MOTT TALKS TO KIWANIS UPON GOVERNMENT

Government is like the divine power that helps those who help themselves and benefits accrue to those who take an active part in its many ramifications, James W. Mott, of Astoria, member of the house of representatives of the Oregon legislature and candidate for congressman against Willis C. Hawley, of Salem, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday noon. There is still a question whether free government can always exist and its success depends entirely upon the participation of its people. Mott declared that big business has received benefits chiefly through its participation in government and that such legislation as the eight-hour day, workmen's compensation, collective bargaining, have been won for the laboring man only after participation during the past two generations.

Time and circumstance make great men and at every crisis in the history of the American government, providence has produced such a character, Mott said in speaking upon George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. No critic today can explain how the revolutionary war was won with the help of Washington yet none deny that without him it would have been lost. Lincoln was not educated, yet he produced the greatest American prose in his Gettysburg address, Mott said, and he was practically unknown during his short political life in the Illinois legislature and later in congress.

He engaged in the debates with Douglas, neither man, nor any other great man of American history, is an exception to the rule, he declared.

Principal J. C. Nelson received the returns today on the examinations of the Bible taken several weeks ago by 12 senior high school students. The papers were corrected and checked by the state superintendent of schools. Only four of the seven taking the Old Testament test passed successfully and three out of the five in the New Testament examination failed to make a passing grade. One semester of credit is allowed by the state board of education for a passing grade. Last year 14 Salem high students took the test and half passed.

The latter company and others, the case was an intricate one. White sued to recover about $2000, and counter claims were alleged by the defendants aggregating upwards of $5000. The decree allowed white a judgment of $1600. This judgment is affirmed. In the lower court the case was heard by Judge George R. Bagley.

A return has been filed in circuit court by A. Volchok in the case of H. Matzels against Sam Kozor involving the right to the use of a 5-pointed orange star on the respective signs of the two men on their North Commercial street stores.

The county court today made division of $10,982.41, the latest payment from the government from the Oregon and California tax refund funds. Out of the amount $1970.25 was set aside to road districts and school districts, a total of $1256.47 going to road districts and $128.62 to school districts. The balance cannot be divided until a final court decision is received as to the disposition of the share of the refund claimed by the state.

Albert E. Miller has been granted a license to operate a two table billiard hall at Monitor. Miller applied to the county court recently for a license for January 1, 1928 to January 1, 1929. Until May of last year all pool halls paid a $50 license per year. Since May 28 pool halls owners are licensed at the rate of $10 per table and not more than $50.

HOLD SINCLAIR IN CONTEMPT OF COURT

noted by defense lawyers as soon as the sentences were imposed.

Hearing and decision on the appeal will take more than a year in the ordinary legal court. If the appeal is upheld, the expected appeal to the United States supreme court will consume another six months or more.

The four noted defendants received quietly the long decision of the judge. The elder Burns had appeared nervous.

Two defendants, Sheldon Clark, a Sinclair official and C. L. Veltche, head of the Burns agency, previously had been freed of the charges.

The four were found in contempt today after the judge had ruled their shadowing was in itself illegal. The shadowing was one of the reasons—Siddons declared a mis-trial in the Fall-Sinclair case in which Sinclair and former Secretary of the Interior Fall were alleged to have conspired against the government in the lease of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

He sentenced Sinclair to spend six months in "common jail." W. J. Burns received a sentence of 15 days. W. Sherman Burns, son of the veteran head of the Burns agency, drew a $1,000 fine, and Day, who actually employed the detectives at Sinclair's behest, was sentenced to four months.

The defense attorneys noted an appeal and the three men sentenced to jail were given their freedom on the own recognizance.

The defendant millionaire, Sinclair, last to be sentenced, was the only one who had nothing to say. The younger Burns dramatically asked to take the burden of his father's punishment. The elder Burns protested his innocence. Day asserted he directed the jury shadowing as Sinclair's friend to protect the oil magnate "from his enemies."

