Health

The person who boasts that he or she never went to a doctor in their lives are few and far between and frequently a close investigation would disclose that their boast was not based on fact.

After the doctor has prescribed comes the selection of the pharmacist to fill the prescription.

Our large prescription business in the Salem community is built on the fact that we use only the highest ingredients and that we do not substitute—and that our patrons have experienced better results because of this with their prescriptions.
