HARVEST CREWS GATHER FOR HOP PICKING

WELFARE WORK IN HOP YARDS HELPS PICKERS

The vanguard of the harvest crew of 2000 employed by the E. Clemens Horst Eola Ranch for hop picking is now in cabins and tents awaiting the starting gong, scheduled for Tuesday morning. More than 500 persons have been on the ranch since Wednesday evening.

Nearly 200 tents have been erected by the Horst company, and their ten cabins of 20 units each have also been filled to capacity through registration. Large areas are provided for those who bring their own tents.

A recreation program will be begun tonight by J. C. Henderson of Portland, who arrived this morning to take charge of the third successive year. Mrs. Henderson and a group of trained welfare and recreation directors will assist in the program.

The first copy of the Daily Boxfull, harvest camp newspaper, will be distributed this evening.

Kindergartens for children from two to 10 will be opened Tuesday. This plan of assisting parents to work in the fields without interruption has proved very satisfactory since its inception two years ago, and the ranch management has gone a step further in arranging for free distribution of milk twice a day to the children.

This type of welfare work in hop yard camps was begun by the management of the Eola ranch without precedent, and worked out step by step until it has attracted nation wide attention. The survey, social progress and playground are three national publications that have devoted several pages to detailed accounts of the successful educational and recreational program of this Willamette valley ranch.

"The employers found the results of this service highly satisfactory," reports the Social Progress for August, 1925. "Out of 1200 pickers, not one drew his time until the final day, and more large pay checks were issued than ever before in the history of the company."

A large number of tourists are completing their summer trip with a 20 day stay in the hop yard camp. Auto license plates from nearly every state in the United States are already on the ranch.

HUGE BEAN PACK BEING PUT UP BY VALLEY PLANTS

One of the largest bean packs in the history of Oregon is being canned this year at the various canneries according to Ernest H. Wiegand, professor of horticultural products at the Oregon Agricultural college. Professor Wiegand and James C. Bell, his assistant, have just returned from a trip on which they visited the Willamette valley canneries. The trip taken was through Independence, Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Portland, and up and down the Columbia river. Fruit and vegetable canneries and two fish plants were visited.

"Many of the beans packed along the Columbia river are among the best ever produced anywhere in this state," says Professor Wiegand. "The product is of fine quality, stringless, and of exceptional color. Most of the beans are being grown on the delta land and show the effect of good moisture supply. Pears are also coming in rapidly now and there will be a big pack of very fine quality. The blackberry pack will be quite large as coast communities are being solicited for this fruit.

"Interesting data are being obtained on the exhaust boxes and rotary cookers at the college laboratory. In this connection the equipment of the Anderson-Barngrover Manufacturing company is being used for experimental purposes. A report on some of this work will be given out this season which will be of interest to all canners."

Work at the experimental plant has been going on actively this season. Some experimental work has been conducted on strawberry varieties, bean varieties, carrots and beets. One of the major problems at present is determining the effect of canning time on the increase of sugar in the syrup. Almost a thousand cans have been packed to give data on this particular problem.

AUTO CRASH FATAL TO PORTLAND MAN

MARKETS CLOSE STEADY; CALL FOR POULTRY FIRMER

Portland, Aug. 29—Local produce markets showed many changes during the past week, some commodities working higher while others broke badly. At the close today the market was generally steady at ruling levels with no radical changes in sight for Monday.

Dairy products displayed a healthy tone during most of the week although the butter market was easier at times with the scramble for supplies not so keen. Prices, however, held steady and unchanged both on cubes and prints.

Fresh eggs advanced closing from 1 to 2 cents higher on the exchange. Extras made the greatest gain, going from 39 cents to 41 cents at the close. Current receipts, too, were in demand with 31 cents net posted at the close today. Pullets and firsts are a cent higher than a week ago.

Country killed meats turned easier with the change in the weather and the lower trend at the yards. Receipts of both pork and veal were a trifle heavier this week and prices closed fractionally lower. Sixteen cents is the general top on choice light veal although real 'fancy stuff will bring the half occasionally. Choice light hogs dropped to 19 cents although 19½ cents is still obtained in exceptional cases.

