says they went to Vancouver and were married on June 1, 1920, less than 30 days after the divorce was granted. Now she declares, that the husband should be estopped from pleading this fact and in taking advantage of his own fault in the matter. She declares that both she and her husband believed they were legally married.

CONCEAL DUPLICATIONS COURSES OF STUDY VARY

concentrated and where those subjects are logically taught. In the manner those duplications stated and being presented it has been inferred that the college is the sole or principal offender that impression should be corrected. True, the growth of duplications has been much more marked at the college, but this is principally due to the fact that the scope of its work makes expansion in other and allied fields easier and more readily explained. In some cases neither institution is to be technically blamed for duplicating the work of the other, as the line of distinction has been too loosely drawn, or duplication openly allowed by the board of higher curricula.

FATE OF MEN ENTOMBED NOT KNOWN

with Adjutant General Metts. He also appealed to the bureau of mines at Washington for federal aid in what was described to him as a "serious emergency."

Soon after the explosion two men went into the mine equipped with gas masks but were unable to penetrate it.

Three explosions occurred in the mine. The first was that which trapped the workers. The second is said to have occurred following an attempt by rescue workers to enter the shaft where the men were entombed and a third occurred down in the mine later. Continued fumes prevent workers from penetrating further than the first lift.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon Governor McLean stated that he had notified the adjutant general to hold several units of the national guard in readiness to proceed to the scene.

GROGERS SHY AT COMBINE PLANS

Independent grocers held their postponed meeting at the chamber of commerce last night to discuss an organization similar to one in Portland, Robert Duncan, representing the Portland organization was present and the matter was thrashed over, but as far as could be learned from some of those present no organization was perfected and no grocer signed up to enter such an organization.

As stated over a week ago local grocers are rather fighting shy on the proposition as some of them see some danger behind the woodpile because of experience had in the organizations of grocers in Portland. Some grocers say that unquestionably there will be an organization here in the near future, but it will have no connection with the one discussed last night.

SETTLEMENT OF PUBLIC DOMAIN PROBLEM VITAL

Portland, Or., May 27.—That the time has come when something should be done toward a definite policy relative to the public domain was the assertion of Senator Robert Stanfield at today's session of the twelfth annual convention of the cattle and horse raisers' association of Oregon.

"The rights of grazing and the preservation of the forests and all other resources of the forests and other public lands should be definitely settled in a manner which will be for the best interests of all concerned," he said.

Senator Stanfield, who is chairman of the senate public lands committee, said that his committee will soon begin a series of hearings throughout the western states to obtain ideas relative to the control of public lands, and from these suggestions to develop a policy which will be presented to congress.

First of these hearings will be held soon in Arizona. The next will be in Salt Lake City in August and then will follow hearings in Montana, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, California and New Mexico.

Senator Stanfield reviewed legislation relating to stock raising and other agricultural pursuits and criticized bureaucratic control of divisions of the federal government.

He emphasized the need for preservation of the livestock industry of the nation, and said that unless the industry is aided instead of being hampered in its operations the time would come when the nation would have to depend on other countries for its supplies of meat and hides and that far higher prices for those commodities would follow.

Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, spoke on animal diseases and how to combat them.

The closing session of the convention is being held this afternoon.

Spokane, Wash., May 27.—While his brother, a fellow employee, stood by powerless to help, W. J. McDonald, 18, was smothered to death beneath 20 feet of sawdust in a bin at the Diamond Match company's plant here today.

THAW VICTIM OF PRESS AGENCY

New York, May 27.—(By Associated Press)—Someone is taking advantage of Harry K. Thaw's presence on Broadway to press ahead himself, according to Bartholomew H. Coyle, Thaw's attorney.

Coyle denied today that Thaw showed the reckless in a cabaret Sunday as reported in several newspapers. The attorney said Thaw merely dropped into the place for a little recreation. He declared that while patrons of the cabaret may have had a hectic time, Thaw himself described it as dull.
