To the Editor:—I read in the morning paper about the death of a six-year-old boy from drowning on last Sunday afternoon. According to the news item, the boy was breathing when taken from the water and death occurred as the result of a lack of reuscilatory methods. A pulmotor or lungmotor was sought, but none was to be had and undoubtedly death was caused by strangulation in the interim.

As the swimming season approaches, with this accompanying tragedy of a life added to the toll of persons whose lives have been lost in pursuit of that pleasure, I feel the necessity of speaking through your columns regarding means to prevent deaths from drowning.

The Schaefer method of artificial respiration is perhaps the most satisfactory method of artificial respiration yet known, and its proper application within a short space of time after the victim has been recovered from the water is almost sure of results. pulmotors and lungmotors may be satisfactory, but the percentage of lives saved, as compared to that when the Schaefer method is used, is very small. This is perhaps true because of the fact that these instruments are so often manipulated by persons without experience or training in the use of the machine.

It was my pleasure to be associated with Commodore W. W. Longfellow, field director of the American Red Cross, in his tour of the Pacific coast in the interests of teaching and demonstrating artificial respiration, and I have since used that method, and have seen it used, successfully in a number of cases. There are others in the city as well skilled in the Schaefer method, among whom is Harold D. Ware, scout executive, and a number of Boy Scouts of the rank of first class, who belong to Salem troops. Whenever I read of a tragedy like unto the one which occurred on Sunday afternoon I regret that I was not present to offer my services to the end that the life may be saved. I write this primarily to offer my services to those friends or relatives who may be seeking help of this nature in the future. My address is 191 South Church street, and my telephone number at home, 733. My office telephone number is 213, and whenever called to such a mission I will respond at the moment.

I am quite sure that Mr. Ware, scout executive, would also be glad to render any assistance possible in this connection, and would also appreciate being called in such an emergency. His offices are at 230 Oregon building, and his phone, 1080.

Persons who have been in the water for 30 minutes have been successfully resuscitated by the proper application of the Schaefer method and whenever help of this nature can be summoned within that time, it is always wise and expedient to do so.

This letter is directed to Salem people to the end that friends and parents need not stand helplessly by, powerless to render aid, in another tragedy such as occurred Sunday afternoon.

HAROLD L. COOK.
