

TEST CHILDREN FOR KNOWLEDGE OF GOOD HEALTH

With the presentation of a standard health knowledge test to the pupils of the 6th grade of Grant school Friday afternoon, the first specific step was taken toward the establishment of an extensive health course in Salem public schools. The test Friday was given by Miss Anne Simpson of the Marion County Child Health Demonstration and Miss Carlotta Crowley, school supervisor in elementary grades.

The printed forms for the tests were secured from Columbia university, New York, where they were originally prepared, and brought here by the Marion County Health Demonstration.

The purpose of the tests is to determine what knowledge the children now have of matters of health. The tests will be given in all grade schools in the city.

"We find it necessary to adopt some means of determining just where to start in for our instruction," said Miss Crowley yesterday. "There would be no object in teaching them principles they already know, or in starting instruction at a point farther advanced than they would be able to comprehend."

Tests exactly like those used here have been used in schools in all parts of the United States. The tests are simple in their nature, consisting of 50 questions, each accompanied by some 5 answers, in each case.

To the Editor:—I would like for some one to answer me this question: Where is justice? Has it come to the time when a man without money has no chance before the law for his life.

Perhaps everybody knows something about the recent convict trial. Tom Murray was convicted of first degree murder, tried, and sentenced to hang. Then Willis and Kelly are tried and found guilty of first degree murder and are sentenced to hang, whether they fired a shot or not. Then a car is parked out on a road beside a watermelon patch. The owner of the place thinks they are going to steal some melons so he takes his gun, kills one, and wounds another. This man is only tried for second degree murder, although there could not be any more of a cold blooded murder. What would have happened to him if he had been a convict? His would have been railroaded to the gallows. Would you call this fair? Certainly not. I believe in justice for all, convict or no convict, rich man or poor man. I do not believe in capital punishment at all, but if they are going to have it all that murder should hang whether they are a rich or poor person. A convict should not be hanged any quicker than anybody else, or a poor man any quicker than a rich man. One gets a little sentence for a murder and another person hangs. I think it is time for the people of Oregon to put Capital punishment out for good. I believe in justice for all.

SUNDAY BILL AT BLIGH IS NOVEL

The Sunday bill at the Bligh theatre promises to be an interesting one. The offering called "Stepping Along" will top the new show. It is a miniature musical comedy, full of jazz and pep. Two pretty girls and two pretty good-looking chaps make up the company. They have many novel steps to offer, the songs used in the bit are all new, and with the beautiful costumes and lighting effects, the number will come in for the headline position.

Another act that will share with the feature attraction is the Sallardo trio in "Jungle Land." This act is made up of three of the world's greatest contortionists. Made up as a monkey, frog and snake, the trio will go through a series of stunts that entertain.

"Oddities On Land and Sea" is the billing of Ardinger and Frain, who have a comedy turn with singing and dancing.

Emeralda and Webb on the marimba-xylophone offer everything from the classics to popular airs.

Billy Single Clifford offers songs, dances and chatter.

A handwriting that is almost counterpart of the style invented by Thomas A. Edison, has been adopted by a school in New York city. Letters are formed separately and no flourishes are used.

Four Out of Five Are Converts

FOUR out of five who have bought Packard Six cars since January first have given up some other make of car.

While 84 different makes have been taken in, nearly half of the total number, 41%, has been made up of four cars.

These four cars cost from more than $1000 less than a Packard Six to nearly $1000 more.

This is evidence that the Packard Six serves men of moderate means equally with those of wealth.

The beauty, comfort and distinction of the Packard Six and its economy, performance and long life are appreciated by every one who is using judgment in the spending of his motor car money.

The price of the Packard Six Five Passenger Sedan, including spare tire, delivered in Salem is $2,956
