

FIRST RAIN FINDS MOST OF HOPS HERE UNDER COVER

PICKING OVER; LESS THAN 15,000 BALES NOT SOLD

About 40 per cent of the hop yards were through picking and the pickers gone when the belated hoppers' rain descended this morning. It is expected the bulk of the remaining yards will be through by Saturday night and the big trek home will start, as thousands of pickers have children they want to have in school next Monday morning.

And a situation exists in the market never seen in Oregon before. It is estimated there are not more than 15,000 bales of the $4.00 bale crop left in the growers' hands and hoppers not completely over yet.

Considerable buying is still going on, although for the immediate present the market is said to be quiet.

Two local dealers have made the rough estimate on 15,000 bales left with the growers, figured out about as follows: 1000 bales in the Independence district as far as Beina Vista, 3500 bales in the Salem district, something over 1000 in the Albany district, from 800 to 900 in the Grants Pass section, 1000 in the Dallas district as far as Forest Grove, 1000 in the Aurora district, 900 to 1000 in the Eugene district, from 800 to 900 in the Silverton and Mt. Angel section.

A local operator today is cabling his London correspondent in response to an inquiry that from 60 to 70 per cent of the recent operations have been for the domestic and Canadian market which would indicate that this operators' opinions are not along the lines of exceedingly heavy speculation by New York operators, gambling on the continental situation.

It is reported that the home brew trade has taken on new life in the east because of the introduction of a malt syrup which carries a very heavy percentage of hops. This malt syrup is said to be a godsend to the party who "brews his own" as it greatly accelerates the production of a batch of home brew and does away entirely with the tedious smell which had become so annoying to the home brewer. When the home brewer was required to boil his own hops the territory for blocks around was scented by the aroma. But in the new heavy malt syrup this is completely done away with, and the report is that the malt syrup may be used in one apartment in an apartment house, with out a neighbor even in the same apartment house getting a solitary whiff. According to the underground advisers and news item manufacturers are buying thousands of bales of hops for preparation of this new malt syrup, and this has had an exceedingly stimulating effect on the market. In addition Canadian trade is said to be flourishing and using a considerable greater quantity of hops than ordinarily.

In short, those who contend that this is not a speculative market, say that regardless of prohibition the consumption of beer is so steady in the increase in the United States it has raised the hop market up. They also contend it will remain up.

On the other hand there are other dealers who as consistently contend the market is purely speculative and may break at any time. Time will determine who is right.

POLK CO-OPS TO RECEIVE PRUNES

Dallas, Sept. 18—The Polk County Co-operative Prune Growers packing plant is now open to receive prunes from grower members according to announcement of E. J. Hines, secretary. The packing operations will start about October 1 and it is expected that local members will provide a pack of about 200,000 pounds.

EXTRA EGGS GO 2 CENTS HIGHER BUTTER STEADY

Portland, Sept. 18—Extra eggs are two cents higher on the dairy exchange at 47 cents today. Other grades are unchanged. The local egg market is very firm with not enough fresh arrivals to take care of requirements.

The local butter market continues to maintain a good healthy tone with both cubes and prints unchanged. Portland butter makers do not look for an advance in prints unless forced up by action of outside markets. There is a slight increase in cream production although market is still short of cubes.

Country meat and poultry arrivals were small about the local market and prices remained nominally steady at current levels.

Onions are fully 25 cents lower with local stocks selling at $1.50 to $1.75, most of the local crop coming now. Prices at country shipping points are down to $1.25.

Three cars of Oregon Bartlett pears brought in high $4 a box on the New York action market Wednesday. Ordinary grades ranged from $3.00 to $4.75 with poorer grades as low as $2.

Oregon Bartlett averaged better than $3.50 on the Boston market.

APPEAL IN TEST OF HOPPICKING LAW FILED HERE

Brief on appeal in the case involving the constitutionality of the new hop picking law which requires picking by weight has been filed in the supreme court by Allan G. and Wallace P. Carson, appellants from Judge Ramsey of Polk county, who upheld the constitutionality of the law.

The brief contends that the new hop picking law is not a valid exercise of the police power, that it does not promote the public welfare and that it is discriminatory as a hop grower is singled out for submission to a regulation from which growers of prunes, apples, berries, potatoes, flax and similar fruits and vegetables are exempt. "We submit that the 1925 act is arbitrary, and unreasonable and unfair to appellants, that it discriminates against and places unreasonable and useless burdens upon a gainful, harmless and proper business while it leaves other businesses in the same category untrammelled and free, and that there is no basis for the discrimination and inequality handed out," states the brief.

The brief asserts that the new law does not provide where the hops shall be weighed—in the fields or in the drier. That it does not prescribe when they shall be weighed—before or after drying and it directly covers a case where an owner by his own hands picks his own hops, and requires him to weigh the hops picked by himself whether he will or no, presumably to prevent him cheating himself. The brief further states the law does not state whether the hops shall be weighed upon a basis of green or dry weight, green hops shrinking and decreasing about 75 per cent in weight in drying.

"We submit," states the brief, "that the regulation attacked has no relation to the due exercise of the police power and unreasonably and oppressively burdens appellants, with no benefit to the public or anyone, excepting perhaps, the small ring of growers who were participants criminals in foisting this upon the public."

The brief also contains a clipping from the Capital Journal telling of experiences had by pickers in a local hopyard.

Dallas, Sept. 18—J. C. Tracy, local prune packer operating as J. C. Tracy and Co., has completely remodelled the Dallas cannery building which he recently purchased preparatory to prune packing operations this year.

Mr. Tracy has installed about $25,000 in new machinery over the equipment with which he operated last year. He has also converted the building into two stories by building a substantial second floor upon which his machinery will be operated, leaving the lower floor for storage purposes.

The 1925 pack is not expected to be heavy but Mr. Tracy is preparing to handle a considerable tonnage of prunes. A part of these he has purchased green and is drying at his large dryer in Dallas and the remainder have been purchased throughout the country.

The quality of the 1925 prunes is proving even better than anticipated and they have graded larger than many growers expected. In consequence prune men who had a semblance of a crop will do quite well this season.

While many of the smaller dryers and individual prune growers have finished, or expect to wind up their season this week, Mr. Tracy expects to operate his dryer for the greater part of next week.

His packing plant will start operations about September 26.
