

DEATH STARES TURNER FOLKS OVER HOLIDAYS

Turner, Jan. 7.—Two unusual car accidents were reported here by Turner people during the holiday season in which they luckily escaped serious injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayro McKinney enjoyed a family reunion at the home of their son, Milton McKinney and family of Portland. On their return trip over the Terwilliger boulevard, on a dangerous curve they encountered a motorist on the wrong side of the road and in order to avoid a serious collision, McKinney swung his sedan almost into the ditch.

It was pouring down rain and the pavements were slippery, and the sedan skidded on the wet pavement turning completely around once and half around the second time. It was a miracle that they escaped uninjured and without landing in the ditch. The other motorist hurried on without offering assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. William Purdy and son, Kenneth were guests of relatives at Bandon, by the sea, during the holiday season. When they were on the return trip, and just a short distance from Bandon driving along the highway in the early morning hours, something suddenly whizzed through the side of the touring car, missing the driver's head by a few inches, and hitting the windshield with such force as to knock a big nick out of the glass, then bounded back and fell through the car. The occupants were given quite a scare and believe under all probability that it was a bullet, fired by some hunter out in the early morning duck shooting. Kenneth Purdy was driving the car at the time.
