FISH KNOW THEIR FRIEND AND EAT FROM HIS HAND

a doughnut to his fish, with a small group of interested spectators looking on. No sooner had he placed his hand, containing the doughnut, under the water's surface than his pets began to swarm about, tackling the piece of food as voraciously as any 5-year-old child.

"It's a lucky thing these are chubs, and not bass or trout," said Spong, continuing to hold his empty hand in the water. They were swimming up and nipping his fingers. "If they were bass or trout there soon wouldn't be much left of my fingers, but these fellows haven't got any teeth."

The fish, continuing to swarm about, getting in one another's way, and churning the water continually, showed an average length estimated at 8 inches. Some were nearly a foot long. Spong slowly raised his hand, scooping one of the creatures up in it. It offered no resistance, and after bringing it to the surface the captain allowed it to slip out of his grasp and join its fellows.

"That's the way they act," he said, "with a fellow when they know he won't hurt 'em."

Others have tried to feed the same fish the same food in the same way, but without success. They trust no one but Spong. The uninitiated sometimes find it hard to believe that a mere fish can tell the difference between persons, but such is obviously the case. They will accept bread or similar food from strangers only if thrown to the surface of the water, and then only after hesitating. They have been betrayed a few times by people who cast food to them with a hook concealed in the food and a line attached to the hook. Once or twice this summer small boys have sneaked up to the boathouse and caught several of the chubs in that manner.

FRENCH DENY PEACE TERMS GIVEN RIFFS

thorship of the document is thought to be part of the Riffian leader's policy aimed to keep up political agitation in France and to present the peace terms in such a light as to make them look unacceptable to the French socialists. This policy, it is stated, also is aimed to raise questions which are likely to cause international difficulties in the settlement of a new regime for the troubled zone of Morocco.

These alleged terms are outlined by the correspondent of the Matin Tetuin, Spanish Morocco, as follows:

Terms Outlined

First, that Abd-el-Krim recognize the spiritual authority of the sultan of Morocco and his successors.

Second, that France and Spain recognize the administrative authority of the Riffian territory.

Third, that the Riffian state will be allowed a sufficient police force to maintain order, this force to be officered by the French.

Fourth, that the enlarged zones of Ceuta and Melilla become the absolute property of Spain.

Fifth, that the Rift state shall be contained in the boundary on the west by a line passing not less than 12 miles east of the Tangier-Fez river on the south by the courses of the rivers Ourgha and Lukkos which would be joined by an imaginary line.

Sixth, that the coast zone between the Atlantic and the aforementioned line east of the railroad and the Lukkos to the south be either returned to the Tangier zone or divided between Tangier, which would take the northern half and the French zone, to take the southern half.

PIERCE IN AIR IN KLAMATH PROSECUTION

take up the Klamath county prosecution when I return. Good-bye."

Asked if he was pleased or displeased at Van Winkle's action, the governor good-humoredly told newspapermen to use their own judgment about that. "I have done my duty under the law," he said.

The indictments against the three officials he interpreted as "backwash from the wets." Levens he said, is at Klamath Falls urging that his case go to trial.

Elliott was indicted in connection with the disposal of some sugar confiscated several months ago in a liquer raid while he was special prosecutor. It developed here today that Elliott had communicated with the attorney general about the sugar, asking if he should destroy it. Van Winkle, says the governor advised him not to destroy it, but to sell it and giv the money to charity if there were no other legal method of using the money.

Indicted For Gun

Levens was indicted on a charge of larceny of a revolver. This was taken from a Mexican whose place was raided by Levens and several county and city officials, Levens, according to his story, informing the Mexican that since he was not an American citizen he had no right to the gun.

McBride was indicted on a charge of malfeasance in office in connection with the alleged failure to make return on a search warrant.
