Sniping in the Salem Sector

Bob Fry, head of the credentials committee, reported Friday morning that the voting power of the convention was 261, with 216 delegates and 115 alternates. A final report will be made prior to the election of officers Saturday morning.

Dr. Paul I. Carter, manager of the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Portland, is attending the convention. He is the guest of Dr. W. Carlton Smith.

Considering the caucus, committee meetings, shows, dances, entertainments, parades and a few other things, a good proportion of the delegation showed up for the business session Friday morning. Late arrivals drifted into their seats during the remainder of the morning.

Greetings have been sent to the convention by H. G. Chadbourn, adjutant of World War Post No. 507, V. F. W., of Portland; Chief of Police, V. Jenkins, of Portland; Frank Bolgrano, state commander and James Fisk, state adjutant, both of the California department who invited the 40 to 8 to be guests of the department at Los Angeles in 1929, and June Valient, of San Francisco, former state service officer.

Four past state commanders are attending the eleventh annual convention. These are Goddell, Henderson, Love and Eivers.

Under a special resolution Saturday morning, Stanley King and William Campbell, Boy Scouts who have been acting as pages for the session, were publicly thanked. The resolution included all Salem Scout troops.

The men on the floor of the convention are no older than those seen by Col. Hammond downtown Friday night—they only look older. U. S. Senator Frederick Steiwer said.

Ice water in the big containers at the front of the house of representatives where the American Legion convention is being held was considerably lowered during the morning session Saturday, due to the extremely warm day, it is alleged.

In spite of midnight parades, caucuses and other activities, more delegates were on the floor of the convention at the closing session than at any other time during the convocation. Many admitted not having gone to bed during the night.

A serenade by a uniformed boys' and girls' drum corps sponsored by the Corvallis American Legion Auxiliary broke the monotony of the morning business session for the Legionnaires. Members of the corps ranged from four to eight years of age.

In appreciation of his services as member of the barbeque feast at the convention of the Salem airport Thursday, Cy Bingham, sheriff of Grant county, was presented a gold star by Capital Post American Legion of Salem. The star is ornately engraved and inscribed. Sheriff Bingham gave his services without charge. The presentation was made at a session of the delegation in the hall of representatives by Douglas McKay, commander of the Salem post.

Bill Vogl, route nine, Salem, was amusing himself Friday evening by grabbing cats and breaking them up. As Vogl is a pretty big and mopey he was getting away with his fun in pretty good shape. He finally picked on a little fellow who questioned Bill's right to destroy his property. Vogl planted his fists in the little one's face. The smaller man was making a valiant effort to defend himself when Sergeant Thompson came along and took Vogl off to jail. He was booked on a disorderly conduct charge.

Memorial services for the 27 members of the American Legion auxiliary in Oregon who have passed away during the last year were conducted in Waller hall late Friday afternoon by ten members and a bugler of the Dallas unit. The services followed the music contest.

The veterans bureau is the most effective it has ever been. U. S. Senator Frederick Steiwer told the auxiliary convention Saturday morning when he gave an intermission address.

Three men, right in a row, kissed the department president during the convention session of the auxiliary Saturday morning and nearly caused a riot. But it isn't as bad as it sounds. The first one to give Mrs. Jessie Kelly, the president, a resounding smack was her own husband, Bill Kelly, who came across from the Legion convention in the hope of a separate invitation to the auxiliary to meet with the Legion at Baker in 1930. With Kelly were Richard Langrell, head of the Baker post, and Warren Lemmon, Baker convention manager. They followed Bill's lead. There was an immediate decision on the part of the auxiliary convention to meet at Baker next year.

"This is the best convention we have ever had anywhere," said Mrs. Mabel McInturff, secretary-treasurer of the state organization of the American Legion auxiliary for the past five years and recalled as she expressed her thanks for the gift which the Salem unit presented her. The same sentiments were voiced by Mrs. Jessie Kelly, the president, when she received her gift. The auxiliary convention manager was Mrs. King Bartlett, junior past president of the Salem unit.

