BEET SUGAR CROP TONNAGE

While estimates of tonnage on experimental tracts here where sugar beets have been sown for the Utah-Washington Sugar company are not being made rapidly, probably due to the growers' inexperience in making such estimates, one grower on the River road near the Kelso school has estimated his beets at seven tons to an acre, while another grower on the Pacific highway near Chemawa has an estimate of only three tons.

The recent survey of the various plantings has indicated that the Pacific highway grower who has the lowest estimate on tonnage, had one of the best crops of any, so that it is considered likely that the estimates may be more guesses not borne out when the crop is harvested.

PEAK OF CANNING IS OVER

The peak of the fruit canning season has passed. Commercial factors estimate that the 1925 canned fruit pack in California will be as large as, or slightly larger than, the 1924 pack in that state ($6,362,998 cases) says the federal reserve review.

In the Pacific northwest it is estimated that a comparatively heavy late season pack of pears, apples, and prunes will offset a short early season pack of berries and cherries, the total 1925 pack being approximately as large as that of 1924 (4,268,941 cases). Both domestic and foreign markets for canned fruit have continued active, and packers' stocks are reported to be smaller in volume than one year ago. Drying of fruit is nearing completion in California and Oregon. The dried fruit industry is entering the new marketing season with relatively smaller carry-over stocks than have been held during recent years, and demand is reported to be seasonally active.

Cowlitz county officials away from the county seat or outside the state. Chairman, Huntington of the board of commissioners avers that Bynon attempted to pledge them to secrecy, explaining that he did not want it known that the transaction took place in a federal office.

The newspapermen were led to ask for a confirmation after a rumor had been current for a day or two in Kelso that the authorities had been forced to pay highly for information that led to identification of the gun with which Dorey was killed and the naming of John W. Smith, an itinerant prize fight promoter, as the probable slayer.

When the meeting of the commissioners was called Attorney Sharpe was asked to state publicly

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL, SALEM, OREGON

According to Sharp's story information that Bynon's client had certain information reached Sheriff Studebaker through Tom Word, agent of the department of justice. Bynon said, Sharpe declared, that the money was to be used to pay certain individuals for their work in finding the gun and other evidence. Hill, who is manager of the used car department of the Oldsmobile company in Oregon, insisted on being known in the transaction, said Sharpe, simply as C. Hill, this for business reasons. He said that both he and Tom Word plead with Bynon to divulge the information without financial consideration, but without success.

Bynon, from his office in Portland, has issued a lengthy statement in defense of his action and denying portions of Sharp's statement.

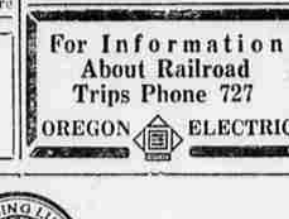

"The report that I wrote a letter to Sheriff Studebaker demanding $5000 for what information I might be able to give is false," said Bynon. "Studebaker mapped out an agreement here in Portland and I signed in behalf of my clients. It was the sheriff's idea that the $5000 should be given in case the man was convicted, and my clients countered by splitting the amount, $2500 when the evidence was produced and $2500 upon conviction."

"If Mr. Sharpe or any other official at Kelso declared they would take criminal action against me if I were in Washington, I can only say that they will not have to extradite me, and I will play them in their own yard for money, marbles or fun. I might retaliate by saying that if any of those who are talking so loud about extortion show up in Oregon they are liable to find themselves up against charges of criminal libel."
