$59 BARGAIN LOTS STILL LACK BUYERS

of them located in the low flat that comprises most of Tuxedo park in South Salem, and the remainder in the new addition along North 17th street near the fairgrounds.

The new lot move was to compile a "sucker list" which was accomplished through the simple expedient of posting a man at the entrance to the public market building.

Through each of them runs the 12 foot open drainage ditch which keeps that part of the city free from inundating floods and which runs full to the brim with water in storm periods.

Curiously enough none of the lucky prospects have yet exercised their right to these bargains.

As an alternative they were informed that they would be let in on something equally as attractive and, carted out to the 17th street properties, they were shown other lots their letters and $59 parcels of cash would enable them to buy upon a condition.

lating, tempered with the promise that it would surpass the record. Fog, which has harassed them intermittently since they took the air almost five days ago was absent Friday night and with the sailing more smooth, the fliers dropped notes marked with optimism as their goal drew nearer.

To equal the new record, the 230 horsepower motor, which has as yet given no indication of faltering, must keep up its steady drone until 1:30:20 p. m., next Tuesday.

The fourteenth contact made between the endurance plane and its nurse ship since the flight started, was effected Friday night, giving the craft enough fuel to carry it until noon Saturday.

With the clear weather making their task more simple, the fliers informed ground officials that they were certain they could keep the biplane in the air 400 hours. They said they were getting plenty of sleep, which had been a problem during the early hours of the flight because of the bothersome fog.

They explained they believed 400 hours would be the life of their motor and said they hoped to keep the plane in the air until the motor failed to function.

The oiling system, which permits the pilots to force lubrication to the rocker arms of the motor, as well as affect a complete change of oil when needed, was believed by observers an added advantage in their record attempt.

DRY AGENTS TO BE PROSECUTED FOR MURDER

Tecumseh, Okla. (AP)—Criminal action against four "dry" agents who killed Oscar Lowery and James Harris in a raid on a farm house near here Thursday, was spurred Saturday by numerous resolutions condemning that action of the raiders.

The Oklahoma city American Legion posts and groups of Tecumseh citizens and farmers refused to accept the statements of the prohibition agents that the shootings were committed in self defense and passed resolutions upholding the slain men as innocent of prohibition violation and condemning the killings as "unjust."

The four members of the raiding party, W. T. Thomas, veteran federal agent; Jeff Harris, John D. Williams and Tom Little, were charged with first degree murder by county Attorney Randall Pittman. Thomas was released to district prohibition headquarters to submit his report of the incident but the orders were held in cells at the Pottawatomie county jail.

First degree murder charges were filed Saturday against Jeff Harris in the death of Lowery. The others probably will not be charged in Lowery's death as investigation Friday night revealed that other members of the raiding party had not arrived at the house when Lowery was shot, County Attorney Randall Pittman said.
