LONDON PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEAD QUEEN

army or navy of Great Britain, but of the uniforms only the gold braided hats relieved the austere shades of the funeral procession. There was but a single other spot of color—Alexandra's own royal standard, with which the casket was draped.

Handkerchiefs found the eyes of many and sobs were heard in the ranks of the thousands who had waited for hours in the cold and wet, far among them were some who had seen Alexandra pass up and down the same street under clearer skies and in happier circumstances.

The soft slow music to the cadence of which the procession moved was stopped as the gun carriage reached the entrance of the abbey, and the coffin was carried into the darkened building on the broad shoulders of eight guardsmen who placed it upon a catafalque before the high altar.

In the Abbey waiting the arrival of the procession was Queen Mary, dressed in deep black, her face covered with a heavy veil, and around her were the queens of Spain, Norway and Blegium, Princess Mary, the Duchess of York and several scores of relatives. The queen and her party had driven directly from the palace, arriving more than half an hour before the funeral procession.

Queen Mary was visibly affected throughout the service. She raised her handkerchief to her eyes when the casket was brought into the abbey and several times found it impossible to continue in the singing of the hymns.

The Archbishop of Canterbury read the service and the quiet funeral rites were ended with "God Save the King."

The king left his place, followed by the queen and other royalty, to the strains of Chopin's Funeral March, and after their withdrawl the congregation departed silently, leaving the casket on the catafalque alone before the altar of the great church. As the building was emptied the sun suddenly shown forth, its rays streaming through the windows and playing over the bier.

At 1 p. m. the doors of the abbey were again opened and a long procession began of those of the general public desirous of paying tribute to the dead queen for the last time.

The coffin after remaining in the Abbey all night, will be carried tomorrow morning to Windsor for burial in the private royal chapel.

Among those going from Salem were C. F. French, Hugh Bell, J. W. Moore and J. B. Crary, leaders; Hugh Shattuck, William East and Floyd Albin, of the First Congregational Sunday school; Poul Lee, Kelly Moore and Kenneth Pugh of the First Methodist Sunday school; Don Siegmund and Arthur Curtis, Presbyterians; Raymond Carl of the Hi-Y club; Ivan Kafoury and Homer Smith, Jr., of the Intermediate Leaders' class of the Y. M. C. A.; Winston Williams, Episcopal; Ted Shanks, Baptist; Wesley Heise of the Junior Leaders' Y. M. C. A. class; Lyell McEkmurry of Jason Lee; Lester Falk of the South Salem Friends and Ronald Hulbert of Leslie Methodist.

A banquet will be held for all the delegates this evening. Saturday's program will be featured by an address in the forenoon, by Dr. U. G. Dubach, dean of men at Oregon agricultural college. Dr. Dubach's subject is to be "Pep Without Purpose." The conference will close with a business session and committee reports Sunday morning.

ADOPTION CASE TO BE APPEALED

An appeal will be taken from the decision of Judge McMahan in the case of Edna Z. Johnson against William E. and Eva Johnson, involving adoption of Willard C. Xand Vivian F. Johnson, minors according to announcement made today by Wallace Carson, one of the attorneys for the defendants.

The proceedings have been a particular interest because of law points involved. In his decree of Judge McMahan overturned adoption proceedings of the county court, declaring that the children are legally still the children of their parents.

It was charged by Edna Z. Johnson, plaintiff, and mother of the children, that adoption proceedings were had on representation that she was insane, when, she declared as a matter of fact she was not insane. While she had been an inmate of the state hospital, at the time of the adoption proceedings, she charged she had been discharged as cured and the court holds that she was not insane at the time the adoption proceedings were started.

Judge McMahan holds that the adoption proceedings are null and void, and decrees the children to the parents.

A peculiar angle of the proceedings is that the father not only consented to the adoption but urged it, the children being adopted by his parents. The suit was brought by the mother alone, but the court decrees that both the father and mother are their guardians.

Among other grounds of attack made on the complaint in the circuit court was that the circuit court had no jurisdiction in the matter of adoption proceedings, this, it was alleged, being a matter of exclusive jurisdiction for the county court.
