TREATY TO STOP CUBAN DRY LEAKS

Washington, Dec. 26—(AP)—Another liquor treaty joining Cuba and the United States in an effort to guard this country's prohibition dykes against leakage from the island, is in prospect.

A southern port inspection trip began by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, prohibition enforcement chief, and Assistant Solicitor Vallance of the state department, will take them to Havana, where it is expected they will be able to lay the groundwork for the treaty. It would be similar to those recently completed by this country with Mexico and Canada.

With the northern and southwestern borders materially reinforced by means of the treaties, enforcement officials regard the gulf and southern coastal regions as next requiring special attention. They desire an agreement with the island republic which would give the United States amplified powers in the area between Cuba and the Florida keys, a favorite haunt of smugglers since early pirate days.

"ANTHRACITE OPERATORS CONFERENCE.

"William Inglis, chairman negotiating committee."

Hazleton, Pa., Dec. 26—(AP)—"The men will not be stampeded back to work," said Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers today in reference to the anthracite operators' proposition that the workers resume operations immediately.

The proposition of the owners, said Kennedy, was in the offer made by the Luzerne county delegation of the Pennsylvania house of representatives two weeks ago.

"The workers will not return until a contract is agreed to," Kennedy added. The action of the operators is circulating the proposition at this time, he said, shows "a klack of faith" and is an attempt to "prejudice" the wage conference to be held in New York next week.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 26—(AP)—Union officials will give their answer to the proposition that anthracite miners resume work under the old wage scale when they meet the operators in joint conference in New York Tuesday, President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America said here today. He declined further comment.

These suits consist of jackets and trousers in Chinese style, in dark colors and heavily embroidered. They are being worn at the "smoking parties" for women which are popular in smart circles this season and in which cigarettes replace the usual teacups.

FOREHEADS FASHIONABLE BUT EARS STILL HIDDEN

London, Dec. 26.—(A. P.)—Foreheads have again become fashionable, but women's ears must still be covered up and are useful only as appendages from which great earrings may dangle.

London hair dressers have come to the rescue of women whose heads and faces lack the highly classical lines necessary to make the slicked down hair becoming. The hair is now swept straight back from the forehead and the first and second dainty waves cause graceful loops to fall back over the ears, merely indicating the shape of the head without accentuating unattractive lines.

the plumbers' union. The donation should have been credited to the master plumbers association. The plumbers union also contributed $5.

Christmas afternoon and evening saw the largest distribution of gift packages and baskets that has ever been made in a cheer movement here, and the volunteer Elks labored far and into the evening to see that all of the gifts were delivered. But even Christmas morning found some few children, not previously reported, still unprovided for. These cases were, however, all attended to during the day by Fred Erixon and his committee, whose untiring efforts were largely responsible for the thoroughness with which the movement functioned this year.

These tickets are good at any show through tonight and Sunday.

BILL INSURES FEDERAL AID FOR FARMERS

Although inclined toward creation of such sort of agency which would indicate how a surplus should be handled, Secretary Jardine remains opposed to actual government handling or to price fixing. He is anxious, however, that something be done and expects to call farm leaders to Washington for consultation over details. The first of a series of conferences of this character probably will be called within the next ten days.

Not Involve Price Fixing

The secretary expressed confidence today that sufficient progress was being made to indicate the possibility of arriving at a plan that would not involve price fixing or put the government in the actual business of handling farm products. He strongly disputed any suggestion that he had made any concessions from his former stand on his problem.

"Although I have repeatedly recognized the surplus problem and the need for finding a sound solution for it I have consistently opposed government price fixing or the handling of farm products by government agencies," he said. "I continued discussion of the question during the past few months gives me the feeling that we are entering more and more upon common ground and I am greatly encouraged over the possibilities of arriving at a sound and workable plan."

Create Commission

The plan now under consideration by the agricultural department centers upon the creation of a farm board or commission with board powers to deal with the surplus problem, but with the handling of farm products resting absolutely with farmer controlled agencies. In one extreme form which has been proposed, the legislation would call for extending financial aid from the government in handling surplus farm products and the levying of an excise tax to take care of probable losses in operation.

Secretary Jardine said he could not approve or disapprove the functions of the proposed board until he had a fuller opportunity to go into the matter.
