Lambs to Be Profit-Makers

Lambs promise to continue as one of the most profitable of farm products during the next two or three years, according to the Index of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Not only were more fed lambs marketed during the late winter and spring than last year, but the spring lamb crop is larger and came to market earlier. Besides the heavy receipts, the decline in the wool market since midwinter tended to reduce the value of lambs on the hoof. But prices are probably close to a level at which the entire new crop can be absorbed so that further declines, if any, will not be very severe.

HIGHER PRICES FOR HOGS LOOM

Washington, July 15—Short supplies of hogs for the next few months point to continued price advances through the late summer, the department of agriculture declared today in its June pig survey.
Hogs are just approaching the peak of their price cycle, the report said.
"During the next 12 months," it continued, "market receipts will be smaller than at any time since 1921 with prices probably higher than during the last 12 months. Judging from previous experience, the high prices, plus a larger supply of corn this year, probably will stimulate a considerable expansion in hog production during 1925, which will start the price cycle swinging downward once more."

GROWTH OF SALEM SCHOOLS REVEALS POPULATION GAINS

half hours in the shop and drawing class, which is given as one reason why the cost is so high. The detailed account, as listed by Mr. Hug, is as follows:

Six outstanding achievements brought about during the past five years are listed by Mr. Hug. They are as follows: 1. Definite purpose and stress of fundamentals. 2. Inauguration of a complete physical education program from the first grade through high school. 3. Provision for exceptional children by giving special instruction in special "opportunity rooms." 4. Classification of pupils according to ability. 5. Inauguration of complete health service and health education in cooperation with the Marion County Child Health Demonstration. 6. Increased and systematic expenditure of school funds.

Cy Williams of the Phillies, who was benched after going into a batting slump returned with a vengeance yesterday and smacked out a four-bagger with two on base in the eighth inning which enabled the Phillies to make it three out of four from the Cardinals.

Ken Williams of the Browns went into a three-cornered tie with Hartnett of the Cubs and Mussel of the Yankees for the runner-up honors to Hornsby of the Cardinals for the home run honors. The trio is tied with 21. Hornsby is leading with 23.

LINEN MILL HERE TO HAVE HUGE OUTPUT

In addition to giving out the foregoing information relative to the proposed mill, Col. Bartram also submitted the plan he has worked out for the handling of the flax in this section. He asserted at the present time there are nearly 4000 acres of flax in the valley, planted by about 300 different growers. Not 5 per cent of these growers are willing to purchase machinery, he stated.
Buying in groups, he stated, leads to trouble, and he asserts an early machine picking plan can be worked out. The entire absence of development is apt to be wrecked.
"To start with, my plan is to establish a number of scutching plants in say—Dallas, Independence, Monmouth, Rickreall, Albany, Stayton and Silverton," stated Col. Bartram. "Each of these plants will be separate and independent companies who the first year will contract to the farmers in their immediate district for about 500 acres of flax. The Oregon Linen Mills, Inc., will control each one of these plants."
"To handle about 500 acres of flax requires four or five pulling machines. The scutching mills will purchase and own the flax pulling machines. In their contract with the flax growers the scutching mills will agree to pull the flax subject to reasonable conditions and terms that will be set out in the contract. The advantages of this plan are too numerous to go into detail except to cite a few of them:
"1. It secures the raw product for the spinning mills now under consideration.
"2. It will eliminate the hazard, as far as possible, of the flax grower falling down in harvesting his flax and allow the flax to be harvested when the fibre content is at its best.
"3. It will control the acreage of flax planted, thereby eliminating dissatisfaction among growers against over production being introduced.
"4. The growers costs will be very much reduced and a heavy expense in machinery saved the individual farmer.
"5. It provides for the flax pulling machines to be serviced and reconditioned at a low cost. It will bring the whole problem of a competent and experienced management which will standardize operations and production."

SEAT ON FISH COMMISSION HELD VACANT

did not seek. I am very much gratified."
It is probable that the governor will consult Garland before appointing a man in his place.
Constitution Violated
The first section of the constitution violated in the appointment of Beals is that which divides the powers of the state government into the legislative, the executive (including the administrative), and the judicial, and provides that "no person charged with official duties under one of these departments shall exercise any of the functions of another." It is held that Beals as state senator and fish commissioner would be exercising both legislative and administrative duties.
The other article of the constitution violated is that which provides that "No person holding a lucrative office or appointment under the United States or under this state shall be eligible to a seat in the legislative assembly, etc."

JURY STILL OUT ON LIQUOR CASE

cause from Idaho, one from Texas and another from a place not brought out in the evidence. The trio met in Portland and arranged for a fishing trip, which landed them on the Walker place and consequently happened to bring them into the dragnet of the law. They all expressed ignorance of a still being on the place and declared they had no knowledge of a still there.

However, the state brought out the fact that the still was in full operation when the officers arrived on the scene, that at the request of Deputy Bremmer, Johnson went into the still house and shot off the still, indicating a perfect familiarity with the still and its operation, and it further was pointed out that one of the defendants secured his watch, which was hanging on a post in the still house, and another secured his knife, also from the still house. The state further brought out the fact that with the still in full operation these were the only ones about the place who could be operating it.

Walker was convicted as owner of the premises on which the still was found, but the other three men were prosecuted on the theory of being operators of the still.
The defense bore down on a point that A. C. Christensen, state agent, had testified that he worked out of the governor's office, but on the basis of being paid $100 for every still captured, and charged that an officer working on that basis would leave no stone unturned to bring about a conviction.
On the other hand the state

Shanghai—Thirteen boys, some of whom have been imprisoned in a filthy, airless sweat shop for six years, were identified and claimed by parents in the French mixed court here recently. The lucky youngsters were a part of a group of 31 rescued by the French police. The identification came as an interlude in the trial of Yu Fung-hong, proprietor of a workshop, accused, together with his wife, concubine, ayah and three other accomplices, of maintaining a slave pen in which the children in question worked from early morning until midnight, underfed, beaten and never allowed to see the light of day except such as filtered through a small barred window. Tales of torture for insufficient industry, attempted revolt or inability to labor on account of illness were told by the wails in a manner to bring tears to the eyes of listeners. Many of the children were stolen from their parents and sold to Yu for $5 each. Others were hired out as apprentices by parents little mindful of their fate. They were employed in making brass articles, glassware and matches which Yu disposed of in a store on Seward Road. Three or four died as a result of harsh treatment, the court was told.
