While his friends and acquaintances may be getting a modicum of fun from the fact that he paid an overtime parking bill for Oscar Steelhammer, John Graber, the plumber, is not doing so bad himself in the line of acquiring a little satisfaction. Directly due to the publicity received following his charity offering in the Steelhammer account, Mr. Graber says that he has landed three new and exceedingly lucrative plumbing jobs and at the same time chalked up several additional customers. One of these brand new patrons, a woman, called John over the phone Monday and remarked that she craved the services of a plumber who would go so far as to lend financial aid to a downtrodden, hard working county servant. All in all, states Graber, he has profited already in the approximate sum of $40 by giving the city recorder that one dollar. "Now tell 'em to laugh that off," says this foxy plumber.

NO BUSINESS SEEN FOR ROAD ACROSS STATE

Portland, Ore., Aug. 21 (AP)—Another railway locating engineer drew a dreary picture of the country over which the proposed east-west cross-state railway would pass when he took the stand at the interstate commerce commission hearing on the line today. The testimony of E. Stacy, locating engineer for the Oregon short line was quite similar to that given a few days ago by George W. Eck, former locating engineer and now Multimoham county commissioner.

Mr. Stacy made his survey in 1927, covering the territory from Burnt to Crescent Lake in a day and a half. There were few farms he said. In all that first trip he saw just three stacks of hay. William P. Ellis, attorney for the public service commission, asked if he saw any cattle.

"I saw a cow," Mr. Stacy answered. Mr. Stacy admitted, on question of Mr. Ellis, that railroads usually built through waste country, paying little attention to the productivity of the country immediately adjoining the right of way. Regarding the irrigation projects, Stacy said that the crops were not right but the farmers were not right financially.

Counterfeit dollars have made their appearance at the state house. Recently a sum of money in coin was paid to the state educational department by a school teacher as the fee for a certificate. CASCADE LOCKS FIRE IS UNDER CONTROL

Portland, Ore., Aug. 21 (AP)—With crews of forest rangers and ranchers, and firemen from Hood River and Portland battling to save the town of Cascade Locks from flames, fire which broke out near that city was brought under control today. More than 150 men fought the blaze which caused damage estimated in excess of $25,000.

The blaze started in a wood lot along the right of way of the railroad, and soon spread to an old mill, recently dismantled of its machinery. Thence it spread to the brush and soon covered an area of a quarter mile square. Firemen from Hood River were called in, while a special train took a Portland engine company to the blaze.

ROMANCE OF EARLY CENTURY AT THE BLIGH

Period pictures like period furniture have had a tremendous vogue of popularity in recent years but seldom has a period of history been portrayed with as much charm as the early 19th century in "Glorious Betsy," the Warner brothers vitaphone production which is being shown this week at the Bligh Capitol theater.

"Glorious Betsy" tells the story of the famous romance of Betsy Patterson, the belle of Baltimore in 1804, and Jerome Bonaparte, brother of France's emperor. Jerome wooed and won Betsy under the cognizance of a French tutor. They were wed only to be separated by the brother emperor to whom "might was right," and whose plans for Jerome included his wedding of a princess of Wurtemberg. Descendants of Jerome Bonaparte and Betsy Patterson are still listed on the social register in Washington and Newport and their's is said to have been the first international marriage.

Scenes in the fashionable Blue Ridge mountain hotel in the early 1800's, in the magnificent Patterson mansion in Baltimore, on the old frigate which took Jerome and Betsy to the shores of France where Betsy was turned back to America and Jerome was depicted in elaborate and held as depicted in elaborate detail. Dolores Costello is a lovely Betsy, admirably supported by Conrad Nagel as Jerome. The vitaphone symphony orchestra plays the musical accompaniment and there are some good talking parts. The singing of the Marcelline by the crowd at the Baltimore reception when a courier brings the word that Jerome's brother has declared himself emperor of France, and the old plantation melodies by the negroes on the Patterson estate, are lovely bits of the vitaphone accompaniment.

In addition to "Glorious Betsy" this week's show at the Capitol includes vaudeville vitaphone acts by Earl Burnett's Billmore hotel orchestra, by the famous Brox sisters who sing old southern songs, by Al Herman, the assassin of glom, and by a company of three in a comedy skit called "The Lemon."

SALEM GETS KIWANIS MEET

York with its 42,000 tax cabs and where even at that it is hard to get a taxi after the shows or on rainy evenings; a visit to the steamship Leviathan, largest ocean-going vessel in the world; the largest cask in London and where 35,000 persons are employed.

Hillman told interestingly of his airplane trip from London to Paris on a 20-passenger plane, requiring only two hours and 45 minutes for the trip, and only 30 minutes over the channel, and landing at Le Bourget, the Paris airport where Lindbergh landed.

Berlin and other German cities, Zurich, Switzerland and Stockholm were among places of interest. A canal trip through Sweden was made where passage through 75 locks was necessary.

E. Brang, vice-president of the club, was recipient of the attendance prize, which was a cord of wood contributed by Oliver Myers of the Spaulding Logging company.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM AT HOLINESS MEET

Quincy, Ore., Aug. 21—The Holiness camp meeting now in session at Quincy park is attracting visitors and campers from distant points. The fame of the boarding house, where strangers may secure a marvelous, home-cooked meal for 25 cents, and which is free to members, free rides on a bus from Salem, and evangelists who bring a message of hope to men and women in weeping and praying groups to the altar or "mourner's bench" has been such that each day sees greater crowds.

On Sunday a healing service was held, one man William Plunz, so afflicted that during the service he lay on a cot just outside the tabernacle, afterward was able to make his way to the altar for prayers. No collection was taken, and in fact the entire camp meeting has been so conducted on lines of brotherhood and fellowship, the officers are beginning to wonder if the four acre camp ground will be large enough. Services will continue throughout the week, Thursday promising to be especially interesting, when Mrs. Ethel M. Clarke, a returned missionary from India will speak.
