LET ATTORNEYS SETTLE FERRY DAMAGE CLAIM

At a conference between members of the Marion and Polk county courts held in Salem yesterday the courts decided to leave to the discretion of District Attorneys Carson of Marion and Harcombe of Polk the matter of what will be done about a damage claim against the two counties for injuries sustained on the inter-county ferry at Buena Vista some time ago by a Mrs. Prather.

Mrs. Prather, an elderly woman who worked in the hop fields on this side of the river went to her home on the Polk county side by way of the ferry every evening. On the evening when the accident occurred, according to information in the hands of the courts, she was in a hurry and as the ferry was landing asked the ferry boy to drop the chain before the ferry had stopped. She stepped out on the apron of the ferry which covers the landing dock, and as she started to step off, her foot caught and she fell. The heavy apron slid up over her legs, badly injuring and lacerating them. No bones were broken, it is understood. Members of the Marion county court stated they had no knowledge of the accident until about two weeks after it occurred.

The district attorneys are to examine into the evidence in the case and make recommendation to the courts as to whether a settlement shall be made, or whether the courts will resist any action for damages which may be instituted, if one should be instituted.

GIRLS OF SENIOR CLASS SCORE HIT

To the present senior girls at Salem high school goes the honor of wearing the most attractive examples of the characteristic class garb seen here. The prerogatives of wearing cords has been granted the senior boys, and their feminine classmates dazzled the school this morning by appearing in black jersey sweaters with red S. H. S. letters monogrammed on a pocket, red belts and red skirts. The senior girls will wear their new red and black outfits always on Fridays and on any other day they wish.

The new costumes made their appearance in the annual senior stunt day assembly during the activity period this morning. The senior boys presented their cord wearing stunt first. Robert King, sophomore class president, was forcibly relieved of the cord trousers which he was wearing. He was placed in a coffin and John George read a funeral oration over the casket. Gerald Simpson, yell leader, read the penalties which will be inflicted on an under-classman daring to wear the cords.

The senior girls' stunt included a wild scramble over a dummy in cords and red skirts. The senior girls will wear their new red and black outfits always on Fridays and on any other day they wish.

Liberty Street Bridge To Be Half Completed With Pouring of Beams

Starting Thursday morning and continuing until Saturday morning, two full shifts will be employed by the Holdener Construction company pouring concrete for the girder and beams of the main section of the big $90,000 bridge on South Liberty street, reports L. D. Packard, superintendent in charge of the work. More than 500 cubic yards of concrete will be poured during the four shifts.

Work on the bridge is progressing rapidly and the half-way mark in its construction will be reached by Thanksgiving and the prediction made that the structure will be ready for traffic by February. However it is doubted that the bridge will be actually put into use at that time because there is yet considerable work to be done at the north approach. The northern approach will be ready when the construction of a culvert near Mill street and the fill between Trade and Mill streets is completed. The southern approach needs grading but this work cannot be done until the Holdener company moves its equipment, and office building from the street. It was pointed out by Mr. Packard.

Following the pouring Thursday and Friday of the beams and girders in the main section, reinforced steel will be placed for the pouring of the roadway deck. This part of the construction will practically complete the main section of the bridge.

This week the work of moving the main telephone toll line, which runs from Seattle to San Francisco and incidentally beside the location of the Liberty street bridge, was completed by telephone linemen. It was necessary to remove the big trunk line some 40 feet east of the bridge site in order to facilitate construction operations. Conducts for the use of the phone lines are being installed in the bridge and the lines will be again transferred when the bridge is completed.

Several thousand wires are running through the cables of the line and in one cable alone there were 1600 wires that had to be cut, it was said.

About 45 men, including carpenters and laborers, are being employed daily at the construction site. Work will be continued daily unless heavy storms make it impossible, said Mr. Packard.

When Fred L. Hannon, husband of Viola G. Hannon, who has been operating the Mission hospital in North Salem, crawled through a rear window of the hospital in the night time, he did it under such conditions as to frighten not only her, but all the patients and other persons in the hospital and to do the hospital irreparable damage. Viola G. Hannon says in an affidavit filed with the county clerk. This is a counter affidavit in the matter of a motion for suit money.

She declares that because of the defendant's nocturnal visit she has been unable to get patients for her hospital, that she assumed a mortgage of $13,000 in order to equip the hospital, this to be paid off at $250 a month and she is unable to meet the payments by reason of his actions, and also has been unable to do sufficient business to maintain the hospital. She declares that her credit is gone and she cannot obtain money with which to pay her attorney.

SUICIDE EFFORT RESULTS IN DEATH

Funeral services will be held on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Rigdon's chapel.

Late in September he committed himself to the hospital. At the end of 30 days of voluntary commitment, he applied for another 30-day commitment which was granted. Relatives had called at the hospital Tuesday to take him away at the end of the second 30 day period and while they were waiting for him he cut his throat.

Oxford, England, Nov. 21 (AP)—Eight hundred Oxford undergraduates were "properly hoaxed" today. They had received, overnight, printed notices in official terms stating that the university proctor desired to interview them at 9:45 a. m. The proctor is the university official charged with enforcing the laws and regulations of the institution.

Virtually the whole 800 assembled at the proctor's office at the specified time. The proctor eventually appeared and told the undergrads that he had no desire to talk with them. It took the proctor and his "bull dogs"—as his assistants are called—nearly an hour to disperse the cheering, rollicking students.
