The Albert Lea KITCHEN KOOK

is not an oil stove. It should not be confused with ordinary oil stoves or any other type of gasoline stove, for it is entirely different in construction and principle of operation; far superior in speed, cleanliness, safety and economy.

The Kitchenbook is a gas stove. It places the convenience of city gas service at the disposal of every home, no matter where it is located. It has all the desirable features of city gas with greater cooking speed at lower operating cost. It makes and burns its own gas from common low test gasoline, producing a clear, blue flame entirely free of smoke, soot and odor, not only while the stove is new but permanently.