Live poultry is firmer in all lines with a brisk call for everything but light hens. Receipts are not so heavy and arrivals more out well. Light hens still holding around 15 cents with heavy hens up to 23 and 24 cents. Live springs range from 22 to 25 cents. White pekin ducks also selling up to 25 cents.

Cantaloupes were firm at $1.25 a crate this morning and the demand good for high quality stock.

Peaches too, were plentiful the first of the week with 14 to 16 carloads on the team track. Elbertas sold as low as 80 to 90 cents in large quantities. Today the market is improving and buyers are looking for good quality peaches and willing to pay the price.

SLOPER SELLS CLUSTER HOPS AT 19 CENTS

Sale to the Wolfe Hop company of 40,000 pounds of this year's clusters by Sloper brothers of Independence for 19 cents is considered another record for this year's crop. Sloper brothers expect to have about 120,000 pounds on their ranch this year.

Speaking of hop developments in the Independence section, the Independence Enterprise of yesterday says:

Picking of late hops will be started generally next week, John Titus was probably the first to begin harvesting clusters in this district. He started Tuesday, which is an unusually early date, but this was due to early maturity and a desire to avoid interruption after finishing the fuggle picking.

The E. Clemens Horst company started picking operations Thursday on a limited scale, harvesting two yards, one which had been trained and another which had not been touched. Both of these fields were left in this condition as experiments. A premium is given on the ordinary price for handling these hops.

Marvin Richardson of Portland arrived at the Horst ranch this week to take up his work as editor of the "Boxful" a mimeographed daily publication for the picking season.

Prof. O. D. Byers of Westport, Oregon, is here for a week or two for the purpose of directing an innovation in hop picking. He has been engaged to give instructions in hop picking at the Horst ranch. An experienced picker from the days of old, the management of the ranch is satisfied his services will be profitable to the inexperienced picker as well as to some with experience. It requires some training to pick hops rapidly as well as properly. Mr. Byers arrived here Tuesday accompanied by Mrs. Byers and daughter, and will remain until his school at Westport opens on September 7.

A heavy rain Sunday caused hop trellis in many yards to give away. A large acreage was flattened, necessitating a lot of repairing, which was handled vigorously. There was very little wind but the vines are so heavily loaded with hops that the additional weight of the water was too heavy a strain on the trellis. Among the yards with varying acreage flattened were those of the Wigrich, George M. Werline, Dewey Hill, Horst company, Mitoma.

Early hop picking was started at the Wigrich Tuesday and will be finished about the middle of next week. Picking of late hops will be started without much if any interruption.

V. M. DeCoster expects to finish his picking today.

FARMERS URGED TO PUT ORDERS FOR PYROTOL IN

Marion and Polk county farmers may place their orders for pyrotol at carlot rates with the United States National bank of Salem, Also with the Bank of Woodburn at Woodburn and for those nearer Silverton, with the Coolidge & McClain bank of Silverton.

"It is very important that orders be placed as early as possible," says F. E. Price, who arranged the pooling centers for the college extension service and in charge of distribution in Oregon. "It requires at least a month to get the explosive after the orders for a car have been pooled."

The cost of this explosive to Oregon users will be around $8 per 100 pounds. It is supplied by the federal department of agriculture merely for the costs of cartridging it for farm use, and for shipping and handling. County agents handle the distribution in their counties, and to make it possible for farmers in non-county agent counties to share in the benefits of this cheap and powerful explosive certain banks have offered to take orders with no profit to themselves. This makes possible a saving of many thousands of dollars to Oregon farmers.

Pyrotol is made from surplus war material and was used largely by Oregon farmers last year in land clearing. The contract with the government specifies that orders must be placed in not less than car lots. This keeps down freight charges, but makes necessary the pooling of many orders.

BROWN ROT HITS VALLEY PRUNES

O. A. C. Experiment Station, Corvallis, Aug. 29—Severe losses from prune brown rot are indicated in western Oregon this year in numerous observations by extension horticulturalists. Growers who spray for it immediately will probably net a large profit on the costs of application. While infection cannot be entirely prevented it can be materially reduced by thoroughly covering the fruit with spray.

Either a bordeaux mixture 2-2-50 to which case in streader may be added if desired, or atomic sulfur 12 pounds to 100 gallons of water, or Oregon cold mix 8-4-50.
