EXPERIENCES OF LIFE To most of us, the thought of hidden treasure stirs up visions of adventure. Yet, strangely enough, the experiences of life itself furnish more real adventure than could ever be found in the search for buried gold. Every human heart is a storehouse of experience which, if revealed, would make the ordinary tale sound tame. Too often they remain in the soul's secret silence. But, sometimes they do speak, and then we have an epic of true adventure and romance. Then we see how human beings really act in a crisis; how they battle with ignorance, folly and temptation, and either emerge victorious or go down to defeat.
