

HALT DECLINE EGG PRICES BUTTER FIRM

Portland, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The decline in the local egg market has been halted temporarily with quotations holding steady and unchanged on the dairy board for the day.

No change was made in cubic quotations on the butter exchange and the market is displaying a steady tone. Production continues heavy with surplus stock from the country amounting to 16,801 pounds during the past 24 hours.

Country dressed hogs are a trifle easier although choice light pork still commands 17c. Fancy veal moved out promptly at 17c-17 1/2c. The live poultry market maintains a steady tone with offerings moving out at full prices. Turkeys are quiet and inactive.

The jobbing market on eggs is in better shape although primary markets still are quiet and inactive.

Recent advances in the onion market are fully maintained. Both cold and dry storage stocks on the coast are light and remaining stocks are in strong hands. Prices are unchanged.

Radio Proves Real Mystery But Helps Pass Time Away

Receiving Set Better Than Majority for Five Stations Are Often Heard At One Time

(By Ella McMunn of Quincy.)

One year ago, on New Year's eve, I was given a radio. I had never seen one before and never heard one, and so that you will understand my frame of mind, I will say that I had never wanted to see or hear one.

But, having suffered much in my life, and always coming through with flying colors and realizing that this would be at least a new form of torture and that we all have to die sometime, I accepted it.

It required all the strong men in my village to raise the pole. It is a fine pole and I cannot fully describe the joy and satisfaction I have had from the mere contemplation of it. Not a little of this pleasure is derived from the evident admiration and possible envy with which passers-by view it, allowing their minds to run on to thoughts of the window, sweetness and marvels the infernal—pardon, I mean internal—machine is producing for my benefit.

Then too, the radio like it, I like it. It is silent in its own way, but it is not silent at all. It is the most unobtrusive of all the things in the world, and what it does and hears, from its lofty height in the heavens it keeps directly to itself, although sometimes, there is a tiny smile behind its ears, I fancy.

As to the receiving set, neither having seen or heard any other, I naturally think that it is as good as any. Indeed it must be a trifle better than most, because of the great number of stations I can get.

all at the same time. Throughout the summer season, I can hear three places at once, and I know that it is all sprung up with three batteries. I can hear five without moving the dial. This is a great advantage, for, without turning over on my couch, I can listen to preaching, talks on feeding the baby, music, prize fights, and I think from the sound, I can tell. When fewer than three stations are audible at once, I read to occupy the unemployed parts of my mind.

As to the expense, that is a mere trifle. During the eight months out of twelve it has been running it has cost $22.50 for tubes and batteries. I did not include the expense of having these necessities put in place, but if radio men charge like truck men and I should have had to pay for the two dozen professional calls it required, this item would have been $100. I did try to hitch on tubes and batteries, myself, but blew up a couple of sets and we concluded it was cheaper to send for Ormiston—I mean a radio expert.

Nor have I counted my time getting up to dismantle it and hang the dangerous parts out of the window during a thunder storm. Indeed, I cannot count those times, for whenever my dog falls off the lounge, or knocks the flower pot over or even sits up a flea on his back, I get up to see him. Also, I have had to give up chewing gum, because of the roar when wearing the ear phones, and at this moment the only thing I can remember of any importance that I have heard from the strange, wonderful, supernatural radio land is: "Home is the place where we change our clothes."
