Typical Drinking Case Lands Three Youths of 17 Years in City Jail

A case typical of those with which the police and school authorities have to deal in combating liquor drinking among boys and girls was demonstrated in the arrest of Elvo Allen, James Niles and E. A. Garrett, each 17 years of age, on charges of drunkenness and possession of liquor last night. Allen and Niles are high school boys, and under the ruling announced by Principal J. C. Nelson today, face permanent suspension from school until they furnish a satisfactory explanation of where they got the moonshine liquor they were drinking.

The liquor, according to the police officers, is the worst sample of "pure poison" they have seen in months, and when the boys were interrogated by officers two or three hours after their arrest all were in a more or less stupified condition, and one admitted that his face felt like it was paralyzed.

Garrett, who said that the pint of booze found in his possession when they were taken into custody, was taken from the boys. Rather than hold them in jail overnight in company with three habitual drunks the police released the youths last night on their own recognizance.

REFUND CLAIMS TO BE IGNORED

In regard to the claim of the state against the county for a share of the Oregon & California tax refund, served on the county a few weeks ago by Secretary of State Ecker, County Judge Hunt stated today that the county will adopt a watchful waiting policy. No answer will be made to the state's demands, which will be ignored completely.

This puts it up to the state to make the next move, and it is understood that the state is ready to move if it knew which way to move. It is reported that the state is in a quandary as to just what sort of an action to bring in its effort to make Marion county, and incidentally seventeen other counties, disgorge its share of the pickings from the Stanfield bill.

MISSISSIPPI'S LEVEES BREAK

Reached until last night when forecast saw new waters in prospect in the result of rains in the headlands. St. Louis is considered the northern boundary of the danger area.

ARKANSAS WORST OFF
The most critical situation in Arkansas was at Clarendon, where the White and Cache rivers come together. A break in a levee there yesterday caused widespread flooding and rendered many homeless with little food or clothing. The only communication to the town is the telephone which had not gone out today and over which reports of the suffering were relayed to The Associated Press and to the outside world.

Wind and rain storms swept over the state early today, pouring a part of a torrential rain storm into a corner of Texas, near Texarkana. A cloudburst which struck Texarkana at midnight had loosed three inches of precipitation within half an hour and was continuing. Unfamed reports that a tidal wave of water was on its way from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of Mexico.

DELUGE WEAKENS BANKS
The St. Francis river valley in the northeastern portion of Arkansas is in the path of a gigantic volume of water flowing through a trap in the delta near Little Rock. It is estimated that more than 1,000,000 acres of land will be inundated from this break alone.

At Little Rock in the central portion of the state, a deluge yesterday flooded many streets and continually pounded the Arkansas river levee. The danger of losing the source of the city's water was alleviated late last night when engineers successfully built a barrier around the pumping station. Little Rock reported six more deaths in that vicinity yesterday, bringing the total number to well over a score known.

HEAVY RAINFALLS
Pine Bluff reported one of the heaviest rainfalls on record yesterday and awaited a record crest in the Arkansas river, while the main attention there was concentrated upon the care of hundreds of refugees who have sought safety from the water menace in the city.

Armed guards were patrolling the levees on the Red river in both Arkansas and Texas.

It is estimated that 400 square miles were inundated in these two states as the result of breaks along the Red River and backwaters, where there were no levees protecting.

Epidemics had broken out yesterday in two refugee camps in Arkansas. Mumps and other contagious diseases were offering a new menace to the sufferers.

Organized relief agencies estimate the number of homeless in the flood throughout the valley at 50,000 and up.

SUES CHILDREN TO RECOVER PROPERTY

Independence, Or., April 21.—Sue to recover a deed to her home, furniture and cash amounting to around $500 has been filed by attorneys of Mrs. Mary Stansberry, 52, who is said to have been persuaded by her children to give them title. Mrs. Stansberry claims that she was misled by her son, who explained by the children as due to a fall.

