

ZENA MINSTREL SHOW SUCCESS; TOURS PLANNED

Zena, Feb. 21.—Laughter, which in its intensity did fair to rock the very foundations on which the building stood, greeted the minstrels who entertained a capacity house at the regular Community club meeting here Friday night and held at the school house Saturday night. Throughout in preparation, an abundance of new material with which to entertain, combined to make this annual event an outstanding success.

Many times during their acting the lady minstrels were forced to allow the crowd to receive from members before they could continue. Splendid harmony marked the numbers sung by the lady quartet. Small pianos in the scene added spice to the scene. Mrs. Grace Crawford and Mrs. Emma McCarter who formed the ladies' quartet, opened the program with "My Mammy." A talking act, "One Hambleton for Two," with Mrs. Frank Matthews as Mr. Dingsberry, and Mrs. Roy Barker as Mrs. Wiggins, came next followed by "My Mammy's" "Dollie Lullaby," by the ladies' quartet, and a one-act play "They're in Agony," in which Mrs. Emma McCarter and Mrs. May Gillson took the parts of Mrs. Cantalope and Mrs. Featherstone.

"There Ain't No Baby in My Baby's Eyes," sung by the quartet was followed by "Boles and Soap Suds," a talking act with Mrs. Wayne Henry as Defina Digt and Mrs. Frank Crawford as Proxy Trivial. "Plantation Lullaby," a song by the quartet completed the first half of the program.

"Roll Them Bones," "Pickin' in De Barn" and "Gimme Up Ye Children, Children," all chorus songs, opened the men's program. "Go Ahead Bear and See if I Care," a solo by Roy Barker called for the encore "Rock-a-Bye My Baby Blues," all of the men's voices assisting in the chorus. "Who stole Dat Lock," sung by the chorus, was followed by "Heavenly," which was entered by Charles McCarter as the solo part in "Stay in Your Own Backyard." The mouthpiece trio, composed of Ralph Sohn, Louis Butler and James Hatt, played two selections and were asked for more. William Crawford sang "Hush-a-Bye," and responded to an encore with "Behind the Clouds." La Palma played on the accordion by Byron Purvine, was encored. "Fleadin' Down in Cotton Town" a quartet number by Charles McCarter, Ralph Scott, Donald Crawford, also was encored. They used "Bring the Wagon Home, John," as their second selection.

The monologue by Louis Butler kept the audience in constant laughter. A clog dance by Ralph Sohn and Louis Butler followed by "Good Night White Folks," sung by the entire company, finished the program.

The cast of men characters included W. Frank Crawford as Interlocutor; Ralph Scott as Elton; Fred Purvine as Rowell; Frank Matthews as Rowell; Donald Crawford as Sambo; William Crawford as George Washington; Frank Butler as Ferdinand; Charles McCarter as Rufus; Louis Butler as Abe; Byron Purvine as Niggerdinus; Ralph Sohn as Sunshine; Roy Barker as Bones and James Hatt as Mose.
