78,000 SEE YALE BEATEN BY PRINCETON

Old Eli Proves No Match For Tigers Who Pile Up Score of 25 to 12 In One-Sided Contest.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—Princeton furnished one of the biggest upsets in the season of upsets today by taking two measure of the Yale building in the presence of a crowd of 78,000 by the score of 25 to 12.

Yale Bowl, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—Yale and Princeton met today in their annual battle on a gale-swept field before a colorful outpouring of 78,000 enthusiasts. Yale was a heavy pre-game favorite in this crucial test of the 1925 "big three" series.

Princeton kicked off to Gill, but he fumbled and Slegie recovered it on Yale's 32-yard line. After a forward pass had grounded and thrust failed, Slegie attempted a dropkick which was blocked. Yale immediately punted out of danger, the wind carrying the ball 80 yards.

Princeton by a series of forward and triple passes carried the ball to the Yale's 35-yard line. Dignan fumbled on the 15-yard line and Noble of Yale recovered. Yale then punted, the ball going over the Tiger line.

Princeton was unable to gain and punted. The Eli attack got under way and carried the ball to the 15-yard line, but Princeton took the ball on downs. Score end of first period: Yale 0; Princeton 0.

After the ball had been set up and down the field, Slegie, the Tiger right halfback, twisted his way through the entire Yale team for a sensational 52-yard run for a touchdown. The try for goal failed.

Yale came back strong and carried the ball to the Princeton 10-yard line.

AUTHORSHIP OF POEMS OF GIRL ARE ATTACKED

New York, Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—Doubts about authorship of internationally famous poems credited to 12-year-old Nathalia Crane of Brooklyn are now raised by Edwin Markham, honorary president of the Poetry Society of America and winner of last year's $200 poetry prize.

Over his signature in the Brooklyn Eagle Mr. Markham wrote yesterday: "Unquestionably the whole thing is a general hoax fabricated, perhaps by four young men and two women while lingering over the wine and walnuts—all of them distinguished poets, with dextrous pens, and all determined to break the monopoly of the hour with this detestable deception. This is a moment in literary American."

"The sophisticated viewpoint of sex and, on life, the special knowledge of history and archeology places them beyond the reach of any juvenile mind."

Later Mr. Markham in a statement to the New York World qualified his views by saying: "And yet it is entirely possible that Nathalia Crane has written these poems with her own mind and pen. In that case, she is the most extraordinary girl in America and I wish her good fortune on the path of poetic life."

PEKING CRISIS IS POSPONED

Peking, Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—The danger of fighting in the vicinity of Peking between rival military chiefs has been averted for the time being.

The chief executive, Tuan Chih-Jui, is telegraphically informed by Marshal Chang Tso-lin that in order to procure peace he is willing to withdraw his troops from around Peking to Tientsin and to the north.

The Manchurian war lord's troops near the capital area, in fact, are already in motion, some being in the course of withdrawal while others have already boarded trains for Mukden. In addition the Mukden authorities are removing their army headquarters to a spot 15 miles to the east.

Chang Tso-lin's action has caused great surprise in foreign circles.

NORTH DAKOTA EDITOR APPOINTED AS SENATOR

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—Gerald P. Nye, 33 years old, publisher of the Griggs County Sentinel-Courier at Cooperstown, N. D., today was appointed by Governor Sorlie to fill the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of the late E. F. Ladd.

KING TUT BUT 15 YEARS OLD WHEN HE DIED

Age of Dead Pharaoh Ascertained from Mummy By Egyptologists; Tall Crown Of Gold Found.

New York, Nov. 14.—(A.P.)—That King Tut-Ankh-Amen who died in Egypt some 3,000 years ago was only fifteen years old when he died was announced today by the results of an examination of his mummy.

The age of the dead Pharaoh had been the basis for much speculation among those who uncovered the tomb near Luxor. Howard Carter, who was the chief assistant to the late Earl of Carnarvon in the work of excavating the tomb had believed the youth was 18 years old when he passed away.

When, however, the mummy was taken from its golden-shaped coffin and the wrappings about it were removed until the golden shrouded body came into view, the experts after an examination established the age.

On the head of Tut-Ankh-Amen was a tall crown of gold. The hands were clasped across the breast. On the side of the body were strapped two gold litted swords and two knives, the handles of which also were gold. On the breast golden stars were placed to mark the heart and lungs.

Tut-Ankh-Amen inherited the throne of Khun-Aten through his marriage to that king's third daughter Ankh-Nes-Pa-Aten, afterward Ankh-Nes-Amen, two years after her royal father had passed away. This was during the reign of the Pharaoh, Saa-Nekht, his brother in law. Saa-Nekht is variously estimated to have reigned from eight to sixteen years after his eventful year of his death and the accession of Tut-Ankh-Amen. The latter is estimated to have reigned from two to nine years. The former figure is Howard Carter's and the latter Sir Flinders Petrie's. Sir Flinders is a noted Egyptologist.

Thus, if Tut-Ankh-Amen were fifteen years old at the time of his death, he would have been only five years old when he married, on the basis of the lower figure, while the larger figure would seem to be wide of the mark.

Five years of age for marriage is apparently out of with the custom of the royal houses of Egypt, for few, if any, of the Pharaohs married before the age of 12. They did not become of age until sixteen years old.

On the female side, it was different, some of the princesses marrying when only one year old in order to acquire rights to royalty for the husband. In Egypt royal descent passed through the daughters.

The finding of the high old crown on the head of Tut-Ankh-Amen is a discovery unique in archeology, as also was the discovery of the swords and parts of the royal regalia, for despoilers and thieves usually ransacked royal tombs so thoroughly that generally the mummy was stripped to its wrappings.

