

WOMAN SLAYER OF THIRD SPOUSE TO BE EXECUTED

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(A. P.)—Mrs. Fannie Soper, convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of her third husband, Henry Soper, was sentenced to death in the electric chair by Supreme Court Justice Whitmer today.

A jury, largely of farmers, yesterday returned a verdict of murder, first degree after having listened for 19 days to a trial which has attracted wide attention in the Adirondacks.

Sentence to death in the electric chair is mandatory. If Mrs. Soper is put to death she will be the fourth of her sex from whom the state has exacted the extreme penalty.

Henry Soper was shot twice in the head as he slept in the kitchen of his Boquet farm house after a hard morning's work in the potato fields. Mrs. Soper maintained that a stranger came to the door, asked admittance and was permitted to enter the room in which her husband rested. Then, the widow maintained, she heard two shots, found her husband dead and saw the stranger disappear in an automobile.

The prosecution, basing its case largely on circumstantial evidence contended that Mrs. Soper did the shooting, attempting to prove, through the testimony of an expert, that the two bullets were fired from Soper's own revolver which the widow attempted to keep from investigators.

TAME FOX LEADS PURSUERS MERRY CHASE IN DARK

Gale Hoskins, who runs a fox farm at Hood River, came to Salem the other night to call on Henry Hill at the Ferry street garage. They brought with them a little silver fox, six months old. It is a tame and rides about in their automobile, climbs over their shoulders and is tame as a kitten. Hoskins says he wouldn't take $5000 for him because of his gentleness.

The little fox was chained to a post while the party talked in the nearby office. As they came from the office an hour later a black streak ran across the barn. The fox had loosened its chain and broke away.

The little animal ducked into Ferry street, with Hoskins, his wife and Hill after him. For half an hour a merry, midnight fox hunt was on. The little fellow ducked up the alley back of the new theater. Occasionally a tinkle from his chain gave the pursuers a new clue. Then the fox got playful.

He ran into the street, would allow one of his pursuers to almost touch the chain and then would jump away. The game went on for some time, when Mrs. Hoskins suddenly grabbed the chain and retrieved the animal.

BOBBED HAIR INJURES ENGLISH BRUSH TRADE

London, Nov. 20.—(A. P.)—The modern girl is blamed for many things, but the latest complaint against her is that because she shingles or bobs her hair, the English brush trade has suffered considerably.

Giving testimony before the board of trade committee inquiring into an application from the brush industry for a protective duty on imported hair brushes, manufacturers averred that hair bobbing had influenced the hair brush trade to an enormous extent and said that cheaply produced brushes should be kept out of the country so as to give the home made article a chance.

CHURCHES WILL HOLD 6 SERVICES THANKSGIVING

Details of church services here Thanksgiving day were announced this morning by the Salem Ministerial association. The same general plan of services that was used last year will be carried out this season. Instead of one service in the downtown churches there have been arranged six services in the different sections of the city.

Speakers this year are to be the new ministers who have been in Salem less than a year. The services have been arranged as follows:

Downtown churches—First Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, First Christian and First Evangelical. Church services for this group will be held in the First Evangelical church with Rev. J. W. DeYoe, new pastor of Leslie Methodist church, preaching the sermon.

East Salem—U. B. Chapel, Central Congregational, Court street Christian, Nazarene, Evangelical, United Brethren (Yew Park), Swedish Methodist. Rev. Fred C. Taylor will preach the sermon for this group. The services will be held at the Court street Christian church.

North Salem—Jason Lee Methodist, Highland Friends, Market street Free Methodist. This meeting will be held in the Jason Lee Memorial church, Rev. P. C. Hoffman preaching the sermon.

South Salem—South Salem Friends, Leslie Memorial Methodist at South Salem Friends church, Rev. Norman K. Tully speaking.
