Benjamin J. Kimber, county YMCA secretary, has just returned from a trip to Portland and to Eugene and Corvallis, taken for the purpose of securing speakers to address high schools throughout the county during the coming school year. He announces that he has a number of prominent speakers lined up, and has made definite announcement of three names. Dean Milam of the domestic science department of OAC will speak at various schools in Marion county upon her return from China. She will give a number of comparisons between the American and the Chinese girl. Dean Jameson, dean of women at OAC, will speak to girls only. It is planned to engage some men to speak to the boys at the same time. Dean Milam addresses the girls. Secretary Warrington of the college YMCA at Corvallis will speak here some time in February. The present plan is to route one speaker over the county each month during the approaching school year.

Speaking before the Salem Lions club on the subject, "Landscaping the Home Lot," Professor Peck of Oregon Agricultural college this noon declared that the present tendency is to locate a house farther forward on the lot than formerly. "The time was when a man was proud to have his house set back 35 feet from the walk on a lot that was only 100 feet deep," he said. "Twelve feet is an ample distance in most cases, especially when you have such wide parkings as these in Salem." He announced that any one desiring to obtain some more killer or some weed killer for his lawn may do so by writing to the OAC exchange at Corvallis.

VAUDEVILLE AT HEILIG TONIGHT

When one reviews a vaudeville show from a comfortable opera chair, one is hardly conscious of any effort on the part of the artists on the stage. Everything seems to be rosy and sweet with them—simply not a care in the world, and everything moving along by itself without the least effort.

But a visit back-stage where the "wheels go round," reveals a few things. Back there it's hurry, bustle, and dash on and off, quick changes and fast shifting of effects; but every move is for a purpose. Speed must be obtained without seeming hurried. Accuracy is the keynote of every move. That accuracy and skill is a theatrical asset is clearly demonstrated by L. Ayres Manfell, owner and operator of the manikins act entitled "Le Petit Cabaret" and appearing today only at the Heilig theater.

PROBE BY GRAND JURY OF PRISON IS DEMANDED

The discipline existing among the prisoners and the liberties granted them.

An inquiry into the personnel of the guard force with particular attention to the physical fitness of individuals and the morale of organization as a whole.

Investigation of the organization to meet emergencies such as the escape of August 12.

Examination of the prison books to determine the truth of statements of former employees that the commissary department inventory of a recent date shows a shortage of more than $12,000, supposedly due to appropriation of goods by convicts.

An audit of the flax department accounts to confirm or repudiate the statements of these same former employees that about 500 tons of flax from the 1923-24 crops has disappeared and is not accounted for. The flax in question is said to be valued at $35 a ton.

Thorough investigation of reports that paroles and pardons have been secured for convicts for a financial consideration, and that persons connected with the administration have benefited by these deals.

Investigation of rumors and statements by former employees that the convicts have been making liquor inside the walls.

Determination of the truth of reports that employment at the penitentiary has been made a matter of politics, and that guards have been discharged because they refused to affiliate with certain fraternal and political organizations.

In requesting the investigation the Capital Journal declares:

"The determination of the truth or falsity of these reports in a matter of vital public concern, as well as one of justice to those in charge of the prison. If the prison is not capably and efficiently managed, if any one of the above reports are true those responsible should be made to answer."

If the affairs at the prison are being capably administered and the charges are false, then those accused are entitled to public exoneration."

WILL ASK CLUBS ALL TO DISBAND

"I'm going to suggest to all high school societies that they disband before school actually begins," said J. C. Nelson, high school principal, this morning, commenting on the voluntary disbanding of the T. A. club, prominent girls' organization, at a meeting last night. "It wouldn't surprise me at all if the girls would all do it. The T. A.'s had a very great deal of influence among the students."

"It's been mob psychology that brought about these clubs," Mr. Nelson, "and I believe they will disband in much the same way."

The fact that any or all clubs have been disbanded will have no bearing on the passing out of pledges next week, Mr. Nelson states. All students will be required to sign, even though the great majority of the student body never did belong to the clubs which have been abolished.

Charles Davis, 56, was committed to the state hospital by County Judge Hunt today following examination by Dr. W. H. Byrd, attention.

Davis attempted to commit suicide last night in a cell in the city jail. Davis attempted the suicide route, evidently with a pocket knife, trying to cut the jugular vein. A gash about an inch long in the side of his neck was the evidence of his attempt which greeted the officers this morning.

Davis stated he had lived in Portland for a number of years, but spent most of his later time floating from place to place and had drifted to Salem from San Francisco recently. He had been here for two or three days when he picked up in a demented condition.

He told the officers he tried to kill himself because the devil was after him. He stated he has been divorced and that his only child is dead.
