TURKEY PRICES HOLDING FIRM RECEIPTS HEAVY

Portland, Ore., Dec. 21 (AP)—Turkey prices are holding relatively firm on the wholesale market here although receipts have been unusually heavy and the eastern markets weak. A decided increase in local demand coupled with fairly heavy shipments to nearby points has kept the supply fairly well cleaned up so far and unless consignments increase it is expected that prices will remain around present levels until Christmas.

Most sales this morning were between 35 and 38 cents for the best birds.

Geese and ducks are moderately plentiful, the former moving at 25 to 30 cents while ducks are bringing 30 to 35 cents. Capon prices are weak, most sales bringing 32 cents. Other poultry is steady.

Egg prices took a drop of a cent on the dairy exchange yesterday afternoon, the cut affecting only extras and firsts Prices today are: extras 36, firsts 35; fresh medium extras 32; fresh medium firsts 30; undersized 27. Association prices dropped today also, extras two cents a dozen to 36 cents and firsts a cent to 37 cents. Other grades are steady. No changes were listed in prices of butter or butterfat. Country dressed meats are likewise steady.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Dec. 21. (AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment imparted widespread irregularity to today's stock market. An opening outburst of strength was featured by the heavy accumulation of the copper shares, nearly a dozen attaining their highest prices in years. Several insurance and surety shares jumped 5 to 15 points. A broad selling movement just before midday wiped out many of the earlier gains and sent several issues 2 to 11 points down.

By early afternoon the market started upward again under the leadership of the oils.

Greene Cananea copper was hardest hit on the reaction, breaking 11 points to 124. Radio, DuPont, American Machine and Foundry and others dropped 3 or more points. Losses of 11 to 2 points were spread over a broad list and included U. S. Steel, General Motors, New York Central and Atchison.

The closing was firm. When a new bulge began in the coppers, enabling Greene Cananea to recover most of its 11 point drop, and lifting American Smelting to 185¾, highest for all time, buying spread to the remainder of the list. United States Steel worked up close to 150 and General Motors crossed 135. Total sales approximated 2,900,000 shares.

CROPS LOOK GOOD

Unionvale, Dec. 21.—Fall sown crops are looking fine and growing good, the continued mild weather being ideal for them. The farmers were able to finish seeding while the soil was in perfect condition.

HICKMAN LED DOUBLE LIFE

murder case, the police yesterday definitely located his lair which he had occupied during the days that little Marian was kidnaped and until Sunday morning, several hours after the child's dismembered body had been exchanged for her father's $1500.

ESCAPED IN RAID

By finger print and photograph identification the police have determined that during these days, Hickman occupied an apartment under the name of Donald Evans. Led by an identification mark found ona towel left with the body of the slain child, 100 police officers descended upon the apartment house Sunday.

According to the landlady, Mrs. Ethel Broderick, soon after the raid Hickman strolled by her in a hallway, dropped a casual remark and left the building. He did not return. But the officers, having identified Hickman as the hunted "fox" returned to his apartment yesterday.

There they found the very necktie which Hickman had worn while his picture was taken for police identification last summer at the time of his arrest on forgery charges. It was that arrest which resulted in his discharge from the bank of which Parker is an officer and which is believed to have provided the vengeance motive which drove Hickman to the fiendish crime of which he is accused.

NEW CLUES REVEALED

On this second, more minute search, the officers found stains which they ordered analyzed to determine whether they might have been caused by the slaying of little Marian in that apartment. They also found a shirt bearnig the initials H. B. G. The name H. B. Gerber had been found inked in the neckband of a picce of a shirt used to tie the bundle that was a part of the slain girl's body.

Articles found there had come from Kansas City, the former home of Hickman. A crudely made pair of mittens was discovered. They were made of black oilcloth and the thread with which they had been stitched was said by the officers to be the same as that with which Bittle Marian's eyelids had been pierced. The mittens, according to the officers, might have been used to prevent the small victim from making any resistance.

The other side of the dual character presented by the police investigations was presented by the boy's Sunday school teacher and the woman at whose boarding house he lived for some time.

ALSO A "GENTLEMAN"

"The Hickman boy seemed a gentleman," said Pervy Peck, his Sunday school teacher. "He has occasional fits of melancholia though."

"He was such a neat, quiet, orderly boy, declared Mrs. M. C. Driskell, the manager of the boarding house in Alhambra, a suburb, where Hickman lived for four months.

"He went to church and Sunday school. He never stayed out late at night. He was always carefully groomed, extremely polite, used good grammar and otherwise was a model boy."

That's the youth—if the police are right, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde come to life with a vengeance, far outstripping the fiction character—that is the object of what is declared to be the greatest man hunt in the history of southern California.

Milton Jakowsky who had been arrested as a suspect in the case was released last night.

SUSPECT RELEASED

Police detectives said that only Jakowsky's morbid curiosity had given him any connection with the case. His arrest was caused by the report of neighbors of the Parkers that Jakowsky, a friend of the informants, had spent much of his time since the kidnaping of the child, peering at the Parker house from behind the neighbor's windows. Suspicion that he might be involved in the case was based on the belief that the kidnaper had kept a close check on the activities in the Parker home.

pressure at various levels, no report on Ingram's findings was available at 2 o'clock.

No sounds from the torpedo room of the S-4 in which six men are imprisoned, had been heard since 6 o'clock last night when seven faint taps were detected by the oscillator of the submarine S-8, sister ship of the S-4. Although the S-8 signalled at hourly intervals throughout the night no answer came back from below.

Just before 10 o'clock this morning the S-8 pulled up anchor and left from the spot where she had been endeavoring to communicate with the S-4. The Falcon came and took anchorage and the S-8 wigwagged for permission to charge her batteries. This was given from the Falcon.

The S-8 had been under orders to remain in position as long as there was any hope of communicating with her sister ship. Her action in moving away was interpreted as meaning there was no longer possibility that life remained on board the S-4 and that no more signals might be looked for.
