A clipping was received today by Coach Rathbun, clipped from the San Francisco Call, and written by "Erick" Morse, sports editor of that paper, and in 1895 coach of the Willamette university football team. "Yes," Morse says in his article, "the old fellows are still very much alive, and that's more than can be said for the 1925 team after the game is over. They will win the game by a score of 50 to 0." The article mentions a number of the members of the team who have since that time attained to prominence. "Congressman Hawley was president of the university then," he said, "but I used to let him play on the team."

CEGAR POLE TRUST FINED
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 20.—(A. P.)—Pleas of guilty to a federal indictment charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law were entered in United States district court here today by eleven red cedar pole manufacturers of the United States and fines aggregating $37,500 were assessed by Judge J. Stanley Webster. The defendants and the amount of their fines were:

Lindsay Brothers, Spokane; National Pole company, Eganville, Mich.; A. T. Naugle Pole & Tie company, Chicago; Page & Hill company, Minneapolis & Spokane; Valentine Clarke company, St. Paul & Spokane; B. J. Carney company, Grinnell, Iowa, and Spokane; MacGillis Gibbs company, Milwaukee, $5,000 each, the maximum provided by law; Sand Point Lumber & Pole company, Troy, Mont., $2,000; Lost Creek Cedar company, Lone, Wash.; E. T. Chapin company, Spokane; Metropolitan Cedar company, Spokane, $100 each.

The indictment, returned here December 20, 1924, charged that the defendants, since March 1915 had sold 70 per cent of the red cedar poles marketed in the United States and had controlled 50 per cent of the stocks of such poles.

Maintenance of prices and exchange of market information, it was charged, had been effected through operation of the Western Lumber and Pole company, the Western Red Cedar association and the Western Red Cedar Men's Information Bureau, all located here.

A Baker, Oregon, man says he will marry the lady any time and on no questions asked.

A Chicago man writes the Journal that he will marry the girl on any terms. The New Haven candidate wants to get in touch with the lady even though "she has already obtained her wants."

A swain of Marysville, Mo., lives up to a proverbial skepticism of that state and wants to be shown. He wants to see a photograph and know the age of the woman.

A Waverly, Iowa, youth sends some coin along, but the envelope wasn't opened to see how much, inasmuch as it was addressed to the lady and not to the newspaper.

The San Diego candidate, in lieu of a letter enclosed in an envelope, sends two postcards.

Another applicant subscribes for the Journal for a month, thinking there may be more such offers.

WILL CONTEST WON ON APPEAL BY REINBRECHT

An opinion of the supreme court today reverses the late Judge George G. Bingham in the matter of Johanna Dietz Reinbrecht, an appeal from Marion county. Justice Burnett wrote the opinion.

Charles F. Dietz made a will April 26, 1905. After directing his executrix to pay his debts the will bequeathed to Johanna Dietz, the widow, all real and personal property. Upon her death the property was to be divided into two equal parts, one part to go to his children and the other to his widow. The will, however, directed her to do with the property what she believed to be for the best interests of all concerned, and gave her liberty to sell real estate in Canada and invest the proceeds in Oregon property.

She sold the Canadian property and bought Oregon property, and afterward married August Reinbrecht. She died September 21, 1911, but before her death made a will bequeathing to Reinbrecht $2000 and all interest to accrue on money obtained by its sale of their home place. The executrix was directed to sell this place as soon as convenient. The rest of the estate was disposed of in legacies. Edward Schunke was appointed executor. August Reinbrecht was appointed administrator.

Schunke administered upon the woman's estate, including the proceeds of the Canadian property belonging to the estate of her first husband. When Schunke made his final account, Reinbrecht, as administrator, on the basis of the former Dietz will, objected to the account and sought to charge it with the amount which his predecessor, Johanna Dietz Reinbrecht, had acquired from the sale of the land in Canada and to recover it for the Dietz estate. The county court sustained his objection, but on appeal to the circuit court the decree of the county court was reversed. Reinbrecht then appealed to the supreme court, where he won by the opinion today.

