Mayor John F Hylan

BETS PLACED THAT HYLAN CANNOT WIN

for many years. Mayor Hylan has quoted Murphy in death bed praise of the Hylan administration.

In supporting Walker, Governor Smith and Tammany have thrown overboard a man elected mayor twice with tremendous majorities against the opposition of the leading newspapers of the city except Mr. Hearst's.

Wall Street betting odds are from 3½ to 4½ to 1 against Hylan.

Tammany leaders predict Walker's victory by 100,000 votes, assuming that 50 per cent of the 794,652 eligible democratic voters, will go to the polls. John C. Cohalan, campaign manager, predicts a similar victory for the mayor.

It is admitted on both sides that the mayor's strength is in his home borough of Brooklyn and Richmond and in Queens. Tammany is strong in the other two boroughs, Manhattan and the Bronx.

The Monticello, United States government dredge, is working on Duke's bar in the channel of the Willamette river, a short distance above Brentano's landing, today. With the Mathioma, the second dredge, working on Thomey's bar only a few miles farther down the stream, completion of clearing the route to Salem from Portland is expected within a few days. Weston's bar, between the points where the two dredges are working, was opened several months ago by the Dayton digger. After Duke's and Thomey's bars are finished, the only remaining bar between the two dredges, which are working toward each other, will be at Fairfield. With the bar there opened the Northwestern will be able to come through to Salem with a light load, it is believed, but will probably not resume its run to Salem until Rice's bar and the so called labor exchange bar, immediately below Salem, are cut through.

Benjamin J. Kimber, county secretary of the YMCA, spoke at the Lake Brook hop yard yesterday evening. The state training school band gave a concert in the afternoon.

The offices of Becke & Hendricks, local real estate dealers, will be moved Tuesday from their present location to 189 north High, the new Heilig theater having been remodelled to give room facing on High street.

Jacob Dietz of Portland, who was arrested 10 days ago for driving while intoxicated, resulting in a wreck at one end of the Newberg bridge, will have his hearing in justice court here at 10 a. m. tomorrow, it was announced this afternoon. Dietz's wife and small son were both injured in the wreck.

Nate Elliott, secretary of the Salem Kiwanis club, left yesterday for Vancouver, B. C., to attend the district convention of Kiwanis clubs there.

TENNIS WINNERS IN FIRST GAMES

Survivors in the first round of play in the Salem city tennis tournament, which began at the state hospital courts Saturday, were announced this afternoon by Ivan White, in charge of the tournament, as follows:

Lutz defeated West, 6-0, 6-1.
White defeated Tavenner, 6-0, 6-2.
Okerberg defeated Minto, 9-7, 11-9.
Creech defeated Greenbaum, 6-0, 6-2.
Lutz defeated White, 6-2, 6-0.
Bates defeated Curry, 6-1, 6-0.
Nunn defeated Lyons, 6-0, 6-4.
White and Lutz defeated Minto and Creech, 6-4, 6-1.

Today's schedule includes a match between Ketchum and Lynch at 4 p. m., and a match between Emmel and Nunn at the same time. At 5 o'clock the second doubles match of the tourney will be played, Mathis and Ketchum playing Nunn and Blatchford. At 6 p. m. Greenbaum and Curry will meet Emmel and Mickey.

Of the matches played so far in the tournament, the one between Okerberg, University of Oregon racket wielder, and Minto, local high school star, stands out as the most closely contested, both sets won by Okerberg, going to duece. Okerberg is a former Salem high man.

Sensation of Being "Dead" While Living Is Told By Rodgers

Honolulu, H. I., Sept. 14.—(By Associated Press.) — Commander John Rodgers today told something of the sensation of being alive, drifting at sea, while picking up messages telling that agreement had been reached by searching officials that he had died when his seaplane, the PN-9 No. 1 struck the water after being forced down by lack of gasoline.

Commander Rodgers today had recovered his old springy stride, an indication that he was returning to his former alert, dynamic physical condition. He twitted newspapermen about their enterprice in covering the flight of the PN-9 No. 1.

"You newspapermen are all right," said Captain John. "I'll give you credit. You are on the job and I like a fellow who is on the job. You made a good job of consigning me and my crew to the deep—and then you made a fine job of it when you resurrected me."

"How does it feel to be 'dead' and then come to life again?" the commander was asked.

"It's a wonderful sensation," he replied. "There's one advantage of being 'dead.' You soon learn what the world thinks of you. If what was said when you were 'dead' is favorable, than it's a pleasure to return to life.

"While we were out there sailing along, we often heard how our plane had dropped to the bottom of the ocean. We picked up messages of condolence; we heard bitter words tossed about; we heard suggestions as to how the 'accident' could have been prevented. We heard very clearly the radio expressions and explanation of how our plane plunged downward the moment we landed. So we decided that those who had not seen us go down knew more about it than we did—and then we resigned ourselves to the inevitable for the time being.

"Having no way to answer back, we didn't. We just came back."