Marital Vacation Of Valentinos To Become Lasting

New York, Nov. 14.—The "three months marital vacation" of Rudolph Valentino and his wife is on the verge of becoming permanent because the stork has not visited them.

The screen star had a reservation on the Levittan, sailing today and has announced that he will go to Paris to accept a divorce petition filed there October 29 by Mrs. Valentino.

After denials by both sides, the filing of the divorce suit was revealed last night by Mrs. Richard Hudnut, Mrs. Valentino's mother, and then confirmed by Valentino.

The cinema shik, who came from Hollywood to New York last week just before Mrs. Valentino's return from Europe, but didn't meet her at the pier, and apparently has not talked with her or seen her, says he is a home loving man and they disagreed because his wife prefers dogs to babies.

As to the next time he marries: "I will choose to have a wife whose tastes are thoroughly domestic and who is inclined to have children."

"I have been informed that Mrs. Valentino has made application in Paris for a divorce on the technical grounds permitted under the laws of France after having established a residence there," Valentino said last night.

"It is my intention to defer to her wishes in this matter. Our divorce will be a complete divorce."

This statement came from Rudy 24 hours after he had characterized divorce reports as absurd.

When Mrs. Valentino came from Paris last week and heard of her husband's views as to dogs and babies she said she had no intention of giving up her career and anyway, her husband had more dogs than she.

Valentino's first wife was Jean Ackler, from whom he was divorced in 1922. He married Winifred Hudnut, step-daughter of a cosmetic manufacturer in May, 1922, in Mexico. Shortly thereafter he was arrested on a charge of bigamy because his California divorce had not become absolute under the laws of that state. He was released on his promise not to live with his bride until the divorce became effective. When it did, he remarried Miss Hudnut, known professionally as Natacha Renkova.

BEARS CLASH WITH HUSKIES FOR LEADERSHIP

Washington 6; California 0. Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 14.—(AP)—California and Washington, only undefeated eleven of the Pacific coast conference, met here today in the biggest battle of the far west's annual gridiron "war."

It is the decisive game of the 1925 football season and the title virtually hinges on the result. A Washington victory will claim the northern almost a clear claim to the championship as they have only to defeat Oregon, a much weaker eleven.

Although both teams compare favorably in strength, California was a 19 to 7 favorite today to take the visitors into camp. This was due principally to the Bears playing on their home field.

FRENCH SLAY SYRIAN BANDITS

Paris, Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—French reinforcements have begun arriving in Syria. The appearance of the fresh troops, according to the latest reports produced an immediate effect upon the rebels and the Druze tribesmen, among the most active of the insurgents, retreated to the mountain regions.

The country has calmed down, the dispatches say, and only one small band of rebels is in the field in the Damascus region.

ABANDON HOPE FOR CREW ON BRITISH SUB

Admiralty States 68 Officers And Men On Entombed M-1 Have Probably Perished.

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—"The admiralty deeply regret that they no longer hold out any hope that the crew of the M-1 still survive."

This brief official announcement was taken as definitely sealing the fate of the 68 officers and men entombed in the monitor-submarine, which disappeared off the Devonshire coast during Thursday's maneuvers.

Although mine sweepers and other vessels have been searching the waters of the English channel almost continuously since the submarine submerged early Thursday morning during maneuvers, they have encountered no signs which would lead to hope.

There has been nothing to confirm that the hull located in the channel yesterday is the M-1 rather than that of any one of the numerous wrecks that are supposed to be lying on the floor of the channel, some of them sent to the bottom during the world war by German submarines.

Reports from officers of the maneuvering fleet who saw the M-1 take the fatal plunge are too indefinite and speculative to furnish an explanation of the cause. The admiralty also sent to the relatives of the crew the following message:

"The circumstances in which the submarine disappeared leaves room for no doubt that your son (or husband) has lost his life with the rest of the crew."

Throughout the night the fleet of searching ships kept vigil on the spot where the M-1 is believed to lie on the rocky, treacherous bottom, at a depth of 240 feet.

Early this morning four mine sweepers resumed their dragging in an effort to make contact with the submarine. The parent ship Maidstone also joined the searchers with her secret magnetic reflecting apparatus, enabling the distance and direction of a magnetic object to be traced.

Salvage vessels with lifting apparatus are on the spot, indicating the intention of the authorities to raise the big submarine, but they admit it would be an almost hopeless task to try to bring her up from such a great depth.

It is understood that next week Admiral Sir Henry Oliver, commander of the home fleet, will steam out with all ships in line to offer a last salute to the victims. A burial service will be held on the spot tomorrow and a memorial service in the tiny church at the Portland dockyard.

Scores of Love Letters Of Negress Bride Read In Rhinelander Trial

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 14.—(A. P.)—Scores of other love letters remain to be introduced in Leonard Kip Rhinelander's annulment suit when the trial was resumed today.

Already 52 fervid illiterate epistles have been read aloud and Al Jolson and Irving Berlin have been dragged in as mythical rivals for the hand of the negress whom the young aristocrat married last year.

Although the main contention of the plaintiff is that his bride deceived him as to her blood, the evidence so far has tended to establish that she was constantly using marriage, partly by recalling their visits to hotels and parties by galatry.

While employed as a housemaid at a summer resort the girl wrote "I was talking with Al Jolson today. He was in swimming but he is some flirt with the girls."

Holland denied that he had ever given Alice Jones Rhinelander any presents, or offered to marry her, or to live with her. His testimony followed introduction of a letter in which the defendant threatened to marry "Eddie" and offer an apartment with him if Rhinelander did not return from Arizona and marry her.
