MacDowell Concert Monday

A group of the pupils of Chemawa Indian school will assist in the program. Indian themes, Indian lore and Indian love and the way in which these are expressed in their music will be the subject of a talk by George Lent which will be given during the evening.

The program will include also numbers by the Schubert octette under the direction of Miss Minnie Magers. They will sing a cycle of four love songs written by Cadman. The octette which includes a number of new voices this year has been successful recently in radio work.

Miss Nancy Thieleck will give a forest dance, entirely Indian in character, and Mrs. Ruth Emory Riddle will sing several Indian love songs. Miss Carol Dibble will give a group of readings and Miss Eugenia Savage will play several numbers.

Numbers by the Elks orchestra will complete the program. The first concert to be given by the club chorus will be given in Waller hall on Saturday evening, December 5, when a program of Christmas music will be given. The out of town soloist at this concert will be Miss Emilie Lancel, soprano.

Another step in the advancement toward better films has been taken by the local branch of the American Association of University Women in the showing tomorrow morning at ten thirty in the Oregon theater of the fifth of the series in the Chronicles of America produced by the Yale university press. The showing is made directly under the sponsorship of the Salem A. A. U. W. The fifth of the series is "The Frontier Woman" and reveals the part played by women in the building of our nation and the fight for freedom. It shows their steadfastness and courage while their men were away fighting the British and they were left at the mercy of Indian attacks on the stockade.

Jane Thomas was selected by Webster Campbell to portray the typical frontier woman, and she entered into the interpretation of her role with all the ardor that characterizes the work of every one connected with these rare and authentic productions of the most interesting and dramatic highlights of American history. Other roles are enacted by J. W. Johnston, Joseph King, Thornton Baston and others.

"Welcome Home" another Cruze comedy bit of modern married life with Lois Wilson taking another leading role will be shown in connection with "The Frontier Woman."

The showing will be made at ten thirty o'clock tomorrow morning particularly for the benefit of the school children.

REVUE FEATURES BILL AT HEILIG

The inimitable Henry Catalano is billed with the Association Vaudeville circuit which will appear at the Heilig theater today. Catalano and a company of big time performers in their "A Timely Revue" are said to have a large repertoire of dances which include Spanish, buck and wing, soft shoe and Charleston. To miss them would be a crime.

Bill Telak and Irene Dean developed an act which has the title of "Colling," from situations that have been dreamed of or imagined by most everyone, but which are seldom, if ever, seen in real life. They present an act that is one laugh after another.

To take an old violin and make it talk, is the somewhat arduous task set for himself by John Gelsner. He not only makes the instrument impersonate the human voice but he imitates birds and animals equally true.

Mauds Ettet and company, known as "Girls of the Altitude," have not misnamed their act. This daring trio features a number of new and thrilling aerial stunts.

A series of snappy and comical illusions is offered by Clarence Downey and company, under the caption of "Mirth and Mystery."

It is a presentation of tricks and mystery in such manner as to emphasize the comedy end at all times. It can be best described as a humorous illusion spectacle.

TCHITCHERIN IN PARIS; CONFERS ON RUSSIAN DEBT

Paris, Nov. 27.—(A. P.)—The visit here of the soviet foreign minister, M. Tchitcherin, made the occasion of informal conversations with leading French statesmen on the questions pending between the two countries, notably that of Russian debt.

M. Tchitcherin left this morning for the Riviera. It had been announced that he was coming to France for his health, but he found time in his short stay in the capital to interview the premier-designate, Aristide Briand, Premier Palaevo, former Premier Herriot and others.

Upon his return from the south, in ten days or so, by which time the French cabinet crisis, will presumably have been settled, it is hoped the conversations will be resumed in a more formal manner, with the prospect of definite results.

The petit Parisian declares the talk will blossom into full dress official negotiations. There are indications, it adds, that the Moscov government is genuinely desirous of an early settlement of the debt question, realizing that it has an important bearing on the soviet's international relations.
