FISHING ISSUES BEFORE COURTS FOR SETTLEMENT

A new question relative to commercial fishing in Oregon is up for legal settlement in the case of J. W. Le Clair against the fish commission which will be heard at Marshfield next Friday, with W. S. Moore, assistant attorney general representing the state, Le Clair's right to fish in New River, Coos county, is involved.

There is no order of the commission or no special status affecting the waters of New River in Coos county, although there is authority closing New River and New Lake in Curry county. Le Clair brought suit to enjoin the master fish warden and his deputy from interfering with his operation of a gill net in New River in Coos county. The fish commission demurred, contending that an act of 1921 prohibiting commercial fishing in any waters over which the state has jurisdiction except as otherwise provided by law would apply against Le Clair's operations in Coos county. The commission contends that since there have been no statutes enacted opening these waters to commercial fishing they are controlled by the general statute. The state will contend further that the action was not properly brought by Le Clair, and that he should have instituted a mandamus proceeding to compel the commission to issue a license to him in Coos county his license applying to other waters in the district.

At Tillamook on Wednesday of this week will be heard the case of Tom Price against the fish commission and master fish warden, in which Price is attempting to have declared void an order of the commission closing to commercial fishing the waters of various streams tributary to Tillamook bay on and after October 10, 1925, for an indefinite period. He contends that the commission is without jurisdiction and was attempting to enact legislation, also that notice of the order was not published for the period required by law or in the legal manner.

On the same day at Tillamook will be tried the case of John A. Nielson against the fish commission, an attack against an order closing Hoquarton slough to commercial fishing. A demurrer by the commission was sustained by Judge Bagley and an amended complaint has been filed.

The University of British Columbia, located at Victoria, B. C., has announced that it expects to petition for admittance to the new northwest conference within a short time. Next year's Athletic Day game will be the first in history between British Columbia and Willamette. The Canadian school is somewhat handicapped due to the fact that it turns out two teams one to play the American style of football and the other the English. The possibility is seen that it may drop the English game upon entering the northwest conference.

Arrangements are being made to schedule a series between the winner of the northwest conference title in basketball and the winner of the conference at smaller schools in southern California. The southern California conference consists of Pomona, Whittier, Occidental, Redlands, the southern branch of the university of California and others.

The first annual track meet of the new northwest conference will be held at Salem on May 29, 1926, the other five schools in the conference being guests of Willamette here. The first annual tennis tournament will be held at Walla Walla on May 21 and 22 under the auspices of Whitman.

In baseball, the winner of Willamette, Pacific, Linfield and C. P. S. will play the winner of the College of Idaho and Whitman for the conference title, no attempt being made for each school to play around the circuit due to the distance between schools.

Free Licenses for Vets
Portland, Dec. 14.—(AP)—All disabled war veterans who are entitled to government compensation after May 28, 1925, will be issued free hunting and fishing licenses in Oregon, the state game commission decided today at its regular meeting.

Reaching a level of 3.8 feet above normal at about 10 o'clock this morning, the Willamette river rose to its highest point since March 23 today. On March 23 a height of 3.8 feet was registered. By 1:30 this afternoon the river level had gone down to 2.5 feet above normal, which was till the highest the river has registered since June 5, when heavy rains brought the river level up to exactly that height.

FAME OF MARION COUNTY'S ROADS SPREADING FAST

The fame of Marion county's roads are spreading over the entire nation, according to a letter received by Roadmaster Culver from the Kentucky Rock Asphalt company of Louisville, Ky., in which the company asked Culver for further data in regard to the construction of the roads.

The company received its information as to the roads in this county from a clipping in a Kentucky paper which had been taken from a clipping out of a newspaper of Poultny, Vermont. The article in the Vermont paper was as follows:

"Marion county, Oregon, for the past few years, has been quietly carrying on a road paving program which has resulted in hard surfaced highways into every section of the county. In fact, all the principal county roads will be paved in the not distant future.

"A practical plan has been followed. "For years gravel or crushed rock has been hauled on the roads and packed down until it is from six inches to a foot deep.

"Instead of disturbing this well packed base, Marion county has had it covered with four inches of asphaltic concrete which protects it from the water and absorbs the impact of traffic.

"Some of this pavement is now 10 years old, has required little or no maintenance expense and is in as good condition as when first laid.

"This type of road construction gives full value of every dollar expended in hauling rock onto a road and secures a high grade type of pavement at from one-half to one-third the cost often involved in road paving programs which overlook the salvage value of old highways.—Poultny Journal."

LOVE TRIANGLE ENDS IN CAPTURE OF RUNAWAYS

Monte Miller and Oscar Hancock are in the city jail, while Mrs. Hancock and her 3-year-old son are in the care of Police Matron Myra Shank, and Chief of Police Frank Mintz is in communication with department of justice officials in Portland, all the result of Hancock's sudden arrival in Salem Saturday night.

Hancock was in search of his wife and son, and also Monte Miller, the man with whom he left Saskatchewan, Canada. Hancock trailed them 1300 miles, and succeeded in locating them in Salem. Friday night Hancock quietly applied for a bed at the police station, and it was given him. Saturday morning he proceeded to get busy and he located the couple at 732 North Commercial street. It is said his wife fainted when he suddenly appeared, and in the confusion Miller got away. Hancock hurriedly went to the police station where his wife and child were placed in custody of the police matron. Miller was arrested a little later at 2063 State street.

While Miller was in charge of the police Hancock attempted to attack him and with difficulty was prevented by the officers from taking personal revenge.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Hancock were married in England and that marital difficulties developed after they moved to Canada.

ARMY COACH NEXT 5 YEARS FOR OREGON

thanked declared: "We gave him a five year contract. It is our future policy to put athletics on a firm basis and we are going to give Captain McEwan every opportunity to make good."

Before becoming head coach in 1923, Captain McEwan was assistant for four years to Major Daly, now advisory coach at Harvard. Captain McEwan started his career in 1911 as a player on the University of Minnesota team. In 1912, 13 and 14 he played at West Point. He was in the World War from 1915 to 1918, returned in 1919 to become assistant to Major Daly.

Won 18 Games
Under his leadership the arm has won 18 games, lost five and tied three. This year the army was the first team to break Notre Dame, 1924 champions, defeating them, 28 to 6. The West Point team was defeated by Yale 23 to 7, but quickly rallied and won from the Navy in their big game, 10 to 2.

New York, Dec. 14.—(A. P.)—Captain John J. McEwan has been head football coach at West Point for the last three years, during which his eleven have twice beaten and once tied their historic rivals, the Navy academy.

McEwan gained fame as a cadet, playing with the Army teams of 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916, during which four-year period the West Pointers scored decisive triumphs over the navy each season. McEwan was the center on one of the Army's greatest football combinations and was placed on Walter Camp's first all-American team in 1914. He was captain of the 1915 eleven. Among his team mates were Eugene Vidal and Elmer Olliphant, two famous cadet backfield stars.

But there's is only one case of the 200 or more little tots who Santa may forget unless the Christmas Cheer movement comes to his assistance. Santa is not too wealthy this year, and he says that his store of toys and goodies is not nearly large enough to go around.

Santa needs help. He said so upon his recent visit to Salem.

The Elks and the Capital Journal responded. They are going to need help also. For that help they are appealing to Mr. and Mrs. Salemite who have just a little more than they need for Christmas. Perhaps they have a little spare money to contribute, or a bundle of children's clothes, or shoes; some good solid food for hungry little stomachs, or some of the little delicacies that make Christmas the big day in the year for the kiddies.