Edward Stansberry, a son, came to Independence from Pendleton about a month ago and with a sister, Mrs. Mattie A. Hewitt of Montezuma, Wash., have been caring for their mother who has been ill. It is said they persuaded her to deed to them Mrs. Stansberry's home, furniture and her money in the bank. Mrs. Stansberry later changed her mind and when the two children refused to give back the property, instituted action. She is now at the home of Mrs. Frank Ariell. Pending settlement of the suit I. M. Walker, president of the First National bank, is acting as receiver.

BOY THIEVES FLASHED TOO MUCH MONEY

Two boys possessed of so much money that they excited suspicion were arrested by Salem police yesterday upon advice from an employee of Harry Scott's motorcycle shop. The older boy, J. E. Lakson, 13, had stolen a Chevrolet touring car and $200 from his father, and with his companion, Robert Haininger, 14, was on his way south from Portland.

The automobile got a flat tire at 14th and State streets and was abandoned there. The boys came on down town and Lakson arranged to buy a motorcycle from Scott. He made a down payment of $120 and paid two installments. When searched at the police station late yesterday Lakson had $197.77 on him. He admitted having $200 when he left Portland. The two juveniles were turned over to Portland officers early today.

MISTRIAL ENDS SAPIRO'S SUIT

Motion for mistrial, filed by the judge after William Henry Galt, chief of counsel for Sapiro, and Hanley had debated the motion at length.

"Up to the time that the public press interfered with the functions of this court, the court believed no mistrial should be granted."

"It is deeply regrettable and deplorable that a case which has cost so much money and labor should come to this conclusion."

"But when that newspaper report became known it seemed, and seems now impossible to proceed."

Gallagher in a formal statement last night disclaimed any intention to come into court today and argue against the part of the motion for a mistrial as based upon Mrs. Hoffman's having granted the interview. However, promptly at the opening of the trial he launched into a 45-minute address so carefully prepared as an argument against the motion that when he stated in conclusion it was not such an appeal, Hanley was taken by surprise and had to have the court reporter read him Gallagher's final remarks.

The expressed concern lest the judgment reached if the trial proceeded, be reversed by a higher court.

300 WITNESSES REMAIN
"There are, I understand, 300 to 400 witnesses yet to be presented in this case," he said. "No plaintiff or defendant ought to be obliged to come into a federal court and twice present his evidence, but that certainly is the case because of a desire of a newspaper for something startling."

"This is a terribly unfortunate experience for the court."

Judge Raymond asserted that the information in the affidavits had been turned over to the federal department of justice but that he had not received a final report of the investigation and did not at the time know whether there would be criminal proceedings against any one.

Attorneys for Aaron Sapiro and Henry Ford agreed with Judge Fred M. Raymond today to meet here Saturday, April 30, to determine whether a date for a new trial of Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Ford could be agreed upon.

At the outset of the interview the judge the jury having been dismissed.

COLLEGE PLAN HELD AIMLESS

The college extension department, under the direction of Paul V. Mars is one which has after repeated unavailing attempts at wider unification of interests in California is just now being brought to a conclusion there in the so-called "Parker plan" which takes cognizance of and embraces all elements in the industry. In the history of the prune industry there as well as here the future of the growers' cooperatives has lain largely in the fact that they antagonized, fought and invited the cut-throat competition of the packers.

In the light for supremacy and required both elements resorted to tactics that were injurious to the industry as a whole and prevented its stabilization.

The "Parker plan" is the result of a realization on the part of growers and packers alike in California that the good of the industry demanded that private differences be forgotten and general cooperation secured. In actuality the "Parker plan," which is extremely simple, embodies a dual organization, one of growers who pool their prunes and one of packers who undertake to market the pool. In effecting the organization those sponsoring the scheme set out to gain up 90 per cent of the packers and 90 per cent of the growers. One of the chief difficulties was in apportioning the amounts of prunes to be allotted to each packer for sale, and it has taken months to iron out the differences between packers as to the amounts they are entitled to, but information received here this week indicates that 92 per cent of the packers have now signed up with the agreement that the prunes are to
