REMODELLED BANK OPENED TO INSPECTION

All day today, and until 10 o'clock this evening, the United States National bank appears in the role of host to the people of Salem, giving them a chance for complete inspection of their remodeled banking quarters which are virtually new, as not only has the bank doubled its size, but has installed new fixtures and furnishings from top to bottom.
Under the completed renovation of the banking qquarters, an entire store building has been added to the floor space of the bank, the elevator and stairs to the upper floors were moved from the center to the north of the building and the main bank entrance placed where the old entrance of the building formerly was in the center of the present banking quarters.
In addition to supplying commodious qquarters expected to take care of the bank's business for years to come, the improvements give a beautiful effect throughout, entirely transforming the bank's interior. Floors are of Tennessee marble, the counters of Verdelia marble, maple finish is carried throughout the cages, and bronze and plate glass make up the balance of the tellers' cages.
With spacious customers' quarters in the center of the room; ladies' rest rooms at the right daintily furnished; quarters for meetings and consultations of customers; a roomy safety deposit department with special booths and other accommodations for patrons and a number of other similar arrangements, the bank has installed every convenience within the imagination of the architects for customer convenience.
In addition bookkeepers' and stenographers' rooms have been installed to keep noise from the main banking quarters; entirely new vaults have been put in; commodious officers' quarters provided, and smaller improvements are general in detail for improved service and rapid accommodations.
The bank has been open from 7 this morning and will remain open until 10 tonight so that inspection may be made of all departments by customers and friends, with employes on hand throughout the entire period to greet and guide the guests.

SEEK ARREST OF JUDGMENT FOR CONVICTS

dence that James Willos was in the custody and charge of the San Quentin state penitentiary or the state of California "and that defendant Elsworth Kelly had been sentenced to serve 20 years in the Oregon state penitentiary the term of which had not expired," and that in the case of Tom Murray, "he has about 17 years to serve in the Oregon state penitentiary." It is stated that Murray and Willos also are both on parole from the San Quentin penitentiary in California and consequently it will be advanced that they still were and now are technically in the custody of prison officials of that state.

Cruelty Alleged.

In an affidavit accompanying the motion for a stay of execution in the cases of Willos and Kelly, the two men aver that during the time of their trials they were handcuffed in charge of the deputy warden of the Oregon penitentiary and his assistants each time they were brought to the court room for trial until they reached an office adjacent to the court room. They further aver that during all the time of their trial they had prison numbers on their clothing, that of Willos being 8956 and that of Kelly 8683 and that before entering the court room they had removed from them the shackles with which they were bound while being brought from the prison to the court room.
The affidavit goes on to say further that during the entire time of their trial the deputy warden sat behind them and they were in charge of J. W. Lillie, the then deputy warden of the penitentiary, who is now the warden. The affidavit goes on to say that they were not permitted to leave the court room at any time except in his charge and custody and that he or his assistants were always with them until returned to the penitentiary from the court room.