Turning to the future and his plans to finish the flight by flying his plane from the island of Kauai to Honolulu, thus completing the air cruise, Commander Rodgers said:

"The plane is not damaged. We took some of the fabric from one of the wings in order to rig up a sail and we used some woodwork as fuel when distilling water, but aside from this the ship is in perfect condition.

"Whether I will finish the flight or not depends upon conditions, but if I have my way about it, I'll finish it."

"How are you feeling?"

"Oh, all right—just fine—I'll make a bee-line for the hospital when I get away from you fellows," he said, addressing the reporters. "Over at the hospital they have a valid, or at least a plausible excuse for keeping you out," he added chuckling heartily.

Commander Rodgers, when referring to plans for the future, did not indicate that he was aware of the issuance of orders directing that he return to the mainland aboard the U. S. S. California. He said he knew of no definite arrangements for his return.

"But I want to get back as quickly as possible," he said.

PIONEERS TO SEE FILM "IRON HORSE" AT HEILIG TUESDAY

It was in the late sixties when the first steel in this part of the country was laid from downtown Salem to the fairgrounds. The state fair was to suit swing and Mrs. Bowen was camping there with her mother, Mrs. C. L. Pooler, and other members of the family. The greatest excitement prevailed when the little engine and car steamed and puffed up to the fair grounds. The price of one ride from Salem to the fair grounds was fifty cents.

Another of Salem's interesting pioneers who will be a guest of the Journal tomorrow is J. F. Savage, who came to Oregon from Missouri in a covered wagon in 1850. Mrs. S. E. Woodington has been an Oregonian since '52. She also is going to view the building of the railroad through the country that she crossed nearly twenty years before. J. P. and A. W. Veatch, father and son, have lived in Salem since the year that the Civil War was ended. They were among the first to make reservations. Mrs. Bertha Carlson who has lived near Aumsville since 1862, Mrs. Susan Cullinger who came in '69, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Woolery who were Tacoma pioneers in '69 and have lived in Salem since '92, Anney Gesner Davidson who was born in Salem in 1859, Doris Shelberg who was born here in 1868, Mrs. Ruth E. Sayre and Mrs. F. M. Chittenden, pioneers of '53 and '70, Mrs. M. A. Bunce, here since 1865, J. A. C. Brant, a native of '54, Frances B. Muckers Herrin and Kate Muckers Herrin, Mrs. Melissa Broodenberg here since '62, Mr. and Cora Gibson, Salem pioneers, and Mrs. M. A. Peck, a northwest pioneer, are others who this morning communicated their desire to see "The Iron Horse" to members of the Capital Journal force.

The Fred M. Powell Motor company will furnish cars tomorrow to bring the "old timers" who other wise would be unable to come, to and from the Heilig tomorrow. Archie Holt, Heilig manager, has reserved a special section for the pioneers. Further reservations may be phoned to the journal, at 52, until two o'clock tomorrow when the doors will open.

The Heilig theater opened here Saturday evening with a record attendance. Long waiting lines were admitted to the remodelled theater for the showings of "The Iron Horse" both Saturday night and yesterday. The picture will be shown here for the last time on Thursday evening.

John Charge and Arthur Hutcheon will give a bagpipe duet at the program to be given at Lake Brook hop yard tonight. John Charge, recently moved here from Scotland, has played his pipes before the present King George of England on several occasions. He now lives with his relatives in Polk county. Arthur Hutcheon is also recently from Scotland. Robert Hutcheon, local paint dealer, will give a monologue. His daughter, Miss Marjorie Hutcheon, will dance the Highland Fling. Jim Smart, local singer of Scotch songs will sing several numbers.

Dr. George H. Alden of Willamette university arrived in Salem late last night from his summer's vacation, lasting some 3 months, during which he, with his wife and mother in law, went across the continent to Maine and back by automobile. Dr. Alden made the trip from Montana to Salem alone, the other members of the party coming on from that point by train.

A supplementary payroll was received by Captain Paul Hendricks of Co. F, local unit of the 162nd infantry today. The money covers two drills which the company took during the past quarter, but which were not credited to it at the time the last payroll was made up, Captain Hendricks states. Every member of the company will receive a small portion of the fund.

SAYS ARREST OF STANFIELD IS FRAME UP

his schedule of the senate hearings.

Baker, Sept. 14—(AP)—Opinion in Baker is divided today as a result of the arrest of Senator Robert N. Stanfield in a local eating place last night by S. W. Edens, member of the city police force. Friends of the senator hold the arrest was an outrage, some alleging a frame-up by Stanfield's enemies. City officials take the view that the arrest was merely a routine matter and should be disposed of as any similar case. Police promptly denied the charge of frame-up.

"I shall handle this case exactly as I would handle it if it involved any other man," said Frank McColloch, city attorney, today. "I shall examine witnesses and determine whether the facts warrant a complaint. If a complaint is drawn it will allege disorderly conduct only."

