Portland, Aug. 18.—The peach market is generally steady with prices unchanged, and the peak of the season is expected by the latter part of this week with the arrival of the Yakima libertas. The Dalles also reports a good crop of Elliptica with the size and color ranging good. Buyers are paying the growers around 30 cents today.

If the weather remains cool the crop will be prolonged and prices will remain steady, but a sudden turn to warm weather will throw the crop on the market and force prices down.

Slightly firmer tone is noted in the local egg market. No change is shown in the local butter situation and the market is generally steady with demand and supply well balanced.

PEAR SHIPPING PASSES PEAK IN ROGUE VALLEY

The Medford pear season has passed its peak, according to Earl Peary who has just returned from there, and the cold storage plant is full. He states that shipping of Bartlett's has started, it being decided to take a chance on the market picking up. It is estimated about 1000 cars of Bartlett's will be shipped.

The Anjou crop, states Peary, is especially good, there being a heavy crop and the pears are large and uniform and prices are high. It is believed considerable money will be made out of the Anjou this year.

Peary was unable to say how many Bosc pears will be produced in the valley, although they are rather small as a crop, but they will command out of sight prices this year, apparently, and he states in one 10-acre orchard, he saw fresh, clean straw spread over the entire orchard to a depth of from six to eight inches so that not a single pear would be lost in dropping from the trees.

SEEK HYPNOTIST REPORTED HERE

Somewhere in Salem is a hypnotist for whom a Portland woman yearns. The chamber of commerce has received a communication from Mrs. E. C. O'Neill, Front and Market streets, Portland, who states that she was talking with a Salem woman recently and the Salem woman advised her that Salem possesses a hypnotist of rare power. The Salem woman had forgotten the name and address of this hypnotist, but she was sure there was such an animal here.

Mrs. O'Neill, in her letter, advised that she is an elderly woman and is quite deaf. She gathered from the economists of the Salem woman that the hypnotist here, who seemingly is hiding his light under a bushel, can cure her of her deafness. Consequently Mrs. O'Neill wishes him to be advised that she has need of his services, but insists that he must furnish his own subjects, whatever that means.

FLORIDA ISLAND QUIET LAND ROW SLUMBERING Tampa, Fla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Peace reigns over Marco Island in the "hot land" controversy early today, following the concealing of arms by guards yesterday. How long the quiet will last is a question that neither the settlers on the island, in disagreement with Baron G. Collier, New York advertising man, over possession of certain lands on the island, or backers of Collier can answer. Both sides expressed the belief that trouble may break out again at the slightest provocation. However, no guns are seen on the island today. The announcement that T. Havell, acting commissioner of public lands, with a federal agent, will visit the island to help iron out the difficulties is believed to have been responsible for the armistice.

VIENNA POLICE ARE TO PROTECT ZIONIST MEET

Vienna, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The police of Vienna will protect the world Zionist congress, now holding its fourteenth session here. Deputy Police Chief Tausch said today following the anti-Semitic rioting last night in which two persons were killed and between 50 and 60 injured. The police are confident that they have plenty of reserves to cope with any emergency. The situation has been quiet today.

"It will be the pride of the police to redeem the pledge given by the Austrian government for the absolute security of the congress," Tausch said. Another police official today declared:

"Everybody here knows that we cannot afford a civil war. Austria because the Czechs would make it a pretext to walk into Vienna."

The trouble broke out last night and fierce fighting ensued in the Freigheplatz between the police and members of the Hakenkreuzer or Swastika organization. An anti-Semitic protest meeting, called as a demonstration against the holding of the Zionist congress here had been forbidden by the police but the organizers placarded the city, urging resistance. Processions moved through the streets headed by men carrying crosses and including bands of girls, while with banners proclaiming Vienna a Christian city.

The Jews left the streets at an early hour and the stores and cafes put up their shutters. Riots ceased with the police guarding the meeting place of the congress. Numbers of policemen were dragged from their horses and trampled underfoot.

The police in turn attacked at the rioters with their swords, driving back the crowds besieging them. Many women were knocked down and trampled in the melee.

The second band of demonstrators rushed the bridge leading to the Jewish districts, but they were amply protected and the attackers were forced to content themselves with shouting riotous songs and threats.

The disorders continued until after midnight. The police reported 16 arrests. Concealed weapons were found on many of those detained.

CONS ESCAPE POSSES THRU DARING MOVE

Cons Newman had returned to Oregon City, fifteen miles south of here, and given the alarm. The Newmans were awakened, the family automobile was wheeled out of the garage and the cons drove their machine in and closed the door, leaving the Newman car the only one in sight. The outlaws then entered the house and demanded food after which they settled down to await evening to continue their flight.

Commandeered Auto. About 6:30 a clock in the afternoon the convicts continued their drive to Portland. Young Newman was forced to drive from New Era to Portland with two rifles against his shoulders. Leo Wildo, his friend, was held in the rear seat with the outlaws. Newman drove to Tenth and Washington streets, where Murray ordered him to stop. There the three climbed out and Murray gave this parting message to young Newman: "Get to hell out of here and don't try to talk to any cop you see on the street. I may be right behind you with a gun, and you know I'll use it."

