It is not known whether anyone besides the Japanese have been approached.

ORDERS RETURN OF SEIZED AUTO

Portland, (AP)—The federal government has no legal right to take possession of automobiles seized by city police in liquor raids, Federal judge Ben held Tuesday in overruling a demurrer filed by the government against the answer of a woman defending possession of her automobile.

For the government to confiscate an automobile seized for transportation of liquor, the operator of the car, when arrested, must be prosecuted in federal court, Judge Ben held. If, however, the operator is prosecuted in another court, the government has no jurisdiction over the disposition of the automobile.

In the case at issue city police arrested Helen Forrest for transporting five pints of gin. She was fined $25 in municipal court. The automobile was turned over to the government but now will be returned to its owner.

PAYING PLANES TO HELP PAY FOR FLYING CIRCUS

Visiting pilots here for the dedication of the Salem municipal airport August 8 in connection with the state convention of the American Legion will be asked by H. G. (Pod) Malson, executive secretary of the convention commission, to cooperate in meeting expenses incurred by the commission in bringing a crack squadron of army stunt fliers here for the event. The commission has spent $200 in providing liability and property damage bonds required for the presence of the fliers by the government and has no way of obtaining money to defray the expense other than from a small assessment on commercial craft carrying passengers. Malson expects to go to Portland Wednesday to place the proposition before a number of fliers.

Entertainment of visitors will be provided by the arm squadron and there will be a picnic and other similar event in connection with the dedication of the airport. No prizes are offered and the only recompense they will receive for bringing ships here will be from passenger flights.

Because of being "hosts" the Eversly Aircraft corporation does not expect to participate in the passenger flights unless there is a shortage of ships, according to Lee Eversly, president and superintendent of the airport.

$50,000 DAMAGE CASE REVERSED

The supreme court Tuesday reversed a judgment of the lower court for Multnomah county in which Ross B. Clark was awarded $50,570 against Walton Shea of Portland and the New Jersey Fidelity & Plate Glass Insurance company for injuries received in a collision on the Pacific highway near Brooks. The case was tried in the lower court before Judge James Alger Fee and the supreme court opinion was written by Chief Justice Goshue.

When the accident occurred Ross was driving a team and wagon and Shea an automobile.

Shea was on his way to Albany to adjust another automobile damage case. He was in the employ of E. L. McDougal, attorney and adjuster for the defendant insurance company, and because of that relation claimed, in his defense, to be an agent of the insurance company. The insurance company appealed from the verdict of the lower court, and the supreme court in its reversal holds that Shea was not an agent of the insurance company and that the latter was not responsible for his acts.

MRS. REINHART BACK TELLS OF FAMOUS FLIGHT

R. B. (Pete) Reinhart of Salem, who until Tuesday held the world record with Loren Mendell for sustained flight, will pilot the Angelino, Jr., Buehl air sedan presented to the champion fliers at the conclusion of their record breaking flight, to Salem later in the week if certain legal obstacles are overcome and in his failure to do this, he will fly a message to a wheat field, the dedication of the municipal airport during the state convention of the American Legion August 8, according to Mrs. Reinhart, who returned to Salem from San Francisco about 8:30 o'clock Monday night. Mendell and Reinhart are talking about another sustained flight but no definite arrangements have been made she said.

Legal obstacles to be overcome center around a suit filed against Mendell by a Los Angeles beauty shop operator following injuries received after a flight with the noted pilot, Mrs. Reinhart said Tuesday. Mendell, against his will, was persuaded to take the young woman for a flight over the ocean when the motor "cooked" and Mendell was forced to land in a wheat field, where rough ground caused the ship to go over on its nose. Neither Mendell nor the woman were injured beyond cuts and bruises and though he paid part of the hospital bill, she filed suit for $25,000 damages.

The Angelino, Jr., is now on the Crissey field, San Francisco, where it landed Thursday after a flight from Los Angeles. Mrs. Reinhart enjoyed her first air ride at the same time, making the trip by a commercial line operating between the two cities. Until San Francisco was reached neither she nor "Pete" had received any rest since the famous flight, she said.

Mrs. Reinhart was busy Tuesday assembling a vast array of newspaper pictures pertaining to the now historic flight of a husband. Though he lost considerable weight, Pete is rapidly regaining his former proportions and is feeling fine a tough egg," as she expressed it, upon his return to land after more than ten days continual flight in the air.

SCHOOL SHOPS REPORT STEADY DEVELOPMENT

Industrial education in the Salem schools which includes auto and machine shops at the senior high school, manual training shops in the junior high schools, and a part time continuation school, are in a healthy condition, conservative and efficient and meeting the needs of the community as they arise, says E. E. Bergman, director of vocational education for the local school system. In the annual report of the last year's activities which he filed in the superintendent's office Wednesday afternoon, in economy of cost the Salem departments are better than the average, says Bergman.

The machine shop course at the senior high school had an enrollment of 59 beginners, the largest in the history of the school. In line with the plan of cooperative training, many of the shop course boys were placed in Salem industries for a half of each day and were permitted to attend school classes the remaining half day.

Industries of Salem that cooperated in the half day plan were the Oregon Packing company, Eversly Airport corporation, Salem Iron works, Graber brothers and the Miles linen mills. The half day plan will be followed again next year.

The shops received $655.88 for work done by the boys in the classes and materials totalling $235.92 were purchased, leaving a balance of more than $400 which has been turned over to the school district. The biggest undertakings of the year were the making of two union tipping machines.

More space is needed for Floyd Slegmund's classes at Parrish junior high school and for the auto shop where Tom Wolgamoot is instructor, says Bergman in his report.

The general part time continuation school where Miss Lilah Hollaway will be in charge during the coming year, will also be enlarged in scope says Bergman.

ONE KILLED AS AUTO JUMPS

Redding, Cal. (AP)—One man was killed and four others injured, two seriously, when their automobile overturned Monday night on a steep grade of Iron mountain road, 12 miles north of here. The dead man was Charles Foster, 50, of Redding, owner of the car.

John Williams, shift boss of the Iron mountain mine, and John Johnson, an employe, received possible fractured skulls among other injuries, and may die. The other injured include Edward Debridge, driver of the machine, who told physicians Foster asked him to drive the party to the mine as they had been drinking and "didn't want an accident."

The car was descending the grade, Debridge said when Foster, who was sitting beside him, pushed his foot off the brake pedal and stepped on the accelerator. The car struck a hole and overturned, throwing the passengers clear. Foster died enroute to the hospital.

JAILED FOR THEFT OF SAXOPHONE

Tracy Hatch, accused of the theft of a saxophone, belonging to Charles Barnard, 17, through his attorney, asked for time in which to plead when he was given a preliminary hearing before Judge Brazer Small Tuesday. The request was granted and Hatch was committed to the county jail in lieu of $1000 bail asked.

Barnard went to the Wills building on South Liberty street Monday evening to take a music lesson. The teacher being out, he left the instrument, which is said to be worth $150, on the second floor, while he descended the stairs to wait for the teacher. Upon hearing a door slam upstairs, Barnard returned to find the sax missing.

Asa Fisher, city officer, called to the scene, decided that Hatch, who operates a tailoring establishment and resides in the building, was the only person on the floor at the time of the disappearance of the musical instrument. A search warrant was obtained and a saxophone, identified by Barnard as his property, was found in Hatch's apartment. He was placed under arrest on a larceny charge.

Time for Hatch's second appearance in court has not been set.
