FAMILY PET DISAPPEARS

"Peg", a very good natured and playful Boston bull terrier, female has disappeared from her home at 239 So. 12th St., Salem, being last seen Thursday afternoon, December 15th. The dog has unclipped ears, bobbed tail, color brindle with white fore legs and breast, a white stripe around the neck and a white strip over the nose extending over the head between the ears, age two years, answers to the name of "Penny" or "Peg." She has perhaps climbed into someone's car as she is very fond of auto riding. The family owning the dog miss it very much and would like to learn its whereabouts. A suitable reward will be given for the return of the dog. Please communicate with Mrs. S. Breitenstein, 230 So. 12th St., Salem, Oregon. Phone 1594-J.

FIND BLUE CAR USED BY KILLER

ward toward the downtown district and swung up Broadway. At Second street the Cadillac outdistanced the other car and Wood went on to the police station to report, not knowing until shown the photograph that the man was Hickman.

CRASHES INTO CAR

Shortly after 8 o'clock last night, according to the police today, the Cadillac driven by a youth resembling Hickman, crashed into another car. The name of the driver of the other machine was not divulged. He told police that the driver of the blue coupe backed up recklessly, turned and drove away at breakneck speed.

New impetus was given the drive for the alleged kidnaper-killer and mutilator of the little school girl when detectives took the latest developments to indicate that Hickman probably still was within the city.

Meanwhile a confusing mass of tips, statements, reports and rumors deluged detective headquarters concerning possible accomplices the slayer may have had. Despite the reiterated belief of Herman H. Cline, chief of detectives that the slayer worked alone, information which many investigators believe could not be put lightly was in the hands of police that a man had been seen assisting Hickman in carrying bundles from the apartment house where the accused man lived to the time of the murder.

SUSPECT IS HELD

Cline, backing up his belief that it was a "one man job" declared all other suspects in the case, two of whom still were held this morning, had been exonerated.

The two men held are Earl Smith, said to have been a friend of the Parker family, and George Barnaman, believed to be mentally deranged. The latter was arrested after he had appealed to several broadcasting stations for permission to talk over the radio concerning the kidnaping and murder.

While the great man-hunt went on relentlessly, a report that a man strikingly resembling Hickman was chased by the clerk of a downtown hotel caused dispatch of scores of detectives to comb the business district without success.

Shortly after 10 a. m., a secret tip from the foothills northeast of Pasadena resulted in the sheriff's office rushing three deputies in a fast car to a canyon midway between Duarte and Monrovia, where Hickman is said to have once owned a mountain cabin.

MRS. HICKMAN ON VERGE OF COLLAPSE

father in the country to be afraid, and to think they believe my boy did it.

"Edward never would do a thing like that for revenge. I don't believe he did it at all. But if he did he wasn't right. He didn't have any ill feeling toward Mr. Parker.

"But if he was guilty—oh, that couldn't be—but if he was, why naturally no mother would want to own him as a son. After she had reared him right; shown him the difference between right and wrong and sacrificed to give him an education.

"If he's guilty I want him punished."

Then as she seemed to realize the meaning of her statement, she added:

"No of course I would not disown him. No, of course, I couldn't do that, but you know how I feel.

"When you have raised five children you learn not to expect too much of them. They have their interests. They think they are busier than they are. Perhaps that is why he does not write."

Shown a report that a blotter on which Marian's name appeared was found in her son's apartment, the mother no longer could avoid tears.

"It can't be," she sobbed. "It must have been someone else."

Told he had been identified by finger prints, she seemed unable to understand.

"What does that mean?" she asked. "Isn't it possible two persons could have prints alike?"

Meanwhile squads of police and detectives watched all trains, as well as the Hickman home and places the youth frequented in his school days.

SWEETHEART OF SLAYER SAYS HE WAS QUEER SORT

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 21. (AP)—"Eddie was a queer sort of boy, but he was always a gentleman."

