CHECK ARTIST UNDER ARREST
Lawrence Tuders, 995 Union street, jumped out of the window of his room to avoid Officer Hickman yesterday when Hickman was attempting to arrest him for forgery, but the officer rushed outside and nabbed him anyway. Tuders will appear before Justice of the Peace Small some time today.
Tuders is said to have passed bad checks on the Parrish school store, the Model market and Wayne Schomaker, a confectioner on Center street, and had attempted to pass a check on another place of business where the proprietor notified the police instead of cashing the check.
The name of A. V. Caldwell of the Valley Grill was forged on the checks, according to the officers, and they were made payable to Verne Blair. Tuders is said to have used a rubber stamp that he had in his possession to put the Valley Grill stamp on the checks. All the checks were for $5, and when arrested Tuders, the officers say, had several more made out ready to cash.
Tuders had not been employed at the Valley Grill.

We grieve not for them but for ourselves. We miss them; life can never be the same without them. Nothing but time can heal the hurt and make the period of separation bearable. But when we come to see life in the whole, we rest in the certainty that we have only parted for a short time, that they are just over the borderline waiting for us to join them and continue the long pilgrimage in their company.
