A rosy future for the state of Oregon was visioned by Marshall Dana of Portland, introduced an associate editor of the Oregon Journal, in a speech before the Salem Lions club at its weekly luncheon here today. He announced subject was "Business Idealism in Oregon." He predicted at the start of his speech that there will be a continued upward trend of conditions as regards farming and industry in the northwest, at least until the year 1930. He admitted that after that year he was not sure what the trend would be. Making a brief reference to Portland he said, "Any city that does not serve its hinterland becomes a mere parasite on the country surrounding it."

ASKS DISCHARGE OF SHENANDOAH INQUIRY BOARD

Washington, Nov. 20—(AP)—While the Shenandoah naval court of inquiry was weighing today the guilty or innocence of its former judge advocate, Captain Paul Foley, Secretary Wilbur had before him a formal request of counsel for Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne that the court be discharged from further duties because of the manner in which it conducted the inquiry into her charge against that officer.

The primary complaint of Mrs. Lansdowne's counsel, Joseph Davies, former chairman of the federal trade commission was that Mrs. Lansdowne upon her appearance in the witness stand had been denied counsel while Captain Foley had been permitted to have counsel to cross examine all witnesses called to support her charge that he had sought to sway her testimony.

Moreover, Mr. Davies argued that the court was without authority to investigate the charge that a "hostile judge advocate" (Major Henry Leonard) was the judge of the propriety of his own questions, and that he also was "seeking to impeach her testimony absolutely controls the character of questions which shall be asked of other witnesses."

AUTO SHOW HERE IS ANNOUNCED

Beginning Saturday, Nov. 21, the R. N. McDonald Auto company will hold a special automobile display. The display will continue for one week, or until the following Saturday.

The company's new show room, located at the corner of Perry and South Cottage streets, has been remodeled and specially decorated for the occasion.

Music and refreshments will be offered to visitors. Mr. McDonald head of the company, has issued an invitation to all persons in and near Salem interested in automobile equipment to attend the show.

IF YOU WERE A CITY COUNCILMAN?

Know that we are alive: we should appear thriving. There is a certain attraction about a "great white way" which breathes of success and builds a city; our downtown district, as well as our residence section, should be better lighted.

A well lighted city has far less crime and law breaking than one which tries to economize in light. It has been said that good street lights are worth dozens of policemen.

We have done to put Salem "on the map." However, our good council will agree with me that Salem is on in the day time and off at night.

From all facts you can draw the conclusion that the saving on street lights is poor economy; it is a positive hindrance to a city's development financially and industrially.

Gleasy made the following statement:

"I am glad to see the council make up. The council spends hours up here wrangling on various ordinances but seldom doing anything to enforce them, until the matter has come to be more or less of a joke in the city."

Is it not for the council at this time to move for a commission form of government?

Let the mayor appoint five citizens as a committee to draft a charter for a commission and submit it to the voters at the next general election.

Would it not be well to have some one in or out of the council to look after the finances of the city?

A short time past the statement was made that the city had outstanding bonds to the amount of $450,000, whereas it is only $354,000 the faith of the city is pledged.

It seems that this city is holding considerable money on hand when they draw down $1000 per annum in interest at the 2 per cent on daily balances and have outstanding bonds bearing 6 per cent interest per annum.

Ought not the ways and means committee assume the control of the finances of the city and make a showing?

Is it possible the finances of this city are subordinate to ordinances.

Number Thirty-seven. Contest Editor:—I was ambitious enough to aspire for city councilman and was elected, my first step would be to study the needs and requirements of the city and foster such laws for the betterment of this municipality, bearing in mind that my constituents were depending on me to protect their interests. I would curtail all useless expense, but would not be "penny wise and pound foolish."

I would welcome and encourage industries to locate in our beautiful city to make more payrolls. Would rather such laws for the development of our city commercially and morally. Would see that all laws were enforced with favors to none, in other words "would how to the line and let the chips fall where they may."

My slogan: Yours for a bigger and better city.
