Better Health - Longer Life

GORGAS MEMORIAL INSTITUTE

DOES YOUR BRIDE KNOW THIS?

By Margaret N. Butler, R. N., Chicago, Illinois

One of the first essentials for the development of good health is the proper kind of a home. So today let us imagine that we are going to build a sanitary home.

The first thing to be decided upon is the location. We shall want to live in a district away from noise and smoke, having good transportation, near a church, school, library and playground. Building our house on elevated ground and some what apart from neighboring houses will insure a supply of air and sunshine as well as proper drainage.

An important thing to be considered is the water supply, because a polluted water supply may cause typhoid fever and other diseases. Pollution of the water is usually caused by untreated sewage, which is excreted from the human body and other liquid waste matter. In cities, the water supply is often chlorinated to make it safe for drinking purposes; but if our home is to be in the country, very careful attention must be given to this matter.

A yard, besides improving the appearance of the home, will afford garden space and a place for the children to play. We shall see not only the grass is kept mowed, but that waste and rubbish are not allowed to accumulate in the yard, or in the adjacent alley or vacant lots.

To guard against dampness, the basement should extend under the entire house, and should be kept clean and free from rubbish. The house must be well screened in summer to keep out flies and mosquitoes.

Hardwood floors, which are easily cleaned, and walls either papered, painted or calcimined, are preferable. Rugs are more sanitary than carpets as they can be taken up and dusted. The furniture will preferably be of a simple design, tasteful arranged.

The bedrooms, which should be large and have at least one window, should be aired daily. If possible, separate beds should be purchased. Although wooden beds may be the most attractive, those made of iron or brass will be most easily cleaned. The sheet and slips must be changed at least once a week, and the other bedding cleaned or washed as necessary.

A light and cheerful dining room is desirable. After the meal, the perishable food is immediately put in a cool place, or the ice-box, the waste is cared for, and the dishes washed.

From the standpoint of health, the kitchen is the most important room in the house. It should be light, with walls tiled, calcimined or painted. Cracks and crevices, as well as out-of-the-way cupboards, in which food particles and moisture can collect, should be avoided. The sink is preferably made of enamel or porcelain, with approved plumbing.

The ice-box should be cleaned once a week with hot soapy water.

MARIS SPEAKS TO FORUM MEN ON FARM WORK

Dallas—Paul V. Maris of the state college was guest speaker at the chamber of commerce luncheon at the Gall Hotel Monday noon. His topic concerned the legislation of the recent congress regarding farm relief.

He outlined the four main features of the legislation as: First, it will enable the farmer to secure loans at 4 per cent interest; second, stabilization will be brought about by cooperative organization under the direction of the government; third, the farmer can insure his crops against deflation of prices and fourth, the government will provide a clearing house which will advise the farmer where and when to market his produce.

The chief effect will be that all farmers will be forced into the cooperative organization sponsored by the government, and from which they can purchase stock, or they must wait until the cooperative produce can be taken care of. Five hundred million dollars has been set aside for this work.

Carter Glass expresses his opinion in the congressional journal that this law merely creates another pork barrel for politicians to grab from and really furnishes no relief at all. It is another experiment embarked on by the government that will take years before its worth can be determined.

Nearly forty were in attendance at the luncheon over which R. S. Krenson presided. L. H. McBee, president of the state farmers' union; P. O. Powell, master of the Polk county Pomona grange, and Scott Campbell of Bridgeport were visitors.

PICNIC OF BANKERS HELD AT CHAMPOEG

Dayton—More than 500 people attended the Yamhill county Bankers association picnic held at Champeog Friday evening when members of the organization, their wives and friends gathered about 5 o'clock. The Newberg Berrian band furnished music. Sports were enjoyed. A basket lunch was served.

PAINTER IS BRUISED BY FALL OF 15 FEET

Lincoln—D. R. Ruble fell from a 15-foot scaffold where he was engaged in painting his fruit house, Friday morning and received a few bruises, but no serious injury. A barrel standing below caught the impact of his body and was demolished, but it is believed that it saved him from being badly hurt. A new bathroom and modern water system have been added to the Ruble home and the house freshly painted.

LIVERY FIRE CALLS OUT FIRE FIGHTERS

Independence—The fire department was called out at an early hour in answer to an alarm from Bausis livery which had caught fire from some oil waste. Owing to quick action on the part of the owner and the night marshal the fire was soon under control and no serious damage done.

Bausis livery is located just across the street north from the Hotel Beaver and houses the school buses and a number of other large touring cars. A fire in this vicinity might prove very damaging as the buildings near it are of light construction and would make a hard fire to fight. There is an oil station on the street in front of the building and one across the street, making it more hazardous.

OFFICERS SEEKING MISSING PRISONER

Dallas—Ted Macomber who escaped from Polk and Tillamook authorities last Saturday night by jumping from the second story of the jail is still unapprehended. Macomber had been picked up by Chief of Police Neufeldt on a warrant from Tillamook county where he was wanted for larceny. Search of the car revealed a pint of whiskey so it was planned to prosecute him in this county also.

The windows in the hallway of the jail are not barred and it was through one of these that he made his escape while Sheriff Hooker had his back turned to work the levers that close the cells. The Tillamook police were at the bottom of the stairs and were not aware of his exit until he had gone quite a distance.

Woodburn—Mr. and Mrs. Louis DuBois and family of Hoquiam, Wash., are visiting relatives at St. Louis and West Woodburn.

SALEM YOUTHS HELD ON THEFT OF BATH SUITS

Independence—Four young men entered the clothing store of O. A. Kreamer on Monday supposedly for the purpose of making some purchases. While one of the quartet was looking at, and pricing some shoes, the others picked up a few bathing suits and left the store and as soon as they were gone the fourth lost interest in shoes and left also.

The proprietor did not miss the stolen articles until they were out of sight and to his surprise later in the afternoon these young men, trying to sell the stolen articles in Corvallis, were picked up by the sheriff's office of Benton county and reported back to Mr. Kreamer. Deputy Shrunken was sent to Corvallis to identify the goods and the young men were soon on their way to the Polk county jail to await the filing of complaints and arraignment. They gave their addresses as Salem, aged 16 and 17 years. One boy was an eighth grade graduate and the other two were high school boys. They will be brought before Justice Huchens for a hearing.

STOLEN AUTO BACK
Grand Island—The sedan stolen from Salem where it was parked during a theater performance June 19, was recovered near Portland by the insurance company and returned to Clarence R. Skhill, its owner, Saturday. The register showed it had been run 500 miles.
