TRADE AT HOME BENEFITS ALL

The chief argument in favor of home trade is the fact that it not only benefits the benefit of residing in the adjacent trade territory which is a part of every community but pays in dollars and cents. Every dollar sent away to build up business in some big city is just that much taken away from the resources of the home community.

If people will only figure out the incidental costs and conveniences occasioned by sending out of town for anything that can be purchased in their home town they will readily see that it pays to trade at home. It is customary to ignore such items, but they are there just the same and are part of the cost of the goods that are purchased in that manner. For instance the cost of a trip to the city, hotel bill, time wasted away from employment, goods bought that are not really needed, higher prices actually paid for the goods on account of the exorbitant overhead of the big city stores. All this means cost and must be charged up against the purchases if one is honest with oneself.

In case of mail order purchases there are money order and postage fees, express or freight charges, time wasted and delay in waiting for the goods, annoyance of exchanging the goods that do not fit the bill, or that do not measure up to the grade expected, these and many other things are figured up against the purchases. If this is done and quality of goods compared it will be found that it is a case of trying to lift yourself by your bootstraps. There is no easy way to secure goods that are less expensive than they can be supplied by the established business men of Salem.

H. F. Durham, principal of the Parish Junior high school of this city will give the principal address to the some three hundred students who will receive eighth grade graduation diplomas at the fourth annual graduation June 20. ## ELKS OBSERVE FLAG DAY HERE

An address by Justice George M. Brown of the Oregon supreme court on patriotism and the flag featured the program of the local Elks' club at the armory last night in commemoration of Flag day. Members of the club gathered at their club at 7:15 and marched in a body to the armory. The march to the armory was led by the Elks band under the leadership of Oscar Steelhammer. The band for the first time last night wore their new uniforms which are distinctively attractive.

Other numbers on the program were selections by a children's quartet from the Richmond school, a vocal solo by Miss Lena Belle Tartar, and an address on the history of the flag by Frank Durbin Jr.

PARALLEL PARKING ON HIGH STREET IS ASKED

Charles H. Wiedler, operator of the new Salem laundry on High street, appeared before the city council last night and complained about the method of parking automobiles on that street, considering the fact that the Oregon Electric railway has two parallel tracks in that district.

Mr. Wiedler suggested that the council should pass an ordinance for parking cars parallel to the curb on that street instead of at an angle as at present. He cited an instance or two in which serious accidents were narrowly averted when trains were passing. Alderman Draney said the street was dangerous for the same reason and suggested that parallel parking should be established from Cheneketa street south.

Paul Muro, whose case has been pending for several weeks, was today bound over to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Small for investigation on a charge of possession of a still.

WHAT'S CHANGING US?

What will History call this present age? It was the printing-press (1477), that changed our conditions of life. But the printing-press did its great work at a price. It definitely affected the eyesight of the race. This present era may well be called the Age of Eyestrain. At first man's average range of vision was 40 feet and over. Then to read the first big black letters it was occasionally pulled in two arms' length. Today small type taxes our eyes endlessly at an average range of only 14 inches. But science has kept pace with this growth of printing, finding measures for the relief of the eyes. For what is more important to happiness and success than efficient eyesight? Faded ability to see it not a test of vision. Eyestrain produces headache, nervousness, overtaxed eye-muscles, bloodshot eyes and other discomforts. With glasses you are protected—your eyes properly adjusted, nerve-strain relieved. A complete eye examination is the one way to be safe. For over a third of a century I have been correcting eye troubles by fitting eyes with the right glasses.
