

THOUSANDS FILE PAST CASKET OF QUEEN MOTHER

London, Nov. 28.—(A. P.)—Thousands of persons rendered homage to the Dowager Queen Alexandra in Westminster Abbey until an early hour today. In an endless line formed shortly after the funeral Friday they passed by the bier in the dimly lighted cathedral until 1 o'clock this morning. It seems to be the desire of all London to pay tribute to Alexandra before she was laid to rest today beside King Edward VII, her husband, in the tomb beneath St. George's chapel at Windsor.

When midnight approached it was estimated that some 70,000 persons had filed past the coffin. Three tragic deaths have occurred in connection with the passing of Alexandra. Yesterday evening the lady mayoress, wife of Sir William P. Joyce, lord mayor of London, died suddenly from heart disease after she had attended a memorial service in St. Paul's cathedral.

In the afternoon Canon Westlake, custodian of Westminster Abbey, who had overtaxed himself in arranging for the funeral of Alexandra, went home ill. "I am afraid it has been too much for me," his wife heard him murmur as she sat at the bedside. Immediately afterwards the canon died.

At Sunderland on Wednesday the warden of the church was killed as he was preparing the bells for tolling during yesterday's service in Westminster. A large bell which had been tilted fell over and pinned him to the floor of the belfry, crushing his head and body.

SILVERTON DEFEATED BY WEST LYNN 7 TO 0
Silverton, Or., Nov. 28.—(Special.)—West Lynn defeated Silverton high in a very evenly matched game of football here Thursday afternoon. In spite of the weather a very good crowd was out. The score was 7 to 0.

It is much easier for a wife to get along with her husband if she can get along on his salary.

The egotist is always the other fellow.

The Ship

A DRAMA—By St. John Ervine
The Queen christens, H. M. S. "Magnificent". Mr. Ervine has pictured in a drama of compelling power the story of John Thurlow's passion for the ships he has built, of his son's determination to break loose from shipbuilding and all our machine-driven civilization and go back to the land, and the effect of his decision on his own life and his father's.

for Married Men Only

—a straight from-the-shoulder message about the little woman you promised to love, honor and protect Remember Those Days of Romance?

"In the Spring, a young man's fancy—" you remember those romantic days?

Remember the moonlight strolls—serious talks—those ambitions and plans for the future?

You were filled with hope. Enthusiasm ran high. Ideals were lofty. Promises came readily. Nothing the tender emotions of love—those long would be too good for the one little sweetheart in all the world.

NOW How About It?

Time has passed. Now think a moment. Are you living up to the promises and vows you made?

Are you permitting that little woman to fall into the habit of making useless sacrifice? Are you permitting her to become a slave to needless home drudgery? Have you got her chained to the strength-sapping, health-wrecking washtub?

Are you permitting her to do the drudgery YOU would never do—disagreeable, back-breaking labor not fit for a scullery maid? Perhaps she has not complained. But put yourself in her place. YOU would never submit to it.

She Saves You Nothing By It.

If you'll figure things correctly, you'll discover that she saves nothing whatever by it.

Few have ever really figured up the several little costs of doing washings at home. Do this, and you'll be surprised. You never have ENOUGH hot water, without extra heating. Figure this cost. Figure the actual cost of soaps and powders, starch and bluing. Figure the weekly cost of boilers, tubs, wringers, clothes lines, clothes-pins, etc. You'll find it's far more than you thought.

And then consider the costs which cannot be computed in terms of money—the cost of run-down health—the cost of ageing your wife before her time—the cost of rough, unsightly hands which this drudgery will bring on her. Consider the cost of the grouchy, cheerless Monday evenings you spend. Consider the cost of denying the children time for thought, attention, careful direction and rearing which is vitally necessary to their future.

Smokes One Cigar Less Per Day.

If your wife MUST save you the 35c to 45c per week wages she earns by rubbing clothes over a washboard—why not smoke just one cigar less each day, or one less package of cigarettes every two days—and let this pay for the difference she saves you?

If you're a smoker, can you let her slave away longer, one day each week, in a mussy, sloppy, steamed-up room, in order that you may indulge your appetite for tobacco?

Now Be Honest

Let's face this question, as man to man.

Do you honestly like to go home evenings on washday, as well as on other evenings? Do you like seeing your wife tired, worn out, less cheerful, not so well groomed as on other evenings?

Now put this whole question to the acid test. Give laundry service a two-weeks' trial. Give YOUR wife at least two weeks' well-earned freedom, as hundreds of other Salem husbands have done. You take no chance whatever. We GUARANTEE not to lose or harm a thing.

Just call 165. Tell us when to call for your first trial bundle.
