WILL M. PURDY PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF 63

A varied career of political, business and professional ventures, a portion of which were successful, came to an end today with the death of William Ellsworth Purdy, for the last decade a familiar personage in Salem. Mr. Purdy was 63 years old.

Mr. Purdy's last political venture was as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress for the first district in 1924 when he was beaten by J. L. Clark, also of Salem. One of his successful political campaigns was as a candidate for delegate to the democratic national convention at San Francisco in 1920, he being one of those elected out of a large field of candidates.

Frequent defeats did not discourage Mr. Purdy in politics, nor in litigation, and often he was an opponent to high state or congressional officials, including the office of governor for which he was a candidate in at least one democratic primary, while he always had cases pending in the courts.

For several years of his life Mr. Purdy was an evangelist. He also had been admitted to the practice of law. He engaged in numerous business occupations, including real estate, and, until a few years ago, the operation of a bath house in the Oregon building in Salem.

As a delegate to the national democratic convention in San Francisco Mr. Purdy was the only member from Oregon to vote for the Bryan prohibition amendment. He had the endorsement of a large number of Oregon democrats and republicans for a position on the United States shipping board after the resignation of George E. Chamberlain.

At the last two sessions of the Oregon legislature Purdy had introduced, through Senator La Follette, a bill that would have required the posting of the Lord's prayer in public places and in industrial plants. He got the endorsement of Protestant and Catholic clergymen to the measure, but it failed to pass.

Mr. Purdy was born at Westmoreland, N. Y., February 27, 1862. He came to Oregon 24 years ago and had lived in this state continuously since that time. For the past 15 years he had owned and cultivated land in Oregon most of the time and engaged in the building occupation quite extensively. Also he was for a time in the general merchandise business.

Mr. Purdy started the movement that resulted in the building of a bridge across the Willamette river at Newberg, where he formerly lived. For a time he was president of the Oregon Realty Exchange investment company, Inc.

He was a great admirer of William Jennings Bryan and prior to the convention of 1920, stated in the voters' pamphlet that if elected he would be greatly influenced by Bryan's advice.

His diversity of interests led to litigation and Mr. Purdy was a party to some famous cases before the lower and the supreme courts of the state. One case was pending at the time of his death.

Mr. Purdy is survived by his widow, nine children and a large number of grandchildren.