Having accepted original jurisdiction the state supreme court yesterday afternoon issued a writ of mandamus to compel J. H. Haner, county clerk of Deschutes county, to appear and show cause why he should not be compelled to open to the records of his office to the inspection of the Bend Press through its attorney, Edward F. Bailey of Junction City.

The action, according to Mr. Bailey, has narrowed itself down to the question of whether instruments filed in the circuit court action upon them by the court and open to the inspection of newspapers and others. It is the contention of the county clerk in refusing access to such instruments on file in his office to the Bend Press that they do not become a part of the public record until they have been acted upon by the court.

The writ of mandamus is made returnable November 16.

Equipment reaching a total estimated at $100 in value has been stolen from the Willamette university gymnasium within the past few days, it was reported at the gymnasium yesterday. Part of it was taken from the equipment room and part from individuals. Coach Rathbun of the university this morning declared that the thieves broke in at the windows of the gymnasium.

Mrs. M. S. Rich of Toledo was a Salem visitor today.

WITNESSES TELL TALE OF PRISON BREAK

Immediately Jones appeared around the corner of the building, covered him with a rifle and said to Willos and Kelley:

"Go into the arsenal and get your guns. It's open."

White said that Jones said to him:

"—You, open that gate."

"How the hell can I when I'm locked in here myself," White said he replied. A murmur of laughter swept over the room and the court had to rap for order.

The state here brought out that Willos and Kelley showed no hesitancy in following out Jones' instructions to get their guns.

Crawford Testifies. Robert Crawford, superintendent of the prison, who first discovered the escaping convicts, and James Nesmith, turnkey, were the other two witnesses to testify this morning. Their stories were the same as told at the Murray trial.

The demeanor of Willos and Kelley in the court room was visibly changed yesterday afternoon and today from what it was the first two days they were in court. Kelley appears more composed, and Willos has abandoned the attitude of smiling indifference he first displayed. Both are following the testimony of the witnesses closely and frequently lean over to whisper something to Judge King.

Also, there is a marked change in the personnel of the spectators outside the room. Women and girls made up the greater part of the audience during the Murray trial, and their sympathies were visibly with the convict. In this trial most of the spectators are men and gun charge of buckshot through his head. In its preliminary statement the state charged that Holman was shot in cold blood, as he sat bound against the wall, by Kelley whom, it is alleged, carried the shotgun away with him and later hid it beneath a log in the woods east of Salem.

Seven Witnesses Heard
The defense in reply alleges that Kelley never was armed, did not shoot a single shot during the break, and that Holman was killed either accidentally or by design by Bert Oregon Jones, convict killed in the break, as he jumped from the wall to a point on the ground near where Holman sat.

The seven witnesses examined before adjournment last night were Mrs. Lucille Sweeney, widow of the dead guard; George Weisbe, photographer who took the pictures of the prison premises offered by the state as exhibits in its case; Lloyd T. Rigdon, county coroner; Earl A. Paulsen, embalmer; Dr. W. Carlton Smith and Dr. G. E. Prime who examined and removed bullets from the bodies of the dead guards and J. S. Murray, chief clerk at the prison, who identified the defendants as convicts at the penitentiary.

It developed this morning that the reason why no motion for a new trial for Murray had been filed was because the defense counsel had overlooked the statutory provision that such a motion must be filed within one day after the verdict is returned.

With the foundation for its case laid, the corpus delicti established and the scene of the crime viewed by the jury prior to adjournment of court yesterday, the state this morning plumped into the evidence by which it hopes to prove Kelley and Willos parties to the criminal conspiracy to break which resulted in the killing of Sweeney.

Murray has already been convicted of firing the shot that brought death to Sweeney, and sentenced to hang, and the state is asking the death penalty for Willos and Kelley as parties to that conspiracy.

Much of yesterday's examination of the seven witnesses called by the state was devoted to inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of Holman, who was found just outside the prison walls where the convicts escaped with a shot.