Mrs. Harry Weebler, leader, Mrs. F. N. Waters, Mrs. Pascal Traglio, Mrs. Bert Victor, Mrs. Chester Moffitt, Mrs. Glen Porter, Mrs. Ralph Mason, Mrs. Grace Slick, Mrs. Frank Jirak, Mrs. O. F. Poe, Mrs. Carl Hultenberg, Mrs. Gilbert Holder, Mrs. Dennis Slavenston, Mrs. J. Marcroft, and the general convention manager, herself, Mrs. King Bartlett, all members of the Salem unit have been carrying the colors in the convention chamber at the opening of each session, and retiring them again at the close of each session during the entire convention. The Salem women wore attractive frocks of white with sleeveless jackets of Legion blue.

One of the smallest auxiliary units in the state, Harry K. Larsen unit of Imbler, is taking one prize home at least. Saturday morning they received the attendance prize, an attractive Flanders Field picture.

Almost the last official action of the Legion auxiliary before the convention adjourns was the passing of a resolution to leave the poppy sale dates up to the individual units.

Cash gifts instead of heterogeneous Christmas boxes will be received by veterans in hospitals if the suggestion of Mrs. Rena Palmer, of Portland, budget chairman for the Legion auxiliary, goes into effect.

The Pendleton delegation of auxiliary women, Mrs. George Martin, Mrs. M. E. Beesley and Mrs. Clara Porter, is going home with more than they came with. Three of the membership trophy cups were won by Pendleton.

The ladies of the G. A. R. state department, presented flowers to the department auxiliary president, and greetings to the organization Friday afternoon. The presentation was made by Mrs. N. A. Lawrence of Salem.

The auxiliary women passed a resolution Friday afternoon that the Star Spangled Banner be played at the conclusion of every public gathering and at the end of every theater performance and that spectators stand at attention during the playing. Every delegate is being asked to go home and make such a request to her home town.

Blasting of trees on the Wallace road by a Polk county construction crew resulted in short circuiting a high tension line of the Portland Electric Power company on that highway early Saturday with the subsequent "blacking out" of the high tension circuit and the burning out of fuse blocks on all of the transformers on the Wallace road, and on some of the transformers on the east side of the river in Salem.

One of the trees which was blasted did not fall. The road crew thought it would stand until Monday. However, a wind came up and toppled the tree into the circuit. The short circuiting put the West Salem water works out of commission for a short time, also the Mountain States Power system as far south as Eugene. The operating mechanism of a 57,000 volt switch in the Salem power house was burned out by the crash.

Gray squirrels PROVE PROBLEM

What to do with the Kentucky gray squirrels, brought here several years ago and placed on the capital building grounds, but which have subsequently spread to all parts of arms within the city limits, prevents property owners from shooting the animals.

Since the arrival here the squirrels have increased rapidly and each day persons call upon the police or game warden for assistance in ridding their premises of the little animals. Property owners claim the squirrels are destroying walnuts.

Ben Claggett, state game warden stated Saturday that Kentucky gray squirrels are not protected under the game laws of the state. An ordinance against shooting firearms within the city limits, prevents property owners from shooting the animals.

Arthur Siebens, 1271 Chemeketa street, was arrested Saturday by Traffic Office Edwards, who says the former was driving a car in a reckless manner on Capital street.

SALEM AIRPORT WINS APPROVAL OF INSPECTOR

Salem has a wonderful future in its municipal airport that was dedicated during the state convention of the American Legion. Dillard Hamilton, of the Oakland, Calif., airport and inspector for the eighth district, declared Saturday before leaving after an inspection trip. Few cities have a field so free of hazards to pilots and with a continuance of public interest and confidence both the airport and the product of the Eyerly Aircraft corporation will be carried to a successful conclusion, he said.

Recommendations that field boundary lights, three flood lights and a beacon light be installed as soon as funds are available were made by Hamilton, who announced that in the near future a new contract was to be completed in night flying between Portland and San Francisco, with two additional airlines coming into Portland. Minimum equipment would cost approximately $2,500, he stated.

Experiments have been carried out by the department of commerce with the placing of calcium carbide on fields to help keep down the dust. Good sod fields cannot be excelled however, Hamilton said.