"You set this surveillance afoot," Siddons told Sinclair. "It is a little difficult to see how one conscious of innocence should have done so," Sinclair seemed unaffected.

OLD PUMPER REBUILT FOR FIRE FIGHTING

The city of Salem now has more fire apparatus in commission at the central station than ever before with the placing in service today of the old 750-gallon pumper overhauled and converted into a triple by Frank Freibert and Charlie Faulkner of the Salem fire department.

The pumper has been in service since 1913 and for the first time has been completely overhauled. It has always carried a 2 1/2 inch hose, making it a "combination" pumper and hose wagon, but now a chemical tank reclaimed from an old horse-drawn fire wagon has been placed on it and the old pumper now qualifies as a "triple" with pumping power, hose and chemical.

The department now has three pumps in service, the newer La France 1,000-gallon triple, the just-overhauled La France 750 gallon triple, and the brand new 600-gallon Seagrave triple that has been loaned the department until Seagrave makes delivery of the new 1,500 gallon triple ordered from them.

Other equipment includes the big Seagrave extension ladder truck, the old La France chemical and hose truck that answers every alarm, the old Garford hose and chemical truck, and a Ford hose and chemical car used for chimney fires and also for general work for the department, such as painting fire hydrants.

A. of all wars and the members of their auxiliaries are invited. The state commander and state chaplain of the G. A. R., as well as C. L. Diefenbacher, state commander of the Organized Veterans, will be present and participate in the evening's program.

To prove his point that enrollment at the senior high school is less this year than last because more students are staying out to work, Principal J. C. Nelson has collected figures on comparisons of enrollment in the different classes. Enrollment has fallen off this year in the beginning class, the sophomore, and in the graduating class while the juniors, the intermediate class, has increased. Last year there were 555 tenth grade students compared with 529 this year and 392 twelfth grade students as compared with 277 at the present time. The juniors this year total 371 as compared with 315 a year ago. There were 25 post graduate students last year and there are 19 this year. Principal Nelson says that those who would ordinarily go on to high school are staying out to work and that seniors are dropping out.

PERMITS ARE NEEDED FOR ELECTRIC SIGNS

An ordinance designed to curb the practice of business establishments erecting electric signs without first obtaining permits from the city council was introduced last night by Alderman Purvine.

It has been the practice for a number of months for persons wishing to erect electric signs to buy the sign and put it in place and then apply to the council for a permit. The applications are referred to the committee on lights. The committee, as far as electric signs are concerned, has found itself only a figurehead.

The new ordinance provides that the permit must be obtained before the signs are put up. A penalty is provided for violation.

Several ordinance bills segregating assessments for street improvements were introduced and two passed on third reading last night.

REHEARING ASKED FOR KELLEY CASE

Judge M. L. Pipes of Portland today filed with the supreme court a petition for a rehearing in the habeas corpus case of Ellsworth Kelley against Henry W. Meyers, superintendent of the state penitentiary.

Kelley, one of the participants in the prison break of August, 1925, is under sentence of death. His petition for writ of habeas corpus is based on a claim of illegal imprisonment at the time of the break. The supreme court recently affirmed Judge L. H. McMahon of the lower court for Marion county who held against Kelley.

Further progress in reconstruction of the city's sewer system was made by the city council last night when resolution was adopted declaring intention to proceed with construction for the drainage of an area of about 250 acres on the north part of the city. BAN PLACED UPON STOP STREET SIGNS

No more stop street signals will be erected in Salem unless they are authorized by city ordinance. This order went out from the city council last night on motion of Alderman Townsend, who said several such signs had been placed in the city merely on request of residents. The result has been confusing to traffic, for the reason that many people know the signs are not authorized, while others think they are.

"They are merely a bluff," said Townsend, "and no one can be penalized under the city ordinance for ignoring them."

Mayor Livesley suggested that these signs should be removed. Townsend said, however, that he did not believe this would be wise, for the reason that it might cause more confusion than at present.
