

PORTLAND EGGS ARE LOWER THAN OTHER MARKETS

Portland, Sept. 28—Portland eggs are still low when compared to other coast markets and to New York. Yet local jobbers are pretty well stocked and not over anxious to buy fresh supplies at current levels.

Chicago, the lowest market in the country is up to 40 cents today. San Francisco is 10 cents higher than the market at 54 cents and Los Angeles 10 1/2 cents above local quotations at 54 1/2 cents for 6 per cent extra.

Fresh arrivals in the local market over the week end were moderate and dealers do not look for any material decline in prices at present.

On the other hand they are convinced that the upward trend in values is about playing out.

Prices on the exchange today are as follows: extras 44c; flats 41c; pullets 36c; current receipts (net) 36c.

Trading in hops was quiet over the week end and the flurry in prices has apparently played out for the time being.

Prices here range from 54 cents to 55 cents a pound. Prints still quoted at 53 cents. Cube prices unchanged on local dairy board.

Commission men along the street were disappointed when the express deliveries were made this morning.

Both country dressed meat and poultry arrivals were light. There is a good call for top calves and hogs and the market is firm.

Prices, however, remain nominal with no sales to establish new levels.

NEW HARRY LEON WILSON NOVEL IN OCTOBER

Everyone is familiar with Ruggles, Hunter Dean, Marton and other of Harry Leon Wilson's youth full heroes. Now, in his new novel "Cousin Jane," Wilson has for the first time made his chief character a girl. This heroine isn't at all the sort you might expect from the creator of Ruggles. Jane has her own peculiar charm and only a distant resemblance of the rest of the Wilson family. She is a girl not without humor, but primarily a girl with a serious problem in life. All the more is she worth knowing because she will be a complete surprise. "Cousin Jane" will be published October 28th by the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

HOP MARKET IS FIRM BUT QUIET AT 25 CENT MARK

Growers are still standing pat asking 25 cents for their hops. Buyers are absolutely inactive, there not being a report of any trading for a week or more. The situation seems to be at an impasse.

However, growers are confident that the 25-cent market is here to stay until the hops are sold, believing that as soon as the edge wears off from the market but caused by tremendous buying activities of 10 days ago, buying will start again on the old basis.

As it is no enormous quantity of hops is outstanding. It must be remembered that large quantities of the 1925 crop are under contract at 15 to 19 cents, and only a comparatively small share were sold at high prices.

The Independence Enterprise tells of the situation in that district as follows:
After bidding as high as 27 cents for hops, buyers have ceased their activities, and the market is apparently at a standstill. The cause is a matter of speculation. Reports from England indicate a heavier harvest than was anticipated earlier in the season, but on the other hand, the general belief is and has been that sales have not been for English accounts.

The production in the Independence district has been heavier than was expected, and while of course growers are always interested in market conditions, some of them are giving more attention to securing canvases for baling their hops. There is a scarcity all along the coast and a number of local growers are against it temporarily at least. This condition in a large measure is due to the heavy crop requiring more canvases than was estimated.

With the exception of the Wierich hop picking, here has been finished. It will require a few more days to complete the job at the Wierich. Major Ross, the manager, stated Wednesday that there is not a bit of mould in the yards there and that it will require several days yet to complete the work. George Werline reports a yield of 150 bales more this year than last. He finished picking Sunday. D. P. MacCarthy has a bumper crop. Hall damaged his yard and he expected that the yield would be materially curtailed. The harvest, which is completed, will be the heaviest one in years.

C. A. McLaughlin finished picking last Friday, Slopier Bros. Monday and in the Hurst yards on Tuesday.

With scarcely no rain to interfere and with no mould, probably there has been harvested the finest crop of hops and under the most favorable conditions for a decade or more.

APPLE GROWERS FACE PROSPECT OF GOOD SEASON

A fairly good market season is in prospect for American apple growers and shippers, says a bulletin by the United States department of agriculture.

Local reports indicate that the later varieties of fruit will be of good size and of better quality than last year, so that a greater proportion should be marketable. Estimates of commercial apples in the United States indicate a crop of about average volume and only 6 per cent heavier than that of 1924, the increase being chiefly in Washington and New York states. The August forecast reduced Canada's commercial crop to 2,000,000 barrels, which is slightly less than last season and only 8 1/2 per cent of the United States commercial crop. Altogether, the foreign market outlook is as good as, if not better than, that of a year ago, and our exporters may again ship 15,000 carloads of apples to two countries.

Exports during the last two seasons have taken about 15 per cent of the carlot shipments. This foreign trade is with seventy different countries, but chiefly with the United Kingdom and continental Europe.

Most tree fruits in Europe except pines, show an unfavorable condition. American apple exporters, however, have to face the somewhat discouraging economic conditions abroad. It is estimated that 1,300,000 persons are out of work in Great Britain alone. In view of the reduced Canadian apple crop, it is possible that exports from that country may not offset the serious competition with United States fruit. Nova Scotia's commercial crop of 1,010,000 barrels is about 130,000 less than last year, and British Columbia's 1,981,000 boxes represent a decrease of 250,000 boxes.