Hamilton has been engaged in condemning obsolete craft in Idaho, Washington, Montana, Utah and Nevada. That Lee U. Eyerly, superintendent of the airport, designer and manufacturer, has a plane that is the talk of aviation men along the coast and west of the mountains was the statement of Hamilton, who though he had never seen the machine, had heard much in its favor. The crash at Eugene will make Eyerly's fortune in that he will be able to produce a better type of ship, was his opinion. Both Eyerly and Hamilton were boyhood friends in Illinois. Hamilton has been flying since 1915 and has nearly 200 hours of night flying to his credit.

3 BOOTLEGGERS ARE ARRESTED

State and federal prohibition officers made three arrests on liquor violation charges Friday night. Bert Zelinski, 121 South 21st street was placed under arrest when he is said to have sold beer to a state officer. A quantity of the finished product and several gallons in the process of manufacture were found officers state. Pete DeGuire, living in the West Woodburn district, is said to have made the mistake of selling moonshine to a federal agent, while Ben Burr, living east of the railroad track, outside the city limits is accused of dispensing the same sort of liquor. Charges have been filed against all three in justice court.

STOLIKER WINS BOWLING EVENT

Virgil Stoliker, one of Salem's best bowlers, was high score man in the all events class of the American Legion bowling tournament held at the Winter Garden Friday and Saturday.

Stoliker, Newton and Mohr were high men in the singles events, while Allen and De Merritt, and Stoliker and Weider finished first in the doubles. The Salem Legion team won first place in five man team competition.

Prizes were awarded all who participated. Any player not receiving a prize will be given free tickets to local theaters if they will call at the Winter Garden.

Opposition to the cruiser bill in congress is stronger than the average person realizes with much of it rising in New York with the possibility of foreign inception, U. S. Senator Frederick Steiwer told the closing session of the state convention of the American Legion Saturday morning. Universal draft of manpower and money was favored by the speaker. Thousands of protests against the cruiser bill were received by Steiwer against recommendations from veterans' organizations.

Loyalty to the organization, state and nation starts with the man in the rank and in the high aims of the American Legion lies the hope of the nation, General U. G. McAlexander, of Newport, "Rock of the Marne," declared in a short address. When statesmen get this country into trouble they call upon you men to straighten out the mess, he said.

Special visitors at the session who made brief remarks were Col. Creed Hammond, Portland; Lester P. Albers, state adjutant for the Idaho department of the American Legion; Arthur Murphy, Seattle, past state commander and Herb Sichel, of Portland, new chief in care of the 49 & 8.

Resolutions adopted opposed the dilatory tactics of the congressional policy on hospitalization; endorsement of Los Angeles for the 1930 national convention; use of profane and obscene language in a serial story appearing in the American Legion monthly; addition of a separate unit at the U. S. Veterans' hospital in Portland for the accommodation of women patients; making the service officers school permanent with annual meetings; the state department's aviation program; assistance to the Doernbecker hospital in Portland that it might operate to full capacity; approval of the child welfare program; commissioning of band masters in the regular army; fire prevention week October 6 to 12; sale of forget-me-nots to the disabled veterans organization; publicity campaign and assistance to the post entertaining the state convention and of appreciation to Capital Post No. 9 of Salem, citizens and state officials.

WAR DECLARED UPON DEAD EELS

The state board of health, at a meeting here Saturday, directed Dr. Frederick Striker, secretary, to take some action to eliminate the nuisance resulting from an accumulation of dead eels in the Willamette river between Oregon City and Portland.

Dr. Striker said he would confer with officials of the state fish and game commissions in an effort to have the fishways at Oregon City so remedied as to allow the free passage of eels. Dr. Striker said such action probably would eliminate the nuisance.

Among the larger concerns maintaining fishways at Oregon City are the Portland Electric Power company, Hawley Paper company and the Crown Willamette Paper company.

Citizens of Jennings Lodge last night adopted a resolution calling attention of the state board of health to the nuisance.

A truck trailer, owned by the Consolidated Truck company, was virtually destroyed with its contents about three miles north of Salem on the Pacific highway Friday night. The truck was loaded with paint and wire. A truck from the Salem fire department made a run to the scene but owing to the inflammable nature of the freight, nothing could be done. It was not learned how the fire started.

Lawrence L. Short, a mechanic operating a small garage on the Pringle road, just outside of the city limits, was arrested Saturday morning by state prohibition officers. They state a purchase of five pints of moonshine was made from Short. A warrant charging liquor will be issued.
