COUNCIL DELAYS TAKING ACTION LIMITING TANKS

The city council last night decided to put off for two weeks more the proposed ordinance regulating gasoline tanks in Salem.

The purpose of the bill is to legalize 100-gallon tanks in Salem. As drawn it does not require the tanks to be below the level of basement floors, and this brought a vigorous protest from Alderman Dancy, who declared it would cause insurance rates to be increased in the city. Dancy and Rosebrough clashed on the issue. The measure was up for third reading after having been amended in committee of the whole.

Ordinance Passed.
The following ordinance was passed last night:

Resolving assessments for the improvement of Highland avenue abutting on lot 7, block 19.

Resolving the cost of improving Belmont street.

Resolving the cost of improving Ferry street from 15th to 16th.

New ordinances were introduced covering the following subjects:

Assessing the cost of improving Winter street from D to Market. Marion from 23rd to 24th, alley in block 23, Court street from 13th to Mill creek. Chasemets from 21st to 24th, alley in block 21.

Establishing a grade on South Winter street, creating the office of superintendent of paving operations, creating the office of supervisor of improvement assessments, providing for a vacation of the alley in block 13, Myers addition, extending the fire limit covering the north half of blocks 20 and 21, which are bound by Center, Marion, Liberty and Front streets.

Auto Buses Remain.
The proposal to re-route the street railway company's auto buses from North 17th to North 13 street, was killed when the council adopted a committee report that was favorable to the recommendations against the proposal.

The controversy arising among several doctors over a smallpox case that was not immediately quarantined was settled when the council voted to drop the case without presentation. Dr. Mott, city health officer, presented his side of the case in person and the councilmen argued the case pro and con. Neither Dr. H. J. Clements nor Dr. S. O. Stone, the other two doctors involved, was present.

The committee on public buildings was instructed to see what can be done toward heating the basement of the city hall for the benefit of transients who apply for free lodgings.

A petition for a light at South 23rd and Oak streets was referred to the committee on lights.

Refuse Coffee Damages.
The council refused to allow a payment of damages to Allan Mitchell, a camper, who was burned severely with hot coffee when a table turned over at the city camp grounds. He asked compensation at the rate of $36 a day.

Resolutions were adopted for the construction of sidewalks on the east side of Commercial street between Belmont and the street railway and on the east side of Fourth street. Resolutions were adopted for the improvement of the alley in block 7, alley in block 34, alley in block 53 and of McCoy avenue from the Tilt road to Hun street. A resolution was adopted for notice of assessment for improvement of alley in block 38, improvement of block 37, improvement of Marion street, improvement of Court street, improvement of Winter street and of the alley in block 39.

A petition was received for a light at Maple avenue and Hickory street.

Steinbock Petitions.
H. Steinbock petitioned the council for authority to build a corrugated iron building on Commercial between Center and Marion street on ground to be leased from the Southern Pacific company, but since the building would be in the fire limits and corrugated iron buildings are barred in the fire limits, it is not likely that it will be allowed. It was declared that such a building is being put up in the block in which the Gray Hotel and other business buildings are located and that no permit has ever been issued for it. An investigation was ordered.

Major Gley announced that the way and means committee will meet next Monday night to consider the budget for 1926.
