

EGG QUALITYS BETTER, VEAL SHORTAGE FELT

Portland, Ore. (AP)—Quotations on butter and eggs remained unchanged here. Dealers say the market on all dairy produce probably will remain about where it is for the remainder of the month unless some unusual development results. The cool weather of the past two days has done much to increase the quality of eggs. It takes but two or three days of real hot weather to make a decided difference in the offerings.

Butter production is holding up well this season, principally because of favorable production weather. The unusually cool summer, taken as a whole, has been a favorable factor in keeping production at a high level. Portland prices, compared with other centers, are firm, to say the least.

There is a shortage of first class country killed veal on Front street. Other qualities are in better supply. The demand for number one stuff is keeping the price firm.

Country killed beef is moving slowly on the Front street market. Prices are holding, but there is little doing.

Egg receipts are continuing to hold at a good level. Warmer weather has decreased the quality but they still are better than usual for this time of year due to the comparatively low temperature.

There has been no new developments in the poultry market for some time. Prices are holding firm and demand about equally supply.

First quality tomatoes from the Dalles were easier on Thursday's market. Quotations to the trade were $2.75, off a quarter.

Decreased supply of halibut has firmed the price up considerably. The salmon run in the Columbia river has been consistent and slightly above normal. Prices are steady.

There was only nominal supply of crabs in the market Thursday. The closed season in Washington has cut down the supply and the market is very firm at $3.50 to $3.50, depending on size.

STEIWER TELLS ABOUT HOOVER'S FARM BOARD

Portland, Ore. (AP)—Frederick Steiwer, United States senator from Oregon, in Portland Thursday for a visit, said Oregon did not get a berth on the federal farm relief commission because it did not have a powerful marketing organization to back any candidate it might select for the job.

The senator declared there was neither geography nor politics considered by President Hoover when he selected members of the board to constitute a group created when he signed the farm relief measure. Oregon has taken only a limited part in marketing, Senator Steiwer said, "and the president in making the appointments took into consideration the large co-operative associations."

"President Hoover permitted those who have been engaged in marketing to select their own board. When I went to the White House to bid President Hoover goodbye last week leaving Washington, he gave me the list of the organizations that had recommended certain men he has named to the commission. These men had the backing of power organization, granges, agricultural societies and colleges."

Senator Steiwer said he thought naval reduction and world peace are the most important subjects which confront us, he said. "The reduction of armaments represents the greatest element of cost in government."

DRUGGIST INJURED IN RUNAWAY TRUCK

Falls City—J. Thompson, Falls City druggist, received severe injuries of an undetermined extent Wednesday evening when he jumped from a runaway Ford truck loaded with wood, on a steep hill on the Vabets road.

Thompson, with W. L. Prink and his son, Eldon, was riding toward Falls City, and jumped from the vehicle when the elder Prink, who was driving, disengaged the gears to shift to a lower speed and was unable to complete the operation. He was seriously injured about the head and eyes, and received possible fractures of the ribs.

W. L. Prink was about to jump also but Eldon held him in until the truck came to a stop by running into the high bank 100 yards farther on.

Thompson, who is in his late 50's, was taken to Dallas by ambulance Thursday morning for examination and treatment.

5 CENTS OFFERED FOR LOGANS HERE

The first break in the established market price of four cents for loganberries was reported Wednesday with the arrival in Salem of Rex Maling, of the Woodburn cannery, offering a one-cent increase on a limited quantity of berries.

Maling announced that he was in the market to buy 300 tons of logans at five cents.
