DENNY RAISES ADVANCE GUARANTEE TO 5 CENTS

CHERRY BUYERS WAIVE POINT IN FAKE CONTRACT

Following the expose of the one-sidedness of the cherry contracts they have made with Willamette valley growers, published in the Capital Journal of Tuesday, Denney and company through its local manager, Roy R. Hurst, comes forward with an announcement guaranteeing a cash advance of 5 cents a pound to growers upon delivery.

The advance will be paid to the growers as soon as the cherries have been accepted and weighed at the plant, Mr. Hurst said this morning, intimating that the company would waive the provision of the contracts calling for written agreements of all alterations in the contract.

Under the provisions of the contract the company agreed to advance only 2½ cents when the cherries had been delivered, packed and loaded into the iced cars here. Another 2½ cent advance upon completion of the sale of the cherries in the eastern markets was provided.

No other concession in the "joker" contract have been reported, but growers are expressing confidence that the Denney pool will now work out satisfactorily to the growers in any event, in view of the publicity that has been given the agreement.

"It is up to Denney to make good now," said one grower this morning. "If they don't they will be through in the valley."

Most of the growers who have signed the contracts are giving the company credit for operating in good faith and are satisfied that they will get a fair return for their fruit, although many state that they would not have entered into any agreement to sell on the consignment basis had they known there would have been a cash market for the cherries.

All of the buyers and shippers are now operating and accepting cherries, but there is little indication that the first car will roll from here before Sunday. Young & Wells are caring for their early receipts by packing and trucking them to The Dalles for shipment from that point.

Reports on the extent of the heat wave damage to the fruit continue to vary, but so far the fruit delivered has been of very fair quality. Bings appear to have suffered the heaviest damage and many of them show considerable shrinkage.

Reports received from Dallas say that very few of the early cherries there were picked, due principally to the heavy damage done by the wild pigeons. Great droves of the birds, which are protected by law, swarmed into some of the orchards and ate up the entire crop.

THEATER FIRE TAKES HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE

ized a volunteer party of 100 men to search the smouldering wreckage for bodies.

Fireman Killed

They predicted it would take many hours of digging before an accurate appraisal of the casualties could be made.

A fireman, John Hagan was killed on his way to the scene when a fire truck overturned. Two other firemen were injured.

The explosion came with startling swiftness at 11 o'clock. Flames enveloped the structure almost immediately following the blast and the roof and the floors of the ancient building, constructed 42 years ago as the city's finest playhouse, collapsed.

Those who were able to make their way out of the building did so almost miraculously, according to eye witnesses.

Exits Confusing

Exits of the theater, which was located on the second floor were few. There was the main entrance and a rear exit behind the stage.

Both led down a confusing arrangement of hallways and stairs of wood, which crumpled in a moment under the falling building.

The rear exit was cut off first. Stories gathered from survivors indicated the front exit must have been cut off by the collapse of the theater floor, but none of those who reached safety by that avenue could tell clearly how he got out.

Bleeding and torn, men were seen running from the building and some were dragged out of the debris.

Fire Chief Alexander said 30 or 35 persons must have been trapped in the building, basing his opinion on the facts that shrieks were heard from the wreckage after the collapse of the building and also the belief it would have been impossible for all to escape in the short interval between the explosion and the collapse of the roof.

Building Collapses

The midnight show had just started and a love scene was playing on the screen when the blast rocked the building, bringing down the balcony as the floor gave way, according to survivors.

When the entire center section of the building collapsed, it sent bricks and debris into surrounding streets and broke windows in the buildings a block away. Thirty minutes after the explosion the south wall of the theater fell, crushing several small stores.

A negro porter in a restaurant on the ground floor of the building said that half an hour before the explosion he detected gas fumes in the basement.

Property damage was placed at $150,000.

BUMPER HAY CROP IN PROSPECT IN VALLEY

The Salem district will have a bumper crop of hay on the west side of the Willamette river this year, is the report of Charles R. Archerd, local buyer. Oats and vetch hay is unusually heavy in that district and the clover crop is fair although there is a shortage of acreage in the clover this year. A good crop will be harvested on this side of the Willamette, but will not be as large as on the west side, be declared. Farmers are profiting by ideal weather for hay

HEAT DAMAGE TO LOGANBERRIES REPORTED HEAVY

Continued heat will do hundreds of dollars of damage to the loganberry crop that has not yet been harvested, was the report of packers and growers this morning. The past three days of heat has already forced an appreciable loss, growers report, and a few more days of the heat will bring a premature halt to the logan harvest here, they declare.