BEE INDUSTRY DEMONSTRATED IN FINE EXHIBIT

The bee and honey exhibit housed in the bee and honey department brings out the Oregon bee industry by means of specimen bees of different breeds, honey-making and handling equipment, and honey specimens in various forms. The largest and most varied display installed Sunday evening is that of J. Skovbo, leading bee man of the Hermiston district.

Three breeds of bees, Carniolans, three-banded Italians and golden Italians, and numerous samples of comb and extracted honey, attract the attention of the interested visitor. Suspended from the high above this group is a large colored picture of the Hermiston bee region with numerous apiaries scattered about the hills, fields and pastures.

"My bees forage their honey supply from the fields of my neighbors," said Mr. Skovbo, "I am one of the farmers that farms the farm, but unlike some others I do them no injury. They are generally glad to have the business go on about them as it brings more money and interest into the neighborhood."

By products such as wax, and several varieties of honey, plans from the Hermiston area, are other features of the exhibit. Mr. Skovbo reports the honey crop of the district about normal for the first time in three years, which for the last two failed to go much above 75 per cent average normal crop. Crop conditions in general are improved and the farm business looks better than for three years.

Bee handling and honey storing equipment is displayed by the William Brothers, Portland dealers. Several other smaller exhibits are going in, and H. A. Scullen of the state college, in charge of the department for the state fair, looks for an excellent showing. He himself has a small educational exhibit.

MINSTRELS ARE HERE TONIGHT

The Richards & Pringle's famous minstrels, known the world over as the world's greatest, will be the attraction of the Helling theater tonight only. They are the acknowledged leaders in this brand of amusement. The minstrels were to have a matinee this afternoon but due to a date at Astoria last night they will be unable to get here until 6:40 this afternoon.

Richards & Pringle's minstrels carry a special car for their scenery. Twelve big vaudeville acts, ten comedians, twenty trained singers and many dancers are included in the troupe. A brilliant array of European novelty features make up the big show of the season.

The management of the show makes the broad statement that they have the largest and best minstrel show on the road this season. A high class company of 40 real chocolate dandies, besides a 20-piece jazz orchestra, are included in the evening's entertainment. The production to be shown this evening is in two acts and 15 scenes. Popular prices will prevail at the show from one dollar down.

DRIED FRUIT IS FIRM ON MARKET

The dried fruit market at present in California is without feature that is new, says the California Fruit News.

The whole situation is "rocking along" after the annual buying of some weeks ago. Present inquiry is steady and, generally speaking, quotations are unchanged in all lines. There does not appear to be any speculative opportunity in present values and they are, consequently, not buying ahead any more than they have already done. The European inquiry to California in dried fruit is fairly good and is coming in for most lines in a moderate way from day to day. With stocks of old crop out in all lines, with the exception of some raisins, and with new crop in most lines having had an ample withdrawal already, and this being still September, with, for that reason, twelve months yet to go to market what we have left, there isn't any reason in the world why it shouldn't be perfectly safe, from a selling standpoint, to view a comparative quiet market for a time.

Evaporated apples here are a little easier, as New York quotations are somewhat off. Apricots and peaches are unchanged. The association in the latter line has quieted down the market yet. Figs have been advanced by the California Peach and Fig Growers association in Black Mission bulk and in Adriatic bricks and layers. The association has also added, during the past week, the latter's advance on bulk Adriatics, all as appearing below. The commercial trade, which was previously higher than the association on black figs, is now lower since the latter's advance, but commercial quotations here are unchanged this week.

PRUNES NET $1.66 BUSHEL; TEST 37

Frank V. Brown has received returns on his prunes from this year's crop from the drier showing that they dried out on an average of 22.5 pounds to the bushel. They tested on an average of 37 as to points.

The returns show that he received $1.66 net a bushel for his dried prunes from 22 gross, after paying a cent and a half a pound for drying. These figures represent about an average of what was done by the growers in the Dallas district with their dried prunes, and they dried out on about the same average as Brown's. Growers who sold their prunes to the driers received an average of $1.40 a bushel, or 26 cents less than for the dried prunes.

FIRST CAR OF ONIONS SHIPPED FROM QUINABY

The first car of onions for the shipping season from the Lubbish district was due to leave out of Quinaby today. It is expected over 600 cars will be shipped this season, about the same number going out that year. Prices are ranging from $1.10 to $1.25 a sack and in the neighborhood of 800 sacks will go in a car, or an average along about a thousand dollars a car, which would mean a gross of about $600,000 on the crop at present prices. However, it is hoped that prices will soar somewhat as there is no very large margin of profit to the growers at these 7.0. b. prices.

Celery shipments continue, although the market is reported to be not exceptionally strong right now. Up to the end of last week 60 cars of celery had been shipped out and it is understood orders are on hand for two cars out daily for a considerable period.

Quality of the onion crop reported to be good, although it is said that due to rain stain they may not have the same fine color as a year ago.