The youth made no effort to see a policeman. He drove out across Hawthorne bridge and after locating the street leading to the highway, headed straight for home. Joke Among Selves. The elder Newman, describing the convicts arrival at his place, said their first demand was for food, backed up by a display of guns. Then they cleaned up, laughing and joking the while about their success in eluding the posses which have been combing a wide area ever since their break for liberty. Newman said Murray, who was wounded in the shooting at the prison last Wednesday, was not seriously hurt. He said the bandit joked about his injuries. "Today the police are making every effort to locate the convicts but so much time elapsed between the arrival in Portland of Newman's car and the moment when the authorities were notified of the convicts presence that the officers are experiencing difficulty in starting the chase. Police marvel at the audacity of the fugitives in picking out the busiest street of Portland in which to start the latest phase of their flight. Laugh at Reports. While at the Newman place yesterday the escaped convicts read a copy of a Portland paper which told of Murray being badly wounded and that officers regarded as a clue the fact that buzzards were hovering about the area in which the outlaws were believed to be hiding. Murray was hugely amused as he read the account. "Best joke I ever read," he chuckled. "Gee, I wasn't badly wounded. Just got

TWO GUARDS REFUSED TO SHOOT CONS

Guard NeSmith, also in the turnkey's office at the time of the break, had a revolver within easy reach but failed to get it for use although he had plenty of time to do so. Statements that if the guards in towers one and seven had shot sooner the break might not have been successful came from Robert Crawford, Peter White, Charles McKinley, E. C. Charleton, and S. B. Sandifer.

Guard White testified that he was in the turnkey's office when Murray rushed in brandishing a knife and telling him that he failed to obey instructions he would "cut his heart out." When Murray noticed Davidson and NeSmith in the office on the other side of the room he turned to cover them and White, who was standing near the door, fled and ran to the front of the building. There he found Kelly and Willos coming down the rope. After finding that he could not get out of the gate to get a gun, White went back to where the two had reached the ground and putting his hand in his pocket as though he had a gun ordered the two to put up their hands. They did and for several minutes stood thus until Jones came out of the arsenal and told them to get their guns.

Had Chance To Shoot. Questioned by District Attorney Carson, White declared that he had noticed both guard towers and that Holman in number 1 and Hubbard in number 7 both had their guns trained on the two convicts in front of him. "I wanted them to shoot so I stepped back a few feet to give them a clear shot and motioned to Hubbard to shoot," White related. Hubbard in number 7 made no response.

That both Holman and Hubbard had warning of the break was given in the testimony of Robert Crawford, head of the flap plant, who was trapped out in the yard when he hounded the south corner of the west wing by Murray who ordered him not to move. "When I first saw Murray and the rope dangling at the front of the building I holloed 'break!' at the top of my lungs," Crawford declared. When Murray finally left him to go to the arsenal after a gun, Crawford ran into the basement of the administration building and it was not until after three or four minutes from the time that he entered the basement that he heard the shooting begin, he testified.

cause Willos had been in a cell facing the back of the prison and wanted to come to a front cell on account of the "front view."

When Oregon Jones, Murray, and Kelly were returned from their daring break in March 1924 they were not placed in the "bull pen" or given any kind of discipline. Carey testified. He asserted that the man had been placed near each other because the place was more easily seen by the chapel guard than any other place in the prison. More revelations are scheduled for today when evidence will be taken from other guards.

The rifle marksmanship of guards at the prison came up for criticism during the testimony of John Davidson. Davidson was asked by District Attorney Carson if the guards had regular rifle practice and if he knew what their marksmanship average was. The guard replied that practice was held twice a month. No standard of ability was required of guards, he declared. Targets 9 1/2 inches in diameter were used for free style practice at a hundred yards. "Are the guards good shots," he was asked by Carson. "Some are and some aren't. There are some pretty good ones and some pretty bad ones." Asked to explain the proportion between them he replied that they were about "fifty-fifty" of good shots and "those who weren't."

As far as he recalled, he declared, Holman and Hubbard were not good shots, Holman averaging about one out of five hits on the 9 1/2-inch bullseye at 100 yards. Sweney was an average shot, he judged.

Warden Dalrymple, it was said, was the first warden to place an extra man in the arsenal during the dinner hour when the line passes through the chapel. It was his intention that this extra guard have a gun, and the guard did carry one until a month ago when Charles Charleton, principal keeper, ordered Davidson not to take a gun into the turnkey's office.

Given "Front View" More evidence on prison rules and customs which the administration must soon explain was given by George Robinson, chapel guard, who declared that despite the fact that the Jones-Murray gang was noted for its desperateness, Oregon Jones and Ellsworth Kelly were permitted to live in the same cell and all of the four men involved in this break were celled in the same tier of the same ward in the same wing. James Willos, he declared, had been moved near the rest less than a month ago from the south wing to the north wing. James R. Carey, head chapel guard, responsible for the change and the ceiling, had previously denied that Jones and Kelly celled together and had declared that he moved Willos be-