It is not the ripe berries but those that are green and those whose color is just changing, the growers say. A white blister has appeared on the unripe berries on the sunny side of the vines in practically all of the fields. Many of the ripe berries have been damaged through scalding but the loss on these is not as great as on the green fruit that was counted on for a continuation of the harvest and pack. Estimates of the amount of damage done cannot be made until there is indication of how long the hot spell will last.

Reports from cherry growers this morning indicate that they will not suffer an appreciable loss unless the heat is long continued. Damage now centers around the Bings which are the only variety ripe enough to be severely affected The heat, however, has caused a drying of the fruit that is coming into local canneries and has marred considerably the looks of the pack.

350,000 PPOUNDS WOOL SOLD; PRICE 45 CENTS

Portland, June 26—The largest wool sale of the season has been closed, establishing new high market levels and stimulating interest in the trade. The Portland wool warehouse company sold 250,000 pounds of fine and half blood at prices ranging from 43 to 46½ cents. Boston firms were the purchasers.

Today's sale means that the margin between buyers and holders idea has narrowed down to a business basis and it is expected to start active buying in the country, Hills out today, ange from 35 to 37 cents at shipping point.

PRODUCE TRADE SHOWS UNUSUAL SEASONAL GAIN

Portland, June 26—Portland and vicinity is showing a healthy growth as a shipper of vegetables and garden produce to other markets. This industry has shown a steady gain during the last few years, due largely to rigid government inspection.

Growers are benefitting from these outside shipments, not only from the remunerative returns from the shipments but also from the fact that it keeps the home market in good shape and allows them to sell their crop at a good profit instead of having to unload at any old price on a market already over-supplied.

During the past two weeks some thing like 10 carloads of peas and 15 carloads of lettuce have gone to eastern consuming markets.

"We have shipped out some of the finest cars of peas this season," said Billy Bullettsett, proprietor of Garden Products. "These shipments have not only kept the local market from becoming oversupplied but have also enabled the growers to harvest their entire crop at a fair profit."

Approximately 18 carloads of strawberries were shipped. Cherry shipments will start from the valley next week and there will probably be around 50 carloads move out for the eastern markets.

Very few fresh prunes are expected to be shipped this year on account of the severe winter kill and the resulting light crop.

The poultry market is well supplied and prices are barely steady.

Butter continues firm although standard cubes are a half cent lower on the exchange. All other grades posted steady. Likelihood of an advance in print prices this week end has apparently blown over.

Current receipt eggs are a half cent higher on the exchange at 32½ cents net. Graded stocks posted steady. Hot weather requires closer candling and greater losses. There is little prospect of prices working much higher.

Commission firms along the street have carried over country dressed veal for the past two days. Receipts were light today but there is very little demand and prices barely holding at 13 cents. Choice light hogs firm and scarce at 18½ to 19 cents.

COMMUNITY HOUSE AT CAMP GROUND IS OPENED

$463.16 being the balance on hand from last year, according to Louis Aldrich, member o fthe committee who keeps the books. During the same period $1887.75 has been spent, the report shows. Of the sum spent $1062.30, plus money for a few odds and ends, went into construction of the community house. The total cost of the house is estimated at approximately $1100 Other expeditures went into improvements, repairs on the grounds and wages for the two caretakers employed there. The caretakers each receive $75 per month, or $25 per month less than they received last summer, Mr. Aldrich states.

Rumors which have sprung up from time to time to the effect that various citizens of the city, singly or in groups, are planning to secure furniture, exhibits and decorations for the house, have proved for the most part to be groundless. Each group has adopted a consistent policy of postponing action or leaving action for somebody else to perform.

Meanwhile the community house plans for which were launched with high enthusiasm, continues to lie idle, while much traffic which it was expected to attract passes by.

TWO FISHERMEN DROWN IN UPSET

Portland, Or., June 26.—Two men are missing as a result of two fishing boats being upset in a collision off the mouth of the Columbia river last night with the steamer West Nomenum, said a radio report received today by the Federal Telegraph company here from the Columbia river lightship. Crews from the lightship rescued two men from the gas fishing schooner Nenamosha. Two others of the Nenamosha crew were missing today.

The men missing were Einar Olsen, fisherman, and Eldor Nelson, navigator, both believed to be from Portland. The men rescued were John Olsen, father of Einar Olsen and Alfred K. Olson, not a relative. All these men were on Nenamosha. No report of any survivors of the second fishing boat reported in the collision had been received.