This was said of William Edward Hickman, who is being sought for the kidnaping and murder of Marian Parker, by his one-time sweetheart, Miss Marie McEwan, 17, last night. She told of her meeting and friendship with the youth, for whom now the greatest of man-hunts is under way.

"I met Eddie through several of my boy friends," she said. "He apparently took a liking to me and I liked him. I don't know how he could have committed such a deed.

"Eddie is not like other boys of my acquaintance. I knew him for more than five months. Never once in that time did he ever ask me to go out—not even to a motion picture show.

"I was going to school at the time I have not seen Eddie for about six months and I do not know why he terminated our friendship. We never had a quarrel. He just dropped out of my life as suddenly as he had entered it."

And the one-time sweetheart of Eddie said: "I liked Eddie better than an of my other friends, but now—well he had better not come out here. I will assist the police in every way if I can be of any use to them."

COLD WAVE FATAL TO 54 IN EUROPE

London, Dec. 21 (AP)—A total of 54 deaths have been recorded today in the severest cold wave Europe had felt in many years.

Though the temperature warmed here, in continental countries the cold was unabated.

Sixteen London hospitals had treated 900 persons who had fallen on icy streets or been otherwise injured in connection with the cold wave.

Anti-Saloon League Designates Two Leaders To Succeed Wheeler

Washington (AP)—The militant methods of the late Wayne B. Wheeler probably have passed from the Anti-Saloon League of America as the result of the reorganization effected at the League's biennial convention in Washington.

F. Scott McBride, advocate of Wheeler's policy of exerting pressure on legislators and assisting in the actual enforcement of existing prohibition laws, was given only half of Wheeler's mantle.

An equal portion of the late leader's cloak fell on the shoulders of Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, who believes the success of prohibition depends upon the education of the public to a recognition of the harmful effects of alcohol as a beverage.

Under the new plan, McBride will continue as general superintendent, while Dr. Cherrington will head a department of publicity, education and legislation with headquarters in Washington.

An administration committee will assist the two leaders, who frequently have opposed each other on matters of league policy, in determining the organization's program.

As general superintendent, McBride will devote his attention to supervising the field activities of the league. He has retained his privilege of nominating all state superintendents.

Dr. Cherrington, with the assistance of the administration committee, will direct the league's activties in Washington.

Wheeler, known throughout the land for his strenuous campaign methods in the fight against liquor, and the late Dr. Perley A. Baker, a believer in Wheeler's methods, laid down the policy for which the Anti-Saloon League first became widely known.

Most Bad Checks Shout Warning To Those Who Will See, Says Olson

Salem merchants are losing thousands of dollars to bad check passers because they fail to recognize the obvious signals that these checks fairly shout, Lou Olson, who specializes along this line for the police department, declares. With an unusually large number of shoppers in the city this week and the consequent rush at counters, many dollars will be contributed to the "paper hangers" by the merchants who fail to take a few seconds and look over the offered checks, Officer Olson says.

"When a merchant accepts a pad check with a number, the chances are nearly 100 to one that he will find himself in possession of a bad check," Officer Olson asserts. "There is scarcely a person who writes a check from a pad who is able to remember the number of his last check, yet nearly all of the pad checks that are frauds bear a number in the corner. The same applies to the tendering of a counter check."

Officer Olson is custodian of several thousands of dollars of worthless checks, and in nearly every instance, the check that has been torn from a pad and written with a number in the corner is so bad that an odor can nearly be detected. Checks with too much writing, such as "for labor" or for this and that, are suspicious, he says.

"If a merchant would only take time to compare the indorsement with the signature on the check, he would be amazed at the resemblance of at least some of the characteristic letters," Officer Olson continues. "It does not take an expert to detect a similarity between the two specimens of writing if they are penned by the same hand, unless it is the work of an expert. Nearly everyone has some lodge receipt, driver's license or other means of identification. Such is required by a bank, so why should not the merchant protect himself and ask for an identification?"

Proprietors of the cheaper rooming houses are also common victims, as the bad check artist offers a check for $15 or $20 in payment for a week's room rent in advance, collects the difference and disappears.
