

SOLVE MYSTERY OF MURDER IN PARK AT BASEL

Basel, Switzerland, July 30.—(AP)—A sixteen year old boy has been arrested and charged with killing Mrs. Mary Levitt Bowen of Berkeley, Cal., who was found dead in a park near here yesterday. Police say he confessed but claimed he shot Mrs. Bowen accidentally.

Investigation revealed that Mrs. Bowen was killed by a revolver bullet.

Her jewelry and money were found upon her body. Mr. Bowen has labbed from Berkeley that the body of his wife will be cremated and the ashes shipped home.

Mrs. Bowen had arrived here a few days ago to attend lectures in the Basel university. She took a stroll early yesterday morning in the Woodland of a park about five miles outside the city, where her body was found. Marks upon the ground indicated she had crawled about 150 feet after being shot before she collapsed and died.

Berkeley, Cal., July 30.—Howard Bowen, retired Hawaiian sugar planter, was notified at his home here last night that his wife Mrs. Mary Bowen, was shot accidentally or by robbers while walking alone in the woods near Basel.

This information was contained in a cablegram from Dr. Wegmann Arahelm, who also said that police were investigating the mysterious case and that the consul had been informed.

MT. ANGEL MERCHANT WINS CONGOLEUM PRIZE

Mt. Angel, Or., July 30.—P. N. Smith, the local furniture man, received notice today that he was winner in the national congoleum contest, the prize being a $3000 Packard limousine given to the merchant in a city of 10,000 or under who puts in an attractive window display and brought out the best selling idea. It goes without saying that the selling idea which has already been adopted by dealers in Portland, Hood River, Salem and other Oregon towns is what brought home the bacon. The scheme was very successfully tried out locally and brought in to his store in about a week's time nearly 5000 full page colored magazine congoleum ads and created much live interest.

SCOTTY ALLEN'S ALASKAN DOG TEAMS AT BLIGH

That William Duncan, star in "Wolves of the North," Universal's penetratingly interesting chapter play, depicting strenuous life in the frozen Canadian wilderness, appearing at the Bligh theater today is a stunner for details accounts for the fact that the swiftest dog team in the world plays an important part in the cast. "Scotty" Allen's team, winner of several Alaskan sweepstakes matches against other fast dog teams on location, easily won the speed and endurance contests.

Seven dog teams were used in the production, which consumed fourteen months in the making, and all the sleds, harnesses, light and heavy toboggans were the real equipment formerly in daily practical use. When William Duncan and Edith Johnson were learning to drive dog teams, the services of "Scotty" Allen were secured and soon "Baldy Jr.," "Whitey," "El Graney," "The Blackboy," noted registered malamutes, became an obedient to the stars as they formerly were to "Scotty," exclusively. Other teams were made up from the kennels of Mrs. E. T. Darling of Berkeley and Seattle.

BRICKLAYERS NOT LIMITED SAYS OFFICIAL

M. B. Reilly, district manager of the Pacific Northwest Brick Manufacturers' association, has sent a letter to the state board of control laying the board for the attitude it has taken, and statements made public relative to the use of brick in the construction of public buildings.

The board took the position that concrete rather than brick would have to be used in the construction of a new dormitory at the state institution for feeble-minded for the reason that the high wages demanded by bricklayers, the demand for a Saturday half-holiday by the workmen and the limit placed on the number of bricks laid in a day made it prohibitive to use brick, even though the brick could be furnished by the state prison. The board stated that bricklayers demanded $10 to $12 a day and $8 a day for helpers.

"I wish to state emphatically, as a representative of the brick industry, that these statements, whether they are the belief of your state board of control or not, they are absolutely false," says Mr. Reilly's letter.

"In the first place, a bricklayer works a full eight-hour day, the same as any individual. Whenever you get the idea that his hours are any shorter than this, you are being sadly misinformed. It is almost inconceivable to me to understand how you can believe that a limit be placed on the amount of brick laid in a day's time. If you gave it even a second's thought, you should see how absolutely absurd it is to think for a minute that it could be true. It is just as logical to believe that a limit is placed on your own production. Why is it that the bricklayers and the brick industry are always held up as examples of "robbers" because statements are made that are not true? The bricklayer's wage is a just one, for the work he performs, and he does his work well, without condemning or criticising others—whom he is helping to support by paying his taxes like the rest of us.

"In justice to the brick industry of the state, the misstatements you have been led to believe as true should be retracted, and a thorough investigation of facts should be made in the future before such erroneous opinions are formed, and publicity given to them."

COAL STRIKE IN BRITAIN LIKELY

London, July 30.—(AP)—The chances for averting the threatened British coal strike seems depressed today. Negotiations between coal mine owners and workers, meeting separately with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, were resumed this morning in a gloomy atmosphere. Leaders of both sides after meeting the premier, spoke pessimistically of the prospect.

"The hope for a settlement is farther off than it has ever been before," A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, said.

W. A. Lee, secretary of the mining association of Great Britain, representing the owners, said there was not "a ghost of a chance" that the owners would withdraw their demands for two weeks to permit a continuation of negotiations with the workers for that period.

The "demands" refer to the owners' insistence upon a new working agreement involving longer hours and lower wages to supplant the present agreement, which expires tomorrow. The miners have refused to accept and have ordered a strike effective at the expiration of the present agreement.

It is man's weakness which makes him sociable. It is our common miseries which draw our hearts to humanity.

Your Motor's Mile-Power Depends on Economical Motor Oil

And here's a paradox: The best oil for your motor is by no means the highest-priced. Nor is its economy confined to its cost. It saves most in motor up-keep.

You've paid a high price for motor oil thinking thus to get quality-insurance. With most things, this would be true. But not so with motor oils.

Aristo Motor Oil, for example, is one of the first quality. It is produced in California, by refining methods of the highest order and with the most modern facilities.

It sells for almost half the price of eastern oils.

And for the very simple reason that it is produced in volume, and carries no heavy freight costs from the east.

Aristo is a rare lubricant. It combats the formation of carbon. And this is its greatest saving. You can pay saving as much and not get as good motor oil as Aristo. Sold at Union Oil service stations and independent dealers of the first class everywhere.