Date has not been set for a trial as Senator Stanfield has already left for Boise, Idaho, where a hearing of the senate public lands committee, of which Stanfield is chairman is scheduled. Date of the trial, if the case is pressed, will be fixed to suit the convenience of the senator, McColloch stated today.

The arrest occurred at 6 p. m. Sunday. Stanfield was struck in the face by the officer, and on the side of the head by the officer's gun. He was not seriously injured. He was taken to the police station on foot. A big crowd gathered, and friends put up $50 bail. A charge of drunk and disorderly appears on the police blotter today, but it was indicated that this will be changed to a charge of disorderly conduct only.

Officer Edens alleged that Stanfield resisted arrest and called him vile names, and that the blows struck were justified. He called on bystanders for assistance. He insisted Stanfield was intoxicated. Stanfield was said to have been dining with two women when the officer entered. Edens said he did not know the senator, never having seen him before.

No further action in the case is expected today, though it is indicated that Stanfield's friends believe he was unjustly arrested and will fight the charge if one is brought.

Baker, Or., Sept. 14.—Robert N. Stanfield, junior United States senator from Oregon, was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly at a cafe here last night by City Policeman F. W. Edens. Stanfield was released on $50 bail, but no time for his hearing was set.

The arrest, which friends of the senator characterized as an "outrage" in a formal statement telegraphed to the Oregonian at Portland came when Policeman Edens remonstrated, Edens said, with the senator for his disorderly conduct. Senator Stanfield denied Edens' charge that he was either drunk or disorderly and declared the arrest was unprovoked. Edens charged Stanfield defied arrest on the ground that he was a United States senator and struck the officer.

The statement which Baker citizens sent to the Oregonian protesting against the arrest of Senator Stanfield read:

"Knowing the facts, the arrest of Senator Stanfield here was without provocation and an outrage.

"He was neither drunk nor disorderly and the people here, knowing the fact, are unable to understand why the arrest was made."

The statement was signed by William Pollman, banker and stockman; Blaine Hallock, James Nichols and Joseph Heilner, attorneys; James Sloan, stockman, and Walter E. Meacham, secretary of the Baker county chamber of commerce.

"There are a good many high school students who will have to be coming in to see me this week if they want to avoid trouble with their course of study when school starts Monday," said J. C. Nelson, high school principal, this morning. Any new pupils in the city should make their arrangements in advance, he stated, and any old pupils who did not make out their full course of study last spring should also see him. School starts Monday, a week from today.

"We filled the house up in 13 minutes," was the comment made this morning by Archie Holt, resident manager of the Heilig theater, speaking of the grand opening of the theater here Saturday. The Fred M. Mills orchestra gave a number of selections, with numerous encores demanded by the audience. William Evans Davis of Seattle is in the city as guest organist, playing the new Kimball instrument at the opening picture. Flowers were sent by numerous business houses in the city.

CRITIC OF AIR SERVICE TO GO BEFORE BOARD

proceedings which have been initiated against Colonel Mitchell nor his official duties as chief of air service in the eighth corps area would be permitted to interfere with his appearance before the special board.

The war department will make it clear to the board that it does not wish to restrict in any way the testimony Colonel Mitchell may be asked to give and that the board itself will be the only body with power to control the scope of its inquiry into the charges Colonel Mitchell has made.

The Shenandoah board will sit at Lakehurst, N. J., but no date has been set for its convening.

Admiral Jones is senior member of the general board and formerly was commander in chief of the fleet. Commander Towers is a naval aviator with 12 years' experience and was commander of the trans-Atlantic flight made by the navy in 1919. Lieutenant Commander Pierce is a lighter-than-air pilot and regarded as thoroughly familiar with the construction of the Shenandoah.

Although he had previously announced that he saw no reason why the hearing should not be open to the public, Secretary Wilbur had not reached a decision today on this point.

In connection with the announcement of the policy in regard to Colonel Mitchell, it is known that Acting Secretary Davis of the war department who first proposed that such an inquiry be held, would welcome a thorough airing of the charges against the department's air administration.

Although Mr. Davis believes that the inquiry into the Mitchell charges will form but a part of the broad field to be covered, he, nevertheless is of the opinion that gent, of the inspector general's department, specially assigned to the case, is prepared to submit his recommendations as to disciplinary action, at which time Major General John L. Hinds, chief of staff will be ready to take the Mitchell incident up with the secretary for final action.

Pending a study of the report by the inspector general's office and the army legal authorities, it will not be known whether a court martial shall be ordered for Colonel Mitchell on charges of insubordination.

BE CAREFUL

Only five traffic accidents were reported to the police over the week-end. Two resulted in minor injuries. Rennie Otjen was bruised about the head when an automobile driven by Clarence S. Bowne and an unidentified car collided at Superior and Commercial. J. A. Dimick of Woodburn was slightly hurt when his car and one driven by G. W. Thompson, 2265 North Fifth street, collided.
