New Light Hair Shampoo Restores Sparkle to Dull Blonde Hair

When light hair is washed with ordinary shampoos it has a tendency to fade, streak or darken. Unless it is given the most careful attention, it soon loses its natural golden beauty and becomes drab and unattractive. For that reason blondes should always use a special shampoo. Blondex, the new shampoo for blondes only, keeps light hair from darkening. And it actually brings back the original golden sparkle to even the dullest, most faded blonde hair. Makes the hair delightfully soft, silky and fluffy. Highly beneficial to the scalp. Now used by over 200,000. Fine for children's hair. Not a dye. Money instantly refunded if you are not delighted. SICK WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Can Be Carried Comfortably Over The Critical Period by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound —Note Mrs. Headden's Case

Macon, Georgia. — "During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me. After doctoring without relief a man who was rooming with us told my son that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured his mother at the Change of Life, so I began taking your medicine. After taking it for two weeks I could get out of my bed by myself. I am now 53 years old and in better health and stronger than ever in my life. HERMAN-LEWIS BOUT ATTRACTS MUCH INTEREST

Interest is keen in the opening card being offered by Harry Plant, matchmaker, at the armory tonight when Cal Herman of Salt Lake City and Frankie Lewis of Salem meet in the ten-round main event. Lewis has been working hard for the bout tonight and he is declared to be in the best of condition with more speed and snap than shown at any other time.

"Big" Bill Hunt, Salem fireman, will met Danny Garth in the six-round semi-windup. Garth was substituted for Speed Murphy and the fans are anxious to see the return match as Garth was substituted for Murphy in the last card last season. Garth was an excellent substitute as he floored the local fighter seven times in the first few rounds. Hunt came back strong in the third round, however, and floored the Portland boy for the count. Garth was out of condition at that time and will be in much better shape than he was at the last meeting. Hunt has also made wonderful progress since that fight so the battle ought to be equal to the main event in thrills for the fans.

Phil Bayes, local fighter, is working out each night and is expecting to be in shape within a few weeks. Matchmaker Plant is hoping to find some good material as a worthy opponent for Bayes and will have him matched for some of the next fights.

Several snappy preliminaries have been arranged to complete the fast card. The rights are being sanctioned by the new Salem boxing commission. Escorted ladies will be admitted free except for the reserved seats. The fight will start at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

JARDINE TO PASS UPON NARCISSUS RESTRICTIONS

William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, will within a few weeks issue his final conclusions on the restrictions on the entry of narcissus bulbs into the United States, it was announced by him today. These restrictions, adopted nearly three years ago go into effect January 1, 1926, have been the subject of wide discussion, both favorable and adverse.

When Secretary Jardine took office in March, these restrictions came to his attention, together with arguments that conditions might have changed since the plan was originally decided upon. He thereupon determined on a detailed review of the situation, including not only a much more thorough examination of bulb imports than had previously been possible but also a survey of the extent to which pests carried by the bulbs might already have a foothold in the United States. The information being assembled by experts from imports still coming in and from field surveys, will be available to a sufficient extent to permit within a few weeks a decision based exclusively on actual facts as they exist today.

When work suffers — when tempers snap Look to your FLOORS

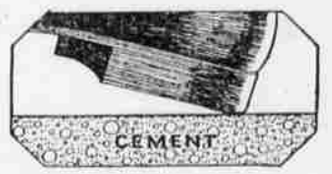
Cement is a hard floor. It is a cold floor. Its stone-hardness conveys to hurrying feet nerve-sapping, energy-taxing shocks, jars, and jolts. And needlessly so.

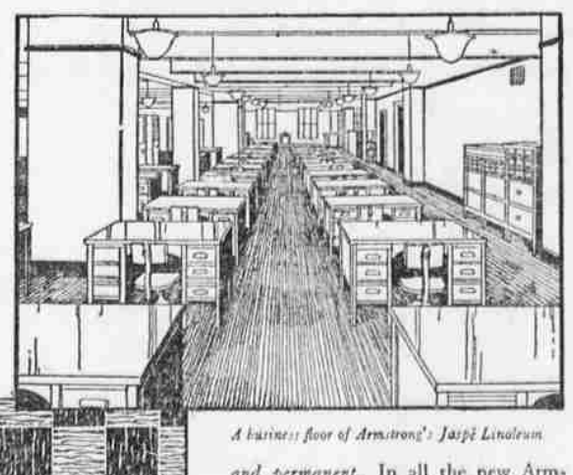


Here you see cement as an *under*floor; over it has been laid a soft, resilient floor of springy linoleum. A comfortable floor to walk on, an easy floor to keep bright, new-looking.

IF you compel willing office workers to walk all day long on hard, unyielding floors of cement, you are subjecting them to an unfair, unnatural strain. For constant walking on stone-hard floors takes its daily toll in tensed muscles and fagged nerves. Tempers snap, nervous energy gives way—work suffers!

Now look at the attractive office shown here. When this office was opened in New York last February, the floor was cement—like the floors in most new buildings. Yet the floor you see in this picture is a foot-easy, energy-saving, easy-to-walk-on floor.

How was the transformation made? Easily and economically. First a lining of builders' deadening felt was pasted over the cement underfloor (cement in an office should always be considered as an underfloor). Then a springy floor of Armstrong's Linoleum was cemented in place, its seams and edges tightly sealed. The job was done quickly, with scarcely any interruption to business. The finished floor was in use the same day it was laid.



A business floor of Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum

Armstrong's Marble Inlaid Linoleum, Pattern No. 70

Easy to clean—beautiful too!

An Armstrong's Linoleum Floor is more than just comfortable to walk on. It is an extremely easy-to-care-for floor. Feet can't scrape it. Tracked-in dirt does not injure its finish. And all it needs to keep it looking fresh and new is an occasional waxing and a nightly brushing and polishing. No scrubbing. No oiling. No refinishing.

And then there is its beauty—beauty that is dignified and permanent. In all the new Armstrong patterns designed for business use, the colors run clear through to the burlap back.

Your architect, contractor, or any good linoleum merchant in town will gladly give you further information on the low first cost of Armstrong's Linoleum Floors and their low upkeep cost. In the meantime, write for
