INDIANS FIRST OF U. S. CHEMISTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 7.—(A. P.)—James A. Braungan of Philadelphia put the Indian on a pedestal of science at the American Chemical society's sessions here today with the declaration that the American aborigine was the first chemist on this continent.

The Indian, said Braungan, knew nothing of chemistry and geology as we understand those terms, but he was quick to take advantage of chemical combinations and geological conditions in his surroundings.

To prove his point, the Philadelphia cited his method of making flint arrowheads, spears and knives by using a piece of bone secured or soaked in ash and water. He also pointed to the Indians ability to tan hides, make glue from fish scales, water proof canoe seams with pitch, temper clay for pottery and dye his clothing.

MAZAMA LEADER INJURED ON MOUNTAIN

Portland, Or., Aug. 7.—John D. Scott, leader of a Portland party of the Mazama club, which set out this week to scale Jefferson mountain, and is being carried on an improvised stretcher along the Skyline trail. His bearers left Concepcion camp, in Jefferson park at 7 a. m. today and intend taking him to Government Camp, from where he can be brought to Portland by automobile.

Reports by telephone from a member of the party, relayed through many layers, said Scott jumped into a snow field to get out of the way of a falling rock chimney, that he slid to the bottom of the field, and there struck a large rock. One hip was badly hurt.

"PAY UP OR GO TO JAIL" SAYS JUDGE WHO WALKS OUT

cept it. The former wife, Greta Olson, recently secured issuance of a bench warrant bringing Olson to show why he should not pay up or answer for contempt.

Olson testified today that he owned a 10-acre tract on the Wallace road, that he secured but little money from it, that he worked at odd jobs about four months of the year and was absolutely unable to pay the $5 a month assessed against him.

He started he had been married just a week ago today, his new wife appearing to be scarcely over 16 years of age, although her age was not made a part of the record. Olson stated there was a mortgage of $4000 against the place. On cross-examination Olson stated a $1000 mortgage was in a federal loan and the other $3000 from his brother, Harvey Olson. He attempted to refuse to answer when questioned as to the mortgage from his brother, but the court made his answer. Olson hesitated in his replies as the cross-examination began to go to why a mortgage of $2000 was given to his brother when he had bought the place for only $1400.

At this juncture Judge McMahon interfered with the proceedings.

"I have heard enough and know the facts in the case," he declared. "The country is full of fellows running around, able bodied men who marry a woman, have children by her and then leave her to support the children. They then hunt around in new pastures, and marry another woman. They are morally irresponsible. This fellow here can either pay up or go to jail. I don't want to hear any more evidence in this case."

Telling the attorneys they could go ahead and take all the testimony they pleased, the judge walked out of the room.

After a hurried conference agreement was reached that Olson's father would put up the money to pay back expenses to keep the son out of jail, and there the case rests.

SUNSHINE GIRL ILL IN VERMONT

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Aug. 7.—(A. P.)—Dorothy Sunshine Browning, 9-year-old adopted daughter of Edward W. Browning, wealthy New York real estate operator, has been ill for days at the May House, a summer camp for girls overlooking Crystal lake at Barton, and does not know of the controversy regarding the adopting by her foster father of Mary Louise Spas. Her ailment is diagnosed by physicians as summer gripe.

Copies of newspapers containing references to the adoption have been kept from the child, who was taken into the Browning family seven years ago. She told associates at the camp that her father had promised to adopt a little sister for her and said she had received the same information from Miss Coburn, who conducts the school on Riverside Drive, New York, where Dorothy attends Browning's last visit to the camp was on June 1. Dorothy writes to him every week but he never replies to her letters, she said. She receives her information regarding her foster father from Miss Kathryn Wilcox, principal of Miss Coburn's school.
